The "hot-air" engine—properly called a Sterling cycle engine—uses alternately heated and cooled gases to push pistons back and forth. The engine uses an external burner to heat a contained gas. As the gas is heated, it expands and pushes against a piston.

After completing the stroke, the gas is cooled, then reheated for use again.

Standard internal combustion engines use expanding gases as their power source, but unlike the Sterling engine, they burn their fuel inside the cylinders, leading to pollution problems.

The Sterling engine is similar to a steam engine, but unlike the steam engine, there is no liquid to be boiled and replaced. A Ford spokesman said the Philips Sterling engine is much smaller and simpler

About 2500 Canadians Stranded in Europe

TORONTO (CP) — About 2,500 Canadian travelers are stranded in Europe at the moment and this figure will double by the end of the month, Collin Cripps, vice-president of Travel Organizers Association, said Tuesday.

Mr. Cripps said he based the 2,500 figure on the collapse of several air charter companies, most notably Supertramp Travel Inc., as well as an estimated 1,200 students he says either bought one-way tickets hoping to get a cheap charter flight home or are on standby under Air Canada's youth travel program.

"They've been trying to say there were only 300 stranded when Supertramp went bankrupt, but it's really about three times that number," he said.

Mr. Cripps said he expects twice as many air travellers to Europe to be stranded by Aug. 31.

He said present legislation ties the hands of police and consumer protection agencies where unscrupulous charter agencies are concerned.

"As the law now stands these people can't be prosecuted for selling space when they haven't booked an aircraft. They can sell space today on a Christmas flight and don't have to book an airplane until just before departure.

"If they've gone bankrupt before then, it's just too bad."

Mr. Cripps, whose organization represents 46 charter agencies, said the group has teamed up with the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA and the Canadian Institute of Travel Councillors (in try to find a solution to the current charter problem which is giving the whole industry a black eye.

"The one good thing to come out of all this is that the lives of us are getting together to make a proposal to Erle Wickler (Ontario minister of financial and consumer affairs)," he said. "Two years ago we weren't even talking to each other."

Mr. Cripps would not reveal the nature of the proposal but several charter agents contacted said they believed it would involve legislation whereby travellers looking for charter flights would pay their money into a bank so that it could not be touched by the agent until his commitments have been honored.

Oakland Chief Declines Calgary Job

The 48-year-old chief of the Oakland, Calif., police force withdrew Tuesday night because of the protests raised in this city of 425,000 over his nationality.

He was selected Aug. 1 over 90 other candidates from Canada, the United States and Britain and was to have taken over Sept. 4 from retiring Chief M. J. (Duke) Kent.

However, from the day his appointment was announced there was constant pressure to prevent him from assuming the post. Most of the complaints centred on the fact that the commission had not hired a Calgarian, or at least a Canadian.

Chief Gain's withdrawal was announced Tuesday night by J. E. Prothero, police commission chairman, shortly after city council passed a resolution saying Calgary's police chief must be a Canadian citizen.

In Oakland, Chief Gain said he had withdrawn from appointment because of feelings by Calgary aldermen that a Canadian should have the job.

He said he plans to stay as police chief in Oakland.

"I haven't put in my letter of retirement. . . . and I plan to be here an indefinite period," he said in an interview at his Oakland home.

Gain said he had written the Calgary police commissioner, which had hired him, a three-page letter of withdrawal that said he was eager to do a good job in Calgary but felt "it would be a disservice to impose myself" if the nationalistic issue got in the way of his performance.

"I don't fault the Calgary council for wanting a native," he said, although several Calgary citizens had telephoned him Tuesday night "to apologize for the prejudicial things that were said against me."

In Calgary, Mr. Prothero said Chief Gain had told him he had decided to withdraw before council met to discuss the "Canadian" resolution because of "the intense nationalistic feelings he has experienced at our hands."

"Today, I am ashamed."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, August 10

Aries (March 21-April 19): Get collaboration on difficult chores; fill this routine but busy day with good humor. Pursue romantic adventure where you can.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your work is there to do even though you may not feel much like doing it. Youngest people and pleasure are favored.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your experience of today will be low-key, not very dramatic, but pleasant. Meditation provides inspiration for future action.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Once in a while it is appropriate to work a full day for the public good. Now is such a time, assuming your progress is normal.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Social involvement, excitement compete with your work and commit ments. A long-standing connection suddenly is more significant.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Divide your time and attention in sharply defined periods. First, your work then your emotional concerns, family and social life.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your community swarms with fascinating developments. During lively events, find a time for confidential arrangements.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): No vast achievement in material progress is likely, although you'll find satisfaction in the ances of what is done.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Handle the day as if it were a picnic or a vacation, your work will be sport of the finest. Enjoy what you do.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It may seem that not enough is getting done—until you realize that people's spirits may be more important in the long run than material output.

Aquaries (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Business means mostly maintenance, consolidation of achieved results, final touches. Take time out for fun and understandings.

No Single Cause Of Canker Sores

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the cause of canker sores? I used to get them one at a time. Now there are two or three at a time in different parts of my mouth. Do you have a remedy? — K.L.

The heck of it is that there's no single cause of canker sores. Among the various factors that have been related to canker sores are injury to the mouth membrane, sensitivity (allergy to a considerable variety of things), poor general health, changes in the system (as with menstruation, mouth infections, even emotional stress).

So general rules for avoiding canker sores are these: Make sure no injurious influences is present in the mouth; don't use too stiff a toothbrush; have any cavities or jagged teeth repaired; if you note that the cankers occur after eating some particular food, or using some specific dentifrice or mouth wash, stop using it. Sometimes tablets containing lactic acid will help. Sometimes an antibiotic may be necessary.

As with any ailments for which there is no single, simple cause, various methods succeed in certain cases. When some remedy works, the user is convinced—wrongly—he has a cure that will work for everybody.

Three or four years ago a reader got from these columns offered to him by friends, relatives and doctors. Here's his list:

From friends: Sleep on the side of the face without the canker sore, eat lots of oranges, stay away from citrus fruit, drink lots of water, avoid chocolate, french fries, etc., or use an alum stick.

From three general practitioners: Rinse mouth with dilute hydrogen peroxide, cankers will come and they will go, or use triamcinolone acetonide in emollient dental paste.

From two pharmacists: Use a preparation containing benzocaine, phenol, boric acid and tannic acid, or use a powder of aluminum hydroxide, magnesium trisilicate and sodium acid carbonate.

He said, for him, the silver nitrate gets the best results. It's such a remedy that one could use at home.

Then his cankers disappeared. How?

His theory: "I think the laughter I got from these 'advices' cured them. Laughter is still the best medicine."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 years old and plan on being married in the near future. I would like to know how the women known if he is birth control pills do help prevent pregnancy, is there a definite answer that the pill is strong enough to kill the sperm—B.T.

The pill has, from a growing amount of statistical evidence, been shown to be a very effective method of preventing pregnancy — but not in the manner your letter suggests.

The pill does not kill the sperm at all. It merely prevents ovulation, the first and essential step along the way toward pregnancy. Without ovulation, no eggs. Without eggs, no pregnancy. The sperm is not affected in the process. It just has no eggs to fertilize.

If you toss a coin, it is even money it will not come down heads. If you toss two coins, it is 3 to 1 they will not both come down heads. (Toss three coins and the odds become 7 to 1.) While it is certainly not crucial for a player to master such probabilities, it is nevertheless extremely helpful to understand such principles that pertain. Bridge leans heavily on probabilities and the player who knows percentages and sticks to them will do very well in the long run.

Consider this deal where the South won the club lead with the king and played a trump to the jack. East won and returned a club, taken with the ace. After another, round of trumps, South led a spade to the queen, losing to the king. The opponents promptly cashed a club and a diamond to put declarer down one.

South's method of play was not the best. He gave himself only a 50 per cent chance for the contract, when it was even money on the location of the king of spades. In effect, South staked the success on the spade finesse.

But he could actually have raised the odds in his favor to 3 to 1. All he had to do was finesse the queen of spades at trick two, instead of later on. If the finesse proved successful, it would have provided a tenth trick.

And if the finesse lost, as in the actual case, he would have been able to win the club return finesse the ten of spades, and then discard his club loser on the ace of spades.

The suggested method of play gives declarer two chances for the contract instead of one. It combines two even-money shots which, as in the case of the coins, make him a 3-to-1 favorite.

Indians Touring Canada

TORONTO (CP) — An $800 month-long tour of "colorful Canada" for 73 Indians has come to a temporary halt in this city's YMCA and some officials feel the so-called tour may be instead a springboard to a new life in Canada.

The party, including two women and a baby, arrived here Friday. The 30-day tour began with a flight from New Delhi to New York, another to Boston and a third air hop over the border to Yarmouth, N.S.

Next came a non-stop train trip from Halifax to Toronto.

Although YMCA officials say 40 persons have left the tour here to stay with relatives and friends, it is to begin again today with a bus ride to Sudbury, Thunder Bay, Winnipeg, Regina and Edmonton—then home.

Tour director Kanwar Brij Mohan Lamba said in an interview Tuesday that some tourists may be visiting friends and relatives "but they will be joining the tour again."

When asked whether he thought all tour participants would return to India after the trip rather than apply for landed immigrant status under the Canada Immigration Act, Mr. Lamba was unsure.

"I don't know if there are any black sheep among us," he said. "How can I know the inner feelings of a man? My duty as a tour conductor is to act according to their program."

Immigration officers here say they are accustomed to groups of tourists coming here under such a plan merely to gain landed immigrant status.

Mr. Lamba also faced other difficulties when funds for the tour were delayed in New Delhi.

Air India's office here received permission just Tuesday night to release $16,500 to Mr. Lamba to complete the tour.

To the tour director, it was quite a relief.

"I am likely to be beaten up if I do not honor my commitments to the party," he said.

Vernon Coste, assistant business manager for the YMCA, said the party had been reduced to 33 people. "But we're keeping 40 beds open just in case."

Shriver Opens His Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a presidential "nonlose" prime-time television unity show, the Democrats handed their vice - presidential nomination to Sargent Shriver and cheered the ticket opening swings at President Nixon and Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew.

"I'm not embarrassed to be George McGovern's seventh choice for vice-president," Shriver said Tuesday night after the Democratic national committee added him to the ticket. "We Democrats may be short of money. We're not short of talent. Think of the campaign and then you can pity poor Mr. Nixon—his first and only choice was Spiro Agnew." The Democrats loved it.

"If we have used valuable time in the selection of a vice-

Oregon cast four of its 74 votes for maverick Democrat Wayne Morse who is trying for a Senate comeback. Guam had nobody present and its three votes weren't counted.

"George McGovern and I have a dream for America," said Shriver, 56, in accepting the nomination.

"It is a vision of millions of citizens, convinced that they can reach across every barrier of age and race, of income and class and geography to join together to change the course of government: To make it an instrument of excellence and courage and candor and justice."

NOT SERIOUS

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)— Judge David Selby told a Senate advance inquiry about a woman who married the same man four times.The judge heard of many people who don't take their marriages seriously, but I think that it is a very serious matter when people of ten take their divorces seriously."

Ontario 'Pays' Cobourg Taxes

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Believed to be a first for Ontario, the provincial government has agreed to pay a grant in lieu of property taxes amounting to $110,000, Wilfred Huskilson, chairman of finance, told town council Tuesday night.

"The grant came as a result of a policy announced at Queen's Park . . . that there should be no tax-exempt property," said Mr. Huskilson. "This is a move to recognize that all provincially-owned property is subject to taxation by the municipality."

Last year a committee, composed of Mr. Huskilson, Town Treasurer George Footit, Reeve W. I. Thomas and Mayor J. A. Keenan, pressed Queen's Park for provincial money on the basis that Ontario owned a good deal of property in this town 70 miles east of Toronto.

This includes an Ontario hospital, a boys' training school and the remaining empty property of the former Canadian Forces supply depot which was turned over to the Ontario Development Corp. last September.

The committee told the government that Cobourg lost $300,000 a year in income when the federal government abandoned the supply base and that the only income derived at present came from taxes levied on the industries that have since located on the property.

Chretien Said Not Qualified To Discuss All Indian Needs

EDMONTON (CP) — Representatives of Indians in British Columbia, Ontario and Manitoba said Tuesday that Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien should be reduced in status to "observer" at certain meetings between Indian groups and the federal government.

Philip Paul, leader of the Union of British Columbia Chiefs, told the general assembly of the National Indian Brotherhood that Indian problems have become so widely diversified that it is no longer always relevant to discuss them exclusively with the Indian affairs minister.

What is needed, he said, is establishment of a system for regular meetings with various cabinet ministers. When, for example, housing was to be discussed the federal minister responsible for that area should be present.

"If you're going to deal with these other ministers, the minister of Indian affairs should just be an observer. We can talk to Indian affairs anytime."

A system of regular meetings with government was discussed last year at Windsor, Ont., but delegates complained Tuesday that the government response has been to put Mr. Chretien in sole charge of federal government representation at these proposed meetings.

Fred Plain, leader of the Union of Ontario Indians, told the delegates it appeared the federal government was going to get its information on all problems from just one cabinet minister—Mr. Chretien. Other ministers, he added, should have the courtesy to listen to Indian delegates.

David Courchene, president of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, said "a continuous dialogue". with all federal ministers is needed.

"I see no indication of this in the structure set-up at the last meeting" he said.

Harold Cardinal, president of the Indian Association of Alberta, told the 56 delegates from all provinces except Newfoundland that the Indians' greatest enemy "is not the government of Canada or any other government, but fear and suspicion of one another." This fear had often divided Indians at times when unity was needed.

Dogs Able to Detect Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two German shepherd dogs demonstrated to airline personnel at Washington National Airport Tuesday their ability to detect weapons and disarm the users.

The ferocious-looking animals showed also that they could be used aboard airplanes, under the control of a stewardess, to sniff out explosives and narcotics hidden on passengers or in their luggage.

Their owner, Albert Black of West Atlantic City, N.J., told a news conference he hopes that eventually the specially trained dogs will be used on 25 per cent of the United States airline flights as guards against hijackings.

"We plan to train stewardesses to work with the dogs on different airlines," Black, owner of the Black International Detective Agency, said.

Black added that Albuquerque, N.M., has become the first city to acquire the trained dogs for regular security duty.

Clyde Sherrer, Albuquerque's aviation director and airport manager, said that during a one-week pilot program there a dog had detected a rifle and pistol, broken down and wrapped in cloth and plastic, in the luggage of a woman passenger; had sniffed out military clothing smelling of gunpowder inside a suitcase, and had seized a bag of marijuana in the pocket of a man thereafter booked for possession of narcotics.

Injunction Halts Demolition

HULL, Que. (CP) — Legal manoeuvring stalled the wreckers' ball Tuesday, and gave at least a few hours more life to the Dasken apartment building project.

A wrecker had his equipment poised to start battering down the $13-million apartment shell, under sentence of death since a Supreme Court of Canada judgment ruling this spring that it was put up on land zoned for single-family dwellings.

But an injunction application filed in court Monday asked that demolition be stopped until the citizens group that fought the builder to the Supreme Court could demonstrate that it has enough money to complete demolition. The demolition contractor has said he is satisfied with his contract with the citizens group.

A score of witnesses were sworn for the injunction hearing Tuesday morning and the hearing was postponed to Thursday.

Auld to Meet Dairy on Jugs

TORONTO (CP) — Environmental Minister James Auld said Tuesday the Ontario cabinet will meet today to discuss a Dominion Dairies Ltd. proposal to recycle polyethylene plastics, including the dairy's single-use milk jug.

The dairy wants the government to rescind a regulation passed last month which requires both reuse of plastic milk jugs and customer deposits.

The regulation is to become effective Aug. 12.

The dairy, in a 15-page report, says the greatest drawback of its bottle is an increase in garbage.

In order to correct the problem, it has suggested conveniently located recycling stations to which the bottles may be returned.

Will Close Mill

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — American Can Co. announced Tuesday plans to close a pulp mill in Ontario and consolidate the operations of a plant with other facilities.

American Can said it will sell its pulp mill and related operations at Marathon, Ont., and the operations of a plant at Chatham, Ont., will be consolidated over the next 18 months.

Davis Orders Ministers To List Land Holdings

TORONTO (CP) — In the wake of a disclosure that Attorney-General Dalton Bales and two partners stand to make up to $177,000 on land expropriation by the provincial government, Ontario cabinet members have been ordered to provide Premier William Davis with a list of all property holdings.

Mr. Bales has offered to resign and said Wednesday he would decide within two days whether to resign his cabinet post and his seat in the legislature.

Premier Davis told a news conference Wednesday he was trying to persuade Mr. Bales to remain in the cabinet and assured the news media of drawing "prejudicial" inferences on the matter.

The attorney-general offered his resignation because, he said, he wanted to preserve the integrity of the office and not embarrass the government as a result of a land purchase by him and two partners made in what was Markham Township.

The land is near the proposed site for Toronto's new international airport and Mr. Bales said he and his partners could make between $77,000 and $177,000 for the farmland which the Ontario government will expropriate.

Premier Davis said the attorney-general was not privy to any information or studies pertaining to the airport.

He said there "was no evidence of impropriety."

Child Dies In Stabbing

TORONTO (CP) — One child was stabbed to death and another critically wounded Wednesday night when a man wielding a butcher knife ran amok in an east-end home.

Nine-year-old Douglas Sawyer was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital. His sister, Dawn, 16, was transferred to the Sick Children's Hospital and put in the intensive care unit with a wound in the chest. Her condition was later said satisfactory.

Police said no reason for the attacks could be found.

The children's father, Douglas Joseph Sawyer, 28, was charged with non-capital murder and attempted murder. Police said he had been separated for a week from the woman he was living with.

I'm not surprised he looks like that with today's prices.

U.S. Gun Foes Score Small Gain

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Gun control in the United States has taken a hesitant step forward with Senate approval of a ban on the sale of the snub-nosed "Saturday Night Special" — a cheap, small pistol that accounts for thousands of deaths each year.

The legislation still has to go through the House of Representatives and is weaker in many ways than wanted by some anti-gun senators. It's fate in the House is uncertain.

But the legislation's chief sponsor, Democratic Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana, told reporters that Senate approval Wednesday night of the ban on the "Specials" still was a significant contribution in the fight against crime. The vote was 68 to 25.

"It will take out of the market place the weapons used most frequently by criminals," he said. "It doesn't solve the problem but it is a significant contribution."

Redevelopment Is Approved

TORONTO (CP) — City council early today approved the $300-million downtown Eaton-Fairview redevelopment which takes in five city blocks between Queen and Dundas streets.

Approval, after a day-and-night debate which took a total of 81 votes, came despite a threat that the Church of the Holy Trinity will oppose needed street closings if it demands for better sunlight guarantees are not met.

Twister Hits Ottawa Region

OTTAWA (CP) — A small-scale twister swept through an area on the outskirts of Ottawa Wednesday, damaging homes, property and power lines.

At a game farm on the eastern outskirts of the city a shed housing about 500 pheasant chicks was uprooted and the roof hurled against a house. Many game birds were killed.

U.S. Seeking More Powerful Missile Heads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon acknowledged Wednesday that the U.S. is pursuing development of more powerful and more accurate missile warheads capable of knocking out targets in the Soviet Union.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim denied repeatedly that this would give the U.S. a first-strike capability in a nuclear attack. He stressed that the program represents no basic change in U.S. strategy.

Fun Fair Now

It's New Show By Old Name

By LENNY WILLIAMSON, Staff Reporter

Except the cows.

So said exhibition manager Everett Gowsell at a press conference Wednesday, as the five-day annual fair opened for the 131st time.

Fall fairs were begun many years ago to upgrade agricultural methods and products through show ring competition. But the need has passed and only the cows bring a true farm flavor to the annual exhibition.

But the fair board is moving slowly to introduce innovations in its entertainment. This year it got permission to run a beer garden, but postponed the event until another year. Similarly, last year to run on Sunday, but waited until this year to extend the exhibition to the Sabbath.

"You have to have one big attraction to catch the public's interest," said Mr. Gowsell.

"This year it's the balloon. It's 50 feet in diameter and rises to 150 to 200 feet."

"You don't find that down on the farm!

"There hasn't been a draught horse used on a farm in this county for years," he said. "And no vegetable grower can compete with the big, colorful, washed and packaged products available in the supermarkets today."

Vancouver Docks Idle

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver longshoremen stayed off the docks again Wednesday in a dispute over hiring practices as their employers anticipated complaints over delayed grain shipments, pleaded their case to the federal government.

The 1,800 members of the Vancouver local of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union are to vote today and Friday on whether to launch an official strike.

Meantime, work on the docks remained at a standstill, with 24 ships tied up, 14 of them waiting for grain. The halt was the result of an unofficial strike and lockout situation which went into effect during the weekend.

Banks Tighten Rules

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuter) — Uganda tightened foreign exchange regulations today following President Idi Amin's notice to tens of thousands of Asians here to leave within 90 days.

Under the new regulations all travel allowance applications must be referred to the central bank.

Previously, the banks could allow departing residents to take up to about $2,500 out of the country.

Banks reopened after a three-day closure and were immediately filled with scores of worried Hindus and Sikhs inquiring about how much money they could take out with them.

In a speech Wednesday, Amin stood by his decision to expel an estimated more than 50,000 British, Pakistani and Bangladesh nationals.

One Asian said today: "This means it. Most of our people only want to get out now. They are not bothered about their property."

The Indian, Pakistani and Bangladesh nationals total about 9,000, according to present estimates.

For the British passport-holders, British immigration curbs mean the future is even more uncertain.

"We just don't know what will happen to us" one said. Many British Asians were going today to the high commission here to try to find out.

Others lined at a city council clinic for vaccinations. There were fears vaccine supplies could not last a mass rush to clear this latest formality.

Amin said the expulsion order is not racial but that, with their control of big slice of trade and petty commerce here, the Asians "take wealthas" (shopkeepers) have denied the 10 million black Ugandans a real stake in their own economy.

Amid rising British concern, Prime Minister Edward Heath sent a personal message Wednesday to Gen. Amin, who ordered nationals of India, Pakistan and Bangladesh to leave as well.

The president warned Wednesday that unwanted Asians who overstayed the deadline would be "sitting on the fire."

Capture Of IRA Man Brings Riot

BELFAST (CP) — Bombs and gunfire rocked the city of Armagh, the religious capital of all Ireland, Wednesday night after a day of mass protest by Northern Ireland's Roman Catholics.

Two bombs caused extensive damage in the centre of the city, whose 120,000 population is half Catholic, and 15 shots were fired at troops in patrols. There were no casualties.

Fierce rioting started in Belfast following the capture of guerrilla leader Martin Meehan. A mob of 2,000 youths and women hurling fire bombs and rocks besieged more than 500 soldiers in the Ardoyne district. Meehan's stronghold. The troops finally drove the mob off with rubber bullets.

Russia May Buy Fourth Of Wheat Crop in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The agriculture department says the Soviet Union may buy between 250 million and 400 million bushels of U.S. wheat, as much as one-fourth of this year's crop.

Officials say a number of private companies are involved in transactions, including one whose Soviet sales operations are headed by a former U.S. assistant agriculture secretary.

Wheat market prices in the Midwest have risen sharply in recent days, reflecting rumors that a massive sale to Moscow is imminent. In Kansas City the price has climbed from $1.37 a bushel to $1.84.

If the big sale materializes, a 400-million-bushel transaction — and some sources say it could be even more — would be equal to nearly half the present U.S. wheat surplus and one-fourth of the 1972 crop, estimated at less than 1.6 billion bushels.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll Brunthaver said Wednesday in an interview that there has been tremendous demand for wheat in the market, presumably by private companies seeking grain for the Russians.

Heavy Rains Have Dampened Crops, Construction and Tourism

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Today, the sun shines bright over a soggy Quinte landscape.

It's warming glow should invigorate more than the comforts of daily living.

For, summer '72 — to date one of the wettest in years— has dampened activity for a wide range of local economic contributors, from builders to buyers of suntan lotion.

Weather-linked industries — including farming, construction, tourism — all seem to have felt the effects of what one Belleville contractor succinctly describes as "a money wrench in the flow of operation."

In June, rainfall more than doubled the average — 5.28 inches compared to a 2.29 mean. In July, it was lower; 1.94 against a norm of 2.57. This still kept rainfall for both months above average and wet weather in the early days of August added to the overall sogginess.

Results of the downfalls are dramatically outlined by Lake Ontario where the International Joint Commission, responsible for handling Canada-U.S. boundary water problems, says the lake's level is 13 inches above normal. This is just one inch below the maximum prescribed level.

Heavy rains around the lake's drainage areas — which include the Quinte region — have helped push up levels, says the IJC, in their report released this week.

The situation is reflected in the Belleville area.

City Harbor Master Don Barrett says water in the harbor and the Bay of Quinte is up probably about 3 ft.

While the higher levels originally were caused by heavy spring runoff, normally by this time of year waters begin receding. Instead, the levels are holding steady, and there's no question the rains are a major factor, says the harbor master.

But it's not only the volume of water that's a problem. Timing is also a factor for industries tied to the outdoors — specifically farming and construction.

"Maybe" says one farmer, there isn't as much rainfall as it appears. But it always seemed to be raining when you wanted to work.

A spokesman at the provincial agricultural representative's office in Picton said Prince Edward County fruit and vegetable crops aren't much of the county's farm output — didn't believe the rains made any significant impression.

In Hastings county, hay and grain crops appear the hardest hit. Some were cut down where they stood by the rains, reports one veteran farmer.

Grain, barley and oats have been hit and many farmers have had "an awful time" getting in hay, says Horace Knight, who has farmed north of Belleville since the 1930s to date. "It's one of the wettest seasons I can remember," confirms Mr. Knight.

"But," he adds philosophically, "that's nature. You have to take the good with the bad."

Foul weather frustrations extend to the construction industry, as several local contractors confirmed, when contacted.

Delays, lost man - hours, and bogged equipment have all foiled progress on projects.

One builder estimated he may have lost six to eight man-hours a week "practically" this season.

"We've been in business seven years and this is the worst season we've run into," says Fred Cooney, president of TC Construction.

One large house was begun by his company five weeks ago "and we haven't had a complete week in it yet," he adds.

In some parts of east end Belleville — where roads are yet to be built — rain-swamped ground hampered movement of construction machinery and vehicles.

There's an added side effect: The Ontario Hydro strike also has delayed inspection of hydro installations.

The net result, says Mr. Cathcart, has been a backing of work schedules.

Heavy construction has also been hit.

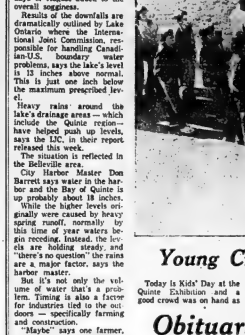
Hugh Murray Ltd., of Belleville, says the bad weather has "many implications" with lost time that unfortunately affects not only work schedules, but workers as well.

On one commercial project in the Napanee area, pumps have had to be manned "steadily" during rainy periods, reports the local contractor.

Tourism may also be hit.



"I've never seen weather like it," says Jack Wilson, secretary - manager of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association. "There's been not only rain but cold."

As a result, tourism in the region may have been affected in the "last two or three weeks."

Rainy-weather results even reach into consumer patterns.

A chest of drawers in Belleville drugstores brought reports that sales of suntan lotion were down in recent weeks — by how much wasn't exactly certain.

And, the wife of one contractor reported a producer in another line of enterprise also was complaining recently of poor sales. His business: Sod farms.

Young Crowd Comes Early for Kids' Day

Today is Kids' Day at the Quinte Exhibition and a good crowd was on hand as ticket takers took their posts early this morning. As well as being admitted to the grounds at no charge, youngsters will be able to enjoy some of the midway attractions at a reduced rate. The crowd became a little uneasy when ticket takers failed to appear for the scheduled 9 a.m. opening but once everything was ready, the line passed through the Bridge-Yeoman Street gate. Admission attendance figure for both days will pass the 2,000 mark.

To Drink Or Not To Drink ?

NAPANEE (Special) — Napanee voters will answer two liquor questions on their ballots in the municipal election in December.

The public will be asked if it favors having liquor under a dining lounge licence and under a lounge licence.

Napanee has four hotels, but none are allowed to sell liquor. Residents can buy liquor at the local government store, but no liquor is sold by the ounce except when special permits are issued periodically to the Royal Canadian Legion and other service clubs.

A 60 percent vote is needed to turn the town wet. The last liquor vote in 1969 was defeated by a slim majority.

Chariot races turned out to be a real crowd pleaser last night as teams raced around the Quinte Exhibition track. Three races were held during breaks in the opening exercises of the Ex, using small, medium and large horses. These races have become a tradition at fairs in the Belleville area. People flocked to the exhibition last night to enjoy a full evening of activity, ranging from horse drawing to the selection of Hastings and Prince Edward County dairy princesses.

No Beer Garden This Year

Postponement of a beer garden at the Quinte Exhibition for at least a year is the decision of the fair's board of directors.

But the question of legalized suds will be included in a survey of fair-goers, making a beer tent a distinct possibility for coming exhibitions.

Fair manager Ev Gowsell said "minor static" led officials to hold back this year, despite the fact that they received the go-ahead from city council several months ago.

"Our own group of directors, through personal calls from churches and so on, decided not to hold a beer garden," he said Wednesday.

Because a marquee tent would have to be located near washrooms and hydro outlets, the only suitable location would be between the auditorium and the gate at Bridge and Yeomans Streets, said Mr. Gowsell. The result, however, would be that most persons attending the fair would see the beer tent before anything else, so that a certain percentage might never make it beyond the taps.

The annual survey, to be filled out by 1,000 persons, will determine "whether the old-timers like or don't like it," said Mr. Gowsell. "In the meantime, we're going to let it lie for a year."

Dairy Princesses Crowned

Chosen last night at the opening of the Quinte Exhibition, were the two girls who will represent the Quinte area as dairy princesses for the coming year. Above, Hastings winner, 19 - year - old Pat Stapley of Frankford is crowned by Ontario Dairy Princess Nancy Brown of Grand Valley. Competing against Miss Stapley for the Hastings title was Susan Ray of RR 4, Belleville.

Miss Brown next crowned Prince Edward County winner Bev Cronk (right).

Both winners will travel to Toronto later this month to compete for the provincial title.

The winners were chosen for their skill at milking before a grandstand of spectators and for their prepared speech on the milk industry in their county.

No Buses For Fair On Sunday

Sunday fair - going will be a do-it-yourself proposition, the Belleville Transit Commission said today.

No buses will be running on Sunday to take people to Quinte Exhibition. The exhibition has been extended to include Sunday for the first time this year.

But from today through Saturday buses will leave White's Hardware terminal on Front St. at 5 after, 20 after, 35 and 10 to the hour.

Buses will leave Exhibition Grounds at 7 after, 22 after, 23 to and 8 to the hour.

Firemen to Fill Swimming Pools

PICTON, (Staff) — Private swimming pools in Picton now can be filled by the Picton fire department at a cost of $30 for each service.

Town council this week approved the plan and agreed the money received should be divided equally between the fire department and the public utilities commission.

Jerry McCullough of Lanark County, pushes his team to the limit, asking for all the spirit they have to move the 5,400 pounds hitched to their collar. Mr. McCullough and his team finished the evening, pulling 5,800 pounds, and placing third in the lightweight division. Best pull of the evening was done by Clifford Maclon's team, pulling 6,600 pounds in the heavyweight category.

They Strained, Pulled And Won the Field

One highlight of last night's opening celebrations for the Quinte Exhibition was the horse drawing contest held in the infield of the race track.

Winners in the light weight class were Murray Clifford of RR2, Norwood, pulling 6,200 pounds a total of 14 feet, four inches; Gerald Berry of Madoc, pulling 6,200 pounds for an unreported distance. Third place went to Gerald McCullough of Lanark County, pulling 5,800 pounds for 15 feet and five inches.

In the heavy weight division, Clifford Manion of Fiesta placed first pulling 6,600 pounds for 20 feet. Jen McFeetus of Fenelon Falls placed second, and George McLean of Little Britain placed third, pulling 5,500 pounds for 10 feet and one inch.

It's Fun Fair

Some exhibitors have even been known to buy the supermarkets products and enter them in competition, he indicated.

Even agricultural implement dealers can't be enticed to exhibit at the fair.

"The big companies give their advertising and display money to local dealers, and if the dealers are having a good year and don't need the publicity of a fair exhibit, they don't spend," said the Exhibition director.

People who raise flowers and dogs and practise crafts have become "sophisticated" and want to organize their own exhibits and competitions as separate events, Mr. Gowsell said they have withdrawn from fair exhibiting and can't be coaxed back.

So that leaves the fair with only the cows, and a class coming up fast — dairy goats. Mr. Gowsell seemed grateful for the goats, which are making a strong bid to become an important agricultural industry in the district.

The ratio of ticket-buying fair-goers to pass holders is critical to the success, he said the manager. Too many fair freeloaders almost wrecked the gate receipt balance, until the fair board cracked down.

The agricultural society used to charge exhibitors for their booths, but exhibitors then requested "40 to 60 passes" for booth attendants.

"Now we charge only $5 a booth for lights and clean-up and ask the exhibitors to buy tickets for their attendants. If only takes four or five people to run a booth since we made the change," said Mr. Gowsell.

No Booze For Athol

The plebescite, taken last month showed 59.2 per cent of the voters in favor of liquor served in a dining lounge, while 58.5 per cent supported liquor served in a licensed lounge. A 60 per cent majority vote was needed before the township would be declared "wet".

Township clerk Douglas Moore said today a recount made by Supreme Court Judge Wilfrid Lane of Picton, slightly lowered the affirmative vote. New percentage figures have not yet been calculated.

Prankster Causes 120,000-gallon Stink

PICTON (Staff) — Approximately 120,000 gallons of partially treated sewage poured into Picton bay last month after a trespasser tampered with controls at the town's pollution control plant.

Town engineer David McIntosh this week revealed that the culprit opened the settling tank valve and switched off the sludge return pump.

When the vandalism was discovered, town police were alerted and a report was sent to the ministry of the environment. Corrective measures were taken through the ministry.

Nationalist Sentiments

Nationalism is one of the most fundamental and powerful forces motivating peoples and we see it at work in the case of the withdrawal of the Queen from the position he had been offered as police chief of Calgary.

The people of Calgary are as proud of being Canadian as any and perhaps more so and we can understand their dismay at the prospect of an American heading the police force and the furore that resulted.

At the same time it is ironic to consider the more liberal attitude of the United States in this regard. But then it can afford to be; it is a true melting pot composed of the best and the worst with all the advantages and disadvantages of such a society. It is a society composed of some of the most gifted as well as the most evil elements in humankind and the country's immigration policies over the years have contributed to this contrasting situation.

To consider that in the sphere of professional skills a New Zealander, Dr. William Pickering, is head of the jet propulsion laboratory in Pasadena, California, one of the prime agencies of the U.S. space program and, until recently at least, German born Dr. Wernher von Braun was one of the top experts in the field of rocketry. We understand Dr. von Braun has moved into a similar position in the private sector.

In Canada however we are still small enough in population that those who head such vital community posts as that of police chief should be Canadian. Certainly Americanization of the police here is not a desirable goal, given the more intense nature of U.S. social problems and the methods used by police there to deal with them.

Difficulties Overcome

Northern Ireland's information service has released a publication indicating the increased production and expanding trade that are taking place despite the violence that has plagued the region since 1969.

Secretary of State William Whitelaw notes in an introduction that Northern Ireland is fully competitive industrially and delivering on time and adds: Measured in terms of output and productivity the performance is appreciably higher than the national (British) average. This may be difficult to appreciate for people living outside Northern Ireland, but it is the fact. And it is so because every day tens of thousands of people, Protestants and Roman Catholics, work in industry in Northern Ireland."

The publication shows that more than 3,000 jobs were expected from new industrial projects negotiated in 1971 and representing commitments by 49 companies. Exports in 1970 totalled over 745 million pounds sterling a 67 per cent growth since 1965. The port of Belfast meanwhile reports a record year for 1971, with 6,500 ships carrying more than seven million tons of cargo.

The postwar program of "advance factory" construction is being carried on and among firms expanding their operations in Ulster are the subsidiary of the Industry of National Distillers and Chemical Corporation of New York. In its 11-year history in Ulster, the firm's plant at Lisburn has not had a single day due to work stoppages.

The new and many other developments revealed in the publication make it clear that Ulster is maintaining its record of solid achievement, even in the face of difficulties.

Man's Inhumanity

Actress Jane Fonda, who says she considers herself a patriotic person, said in a recent interview, "I was brought up believing this country (the United States) stood for hope, peace and democracy. But today we are sending our people to kill other people. I don't believe in that."

Well we are not forgetting My Lai and other unsavory aspects of the U.S. war effort in Vietnam, but we wonder what Miss Fonda (who recently was flaunting her "patriotism" to Communist officials in Hanoi) would have to say about the North Vietnamese shelling of refugees, mainly women and children and non-combatants fleeing Quang Tri last April 29 and 30.

Reports just released say between 1,000 and 2,000 civilians were killed by Communist artillery while another 500 are estimated to have been shot in mass executions conducted by the Reds in Binh Dinh province.

Stanfield's Stoic Efforts

The Terrible Grind That Is the Quest for Office

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There has to be some great, aching inner hunger for the power and the glory that makes these political Sanmiens run.

They must be actually hurting in their minds with an unrelenting compulsion for high public office to go through the ordeal they all think is essential to win it.

Certainly they are hurting physically from fatigue, leading if prolonged, to exhaustion.

And unless they are not human — and could be they are slightly different than most other people! — these political party leaders must suffer agonies of boredom.

They say the same things over and over and over again to similar groups of people in terms that run together in a kind of continuous, non-stop urban melange.

The faces of the audience may change, but after a time one crowd must look like another.

And the food; it is a special style dinning.

Highly standardized, too, depending on the particular occasion, a service club luncheon, a church supper, a picnic, beef barbecue, corn roast, hot-dog and hamburger feed, pancake breakfast.

And the drink; coffee, coffee coffee until the poor politician is so awash inside he lists as he goes around corners.

If it is not coffee at the big public political fetes, it is wine, with cheese, at the smaller, select soirees.

Only when he is too beat-out and bone-weary after the long, hard, but, gritty and grubby day to enjoy it does he get the chance to relax over a scotch or rye, usually in the home of the local candidate.

Just glance at the schedule for one day when Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was pre-campaign electioneering his way through Central Ontario.

It was Wednesday — the meeting after a hard day that had ended close to 10 p.m. with a coffee party at Milton — and he had to be up, smiling, shaking hands, and giving the same old answers to the same old questions, at a public breakfast in Guelph.

Same old questions and answers because the same problems of high inflation, unemployment, billion-dollar Quebec trade troubles with the Americans, the worrisome lot, bring the same theoretical solutions.

That public breakfast takes the first working hour of the Stanfield day, and then he submits to endless questions, crank and clever, too, for 45 minutes on an open hot-line radio show still in Guelph.

The day occupies the first half of the day, warranting this kind of concentrated attention because the sitting MP for Wellington is Alfred Hales, a veteran Conservative, and something of a national figure as chairman of the Commons Public Accounts Committee.

So, in quick succession, Stanfield's schedule takes him to a hockey arena to rap with the student players at the Canadian-American League School . . . then to an industrial plant for a handshaking along the assembly line . . . on to an historic site, the birthplace of Colonel John McCrae who wrote "In Flanders Fields" . . . across to a senior citizens' home to chat with the old age pensioners . . . then another tour of an industrial plant for more talk, to I'm Bob Stanfield" . . . and finally out of Guelph and on his way . . .

. . . Next stop, Port Dalhousie, to open the Henley Regatta and begin an evening tour of the Niagara Peer, taking in a "visit" as it is called, to a pollution recycling centre and a stop to watch some of the action, and mix with the crowd at a lacrosse game at Grimsby . . .

Now it is Thursday and the day begins with "coffee with the citizens of St. Catharines" on a city parking lot at 8 a.m. . . . followed by a news conference . . . another open - line radio show . . . tour of a pulp and paper plant at Thorold . . . and the same sort of grind as the day before . . . with a conference with local farmers thrown in as an "extra" . . . finally, the winding with a "community dinner" at Hamilton, where he will spend all of Friday before moving on to another town, another crowd, another meet - killing grind, one day just like the day before and the day to come after.

These political leaders must want it badly, really badly, the power to reward friends and punish enemies while watching the civil service run the country . . . to go through such a summer, taking this sort of brutal punishment.

Expulsion of Asians From Uganda

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The latest upsurge in controversy between Britain and Uganda about the thousands of Asians now living in the East African country raises a variety of crucial issues—social and political as well as diplomatic—affecting both countries.

From a purely international viewpoint, the plight of the tens of thousands of British citizens of Asian extraction in Uganda is merely another in a long series of dilemmas which have often ended in vast tragedy over the last few decades.

The forced movement of populations is a grimly-familiar world phenomenon of the 20th century, a period of history which already has seen the mass migration of European Jews in the face of Nazi persecution and huge ethnic trades prompted by such developments as the partition of the Indian sub-continent in the 1940s.

But events of this kind are far from being unique to the 20th century. For instance, there was the flight from Roman Catholic France of the harassed Protestant Huguenot 400 years ago and the vast migrations of migration to North America from Europe during the last 300 years.

The current Anglo-Ugandan conflict may end without any plunging of the British Asians into an upheaval of that magnitude.

However, it will at least serve to complicate the relations of Uganda and much of East Africa with the outside world—especially with Britain and India.

The figures show the corporation, which in terms of the economy is the single most important operation of the ministry, has a new vitality.

In the four-month period it assisted 155 firms in the province. This was close to double the 86 firms assisted in the same period last year.

And this year it loaned $6.2 million. Which was more than three times the $4.4 million loaned in the first four months of last year.

But even more pertinent than the new vitality, White has been steering the corporation into a new direction. He has changed its emphasis from big business to small business.

Of the 155 firms assisted, 101 firms were in the small business category.

And when he has moved the government assistance program away from grants to recovera ble loans. Until this year most of this development effort centred on "performance loans".

These were almost entirely grants to help industry in the new plants or expansion and under terms which meant that the conditions were met. Otherwise it was a grant.

Fifty-one of these to a total of $4.1 million were still given in the first four months of this year. But the other 104 loans and the $11.8 million involved went to small business and they are a straight debt to the companies concerned.

The province will get the money back, or most of it.

MAKES SENSE

This makes horse sense.

Government lending for industrial development has always been somewhat controversial, and there was room for criticism of giving money to big successful corporations, many of them foreign-controlled.

Lending money to new enterprises or baby enterprises is a different thinking, for it is the field of business which has trouble getting regular financing and for which money can mean live or not live. And it is this field which has the big potential for growth.

Recent small business loans, for example, have helped a manufacturer to expand from one another to export special school furniture and others to manufacture or export hockey nets, movie screens, cosmetics, make-it-yourself toy kits, shoes and a wide range of other products.

At least some of these companies one day will get big and provide jobs that without government help never could have existed.

Small Businesses Benefiting From New Minister's Policies

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

A good example of what enlightened leadership can do is showing up in the ministry of industry and tourism.

John White, the 42-year-old businessman and scholar from London, who was closely identified with John Robarts' provincial campaigns, switched from university affairs to this department in January.

It has been noted here that this was one of the most prominent moves Premier Davis had made in his government reorganization and that it looked as though White in his new portfolio could turn out to be an outstanding minister in this key department.

Now we are getting the evidence.

A report has been issued on the activities of the Ontario Development Corporation, which comes under this ministry, for the first four months of this year.

The figures show the corporation, which in terms of the economy is the single most important operation of the ministry, has a new vitality.

In the four-month period it assisted 155 firms in the province. This was close to double the 86 firms assisted in the same period last year.

And this year it loaned $6.2 million. Which was more than three times the $4.4 million loaned in the first four months of last year.

Granby La Voix de l'Est: The switch to the Conservative party by the leader of Action Canada does not make Mr. Stanfield the head of a stronger political person.

Paul Hellyer has invited his "eight million" movement members to follow suit, but judging by the reaction so far all are not ready for such a step. . . .

The former minister in the Trudeau cabinet said his decision was made after weeks of reflection and consultation with Mr. Stanfield. It would be more logical to say it was made after he finally realized his own group's feeble reas. . . . to join the Conservatives before the next federal election . . . having left candidates he planned to field, in the campaign to take the seat. . . .

A career political man . . . Mr. Hellyer simply wants to be assured re-election in Toronto without having to be preoccupied with those he considered were with him in his fight against the Trudeau government. . . .

He has never supported Mr. Stanfield's political stands . . . and has the Conservative party really changed so much to warrant Mr. Hellyer's statement (that the Conservatives are the party wherein he can best promote the liberalism of Action Canada)?

Doubters in the whole truth is Mr. Hellyer's disappointment at not playing a more important role in the political scene. He cannot forgive Mr. Trudeau for defeating him at the 1968 Liberal leadership convention and later the Liberal cabinet's refusal to follow through on his housing policy. . . .

It seems Mr. Hellyer cannot tolerate anyone in politics who even once refuses to be swayed by his ideas. Nor he is alone, without support and in order to stay in politics must join a party which no one thinks has a chance of winning the next election.

Wouldn't it have been better if Mr. Hellyer had not quit the Liberals in the first place? Maybe that is what he is asking himself now, and with reason.

Brother and Sisters Meet After 43-year Separation

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) Edward Evans and his sisters are talking to each other again — for the first time in nearly 43 years.

Not that they haven't maintained contact. It's just they haven't been together since Mr. Evans left his native Wales as a youth to make his way of life in Canada.

"It's surprising when you get together after all that time what you find to talk about," says the 62-year-old Mr. Evans.

"We've spent most of the time talking — about the past, reliving our childhood," adds Mrs. Lillian Matthews, who, with her sister, Mrs. Maisie Jones, flew from Wales to Canada and reunion with their brother last week.

Because of regular correspondence over the years, brother and sisters had no problems recognizing each other.

Mr. Evans arrived in Canada in 1930 during the Depression and worked as a farmhand for a Thurlow township farmer. Later he worked three years in Toronto, returned to Belleville to sell insurance, then went to the Bata Shoe Co., at Batawa where he now is in merchandise claims department. In 1940 he married the former Margaret Kelcheson of Sidney township and has been living in Wallbridge for the past 27 years.

The pattern of evolving and settling into a new life delayed any visit to his homeland — something he intends to rectify by returning his sisters' visit in the next few years.

In the meantime, their stay is being interspersed with trips: Niagara Falls, Upper Canada Village. The Thousand Islands they've found particularly impressive. Next Mr. Evans hopes to take them into the vastness of northern Ontario.

The bigness of the land — compared to the compactness of Wales — has made its impression.

"It's a different kind of country. Everything seems so vast," says Mrs. Jones.

However, lately it's seemed close to home in one respect. The unseasonal amount of rain that's hit the district.

"But," adds Mrs. Matthews, "it's a lovely country."

Mini Sheet Postal First

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Another first for the Canada Post Office was released last week in the form of four earth science commemorative 15-cent stamps. For the first time in Canadian philatelic history, a mini sheet of 16 stamps, bearing four marginal inscriptions, is on sale.

Designed by Gottschalk and Ash Ltd. of Montreal, for printing in eight colors by Aston-Potter Ltd., of Toronto, a total of 16 million will be released.

Representing the sciences of photogrammetry, cartography, geology and geography, these modernistic designs are being issued in recognition of four scientific congresses . . . the 24th International Geological Congress, the 22nd International Geographical Congress, the 12th Congress of the International Society of Photogrammetry and the sixth Congress of the International Cartographic Association. These conferences were organized for July and August.

Montreal's Tourism Declines

By BORIS MISKEW

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal tourist and hotel officials hope the tourist business will pick up this month following a slump in June and July.

Officials blamed spring floods in the eastern United States, the weaker U.S. dollar and the delayed opening of Man and his World for the slump.

Claude Lorraine, president of the Montreal Hotel Association, said the last two months do not appear to have been as good as June and July of 1971 but that the prospects for August look brighter.

Montreal hotels were booked to only 80 per cent of their capacity during the last couple of months. In July and August Montreal hotels normally are filled.

Lucien Bergeron, director of the Montreal Tourist Bureau, said an increase in the sightseeing business toward the end of July indicates that the number of tourists was on the rise.

Tourism and convention business have been increasing steadily in Montreal for the last few years, except for a drop which followed the October, 1970, kidnappings.

Tourist industry officials said, however, that crisis had only a temporary effect on their business.

Donald M. Mumford, chairman and president of Hilton Canada and managing director of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, said the publicity of the crisis "didn't really have any adverse reaction in the United States."

There was a bigger problem before the crisis because of terrorist bombings and bomb threats, but the situation has become more or less stable in the last 1½ years, officials said.

Mr. Mumford said of greater significance is the growing competition in major cities in the U.S. and Canada for convention business.

Mr. Lorraine, president and general manager of the Sheraton Fontainebleau Motor Hotel, said the Democratic party nominating convention in the U.S. kept a certain number of prospective Americans tourists at home.

The floods forced many of the holidaymakers from the New England states and Pennsylvania to stay home, he added, and the higher value of the Canadian dollar in relation to the U.S. dollar has created some difficulties.

The strike by blue-collar workers in Montreal delayed the opening of Man and his World. Montreal's summer fair, and was indirectly responsible for a smaller tourist turnout early in the tourist season.

The fair, scheduled to open June 12, opened about July 31. It will close Sept. 4.

Mr. Bergeron said the fair is a major tourist attraction in Montreal. The Montreal area normally gets four million visitors a year, and before Expo 67 it attracted about three million annually.

The visitors bring to Quebec province revenues of more than $250 million each year— and this is one of the major reasons for concern when the slump.

MR. AND MRS. GORDON HAMILTON

Hamilton – Thompson

Holloway St. United Church was the scene of the July 22 wedding ceremony of Dorothy Enid Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, Harlowe and Gordon H. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hamilton, RR 5, Trenton. Rev. J. William Lamb performed the ceremony. Miss Mary Drawup, Stirling was soloist to the accompaniment of Miss Linda Johnston, Belleville as organist.

The bride given in marriage by her father selected a full length white peau de soie gown with a pink satin band at the high waistline. The bodice, long puffed sleeves and lower band encircling the skirt featured white appliqued flowers and pink bows. Pink and white flowers encircled the headpiece which met the white veil.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Muriel Rose, sister of the bride, chose a white chiffon bodice and a long green and blue flowered organza skirt. Her dress was enhanced by a floppy brimmed hat trimmed with a matching green and blue chiffon material to the skirt. Bridesmaid, Mrs. Ellen Belcher, of Ottawa, friend of the bride, was dressed identically to the matron of honor. Flower girl, Leanne Rose, wore a white peau de sole dress with a green satin bow in the front and puffed sleeves.

Best man was Carl Grills from Frankford. Ushers were Wendell Thompson, brother of the bride and Garnet Hamilton brother of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a rose polyester crepe dress with matching coat, pink hat and white accessories. Her outfit was enhanced by a blue-tinted carnation corsage.

Women's Institutes

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

RIVER VALLEY — Mrs. Roy Tucker was hostess on Thursday for the August meeting of River Valley Women's Institute at which 20 members attended. The centre was decorated with several bouquets of garden flowers.

The program was centred on industries in Hastings County and Miss Alice Heaman as convener arranged a very interesting contest using jumbled names of 10 industries in the county, chosen from Stirling, Marmora, Madoc, Belleville, Trenton, Tweed, Corbyville, Point Anne and River Valley.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a report and demonstration on the Bethlehem Steel Mine in Marmora. She showed the samples of iron ore and explained where it is shipped. Mrs. MacMullen also gave a descriptive account of this mine from it's beginning in 1950 when the diamond drilling began. About 22 million tons of rock were removed to create a pit roughly a half mile long, a quarter mile wide and about 130 feet deep.

Mrs. MacMullen described how the crushing rock goes into pellets. There are 350 men employed at this mine.

In closing, Mrs. MacMullen informed the group that everyone shares a common interest in an iron ore mine which is the base of all products such as: automobiles, nails, refrigerators, safety pins, and bridges.

Miss Heaman thanked Mrs. MacMullen for her informative message.

Mrs. George Grills was in charge of the regular meeting. Reports were given by Mrs. Gerald Brooks, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe, Mrs. Vernon Harris and Mrs. Ernest Corr.

The public relations officer displayed pictures of the new regents handiwork.

Curator, Mrs. Roy Bush asked for one historical item in written form for the next meeting.

The ACWW convener read an article on the Royal Commonwealth Society and their work to combat child blindness caused by malnutrition. The children's eyes can be saved if they had one gopful of green vegetables daily.

Glenn Bush entertained the Friendship Pennies.

Mrs. Glenn Bush, convener for the swimming project reported 43 children were transported by bus to Belleville. The institute and parents of the children joined efforts and paid for the bus transportation and the use of the pool.

The September meeting will be held at the centre and Robert Reid, a barrister in Belleville will be the guest speaker.

During the social hour, refreshments were served.

Midday Nap Eases Mental Tensions

By DORIS CLARK

Even worse than the drug habit is the work habit, Doris. For us it seems so right and proper to be busy in a dozen directions, but I have seen too many cases of mental exhaustion. If appears In my own family (not in me on account of, I am basically lazy and also I can get a laugh out of my own idiot gyrations), but — really very serious."

So says Bob Ludwig, a people-person if there ever was one. I heartily agree with him.

Far too many of our fine Canadian businessmen are succumbing to heart attacks — the culmination of years of hard work, high tensions and accompanying anxiety.

Such men need to learn that there is no personality in trying to occupy every minute of a 13-hour day. Ideally, they need to rig up a makeshift couch for a midday nap to let down the tensions. If that does not manage that, they should walk away from their over-loaded desks and take a walk around the block, say halfway through the morning or afternoon.

As any doctor if he doesn't agree with me.

Dear Doris: What makes a woman unhappy when she has a good husband? Could it be that she could marry a man only to find out she doesn't love him.

I cannot make up my mind to leave my husband because it would make me feel too sorry for him. He loves me very much and I know it; but I can't love him.

It is not a matter of another man; it is only that I would like to live on my own and be free for a change. — Very Unhappy.

Dear Unhappy: I expect there are hundreds of marriage partners, somewhere in man, sometimes a man, who feel about live you do too and their mate. Usually one is always result in a mutually deepening hurt.

Now laws make it possible to divorce for other grounds than adultery and if you are sufficiently unhappy you can raise the question of separation. After three years apart, if you both agree to it, a divorce can be obtained.

It could just happen, of course, that once you are free you will find yourself lonely and wanting to go back to your faithful partner, even though you cannot entirely return his great affection for you. Going it alone has its drawbacks.

But it takes maturity, intestinal fortitude and the ability to give kindness, to make something of a situation which was not, in the first place, very rewarding. Think it over before you desert your living mate.

Dear Doris: When I read about the girl 13 whose father was very busy, it made sorry for her. She said she had to keep things going and that she washed clothes by hand. If it makes her feel any better I did the same thing on a farm, at 12 years of age.

When I was that age I had no way of joining anything. I was up at five in the morning and on the land. At 16 I could hitch a pair of horses, and harrow the ground.

At that time there was no check-up if you were not in school but I read every paper I could get my hands on and got my education from that.— Now Sixty-three.

Dear Sixty-Three; Misery loves company. Perhaps what you have said will encourage the 14-year-old.

Your story is just one evidence of the tremendous changes that have happened— for most of us — in the past few decades.

To judge by your writing, spelling and your ability to express yourself, I'd say that self-education works — if a person is eager enough to learn.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is sit out for a kid who can't draw?

NO, Too many times a parent or teacher will discourage a child if the only thing he can draw is his breath. All right, the youngster is not going to be a Whistler or a Pollock. That doesn't mean he lacks creative talent in other areas of art or art appreciation. When a child does turn completely away from any interest at all in the field, it is almost a sure bet that he has sensed that because he can't draw he is a disappointment to somebody.

Can fantastic luck wipe out doubt?

FERRAGAMO, the shock of winning a fabulous lottery prize—or some other overwhelming windfall—may be enough to minimize a person's self-doubt. Unfortunately, most self-doubts stem from an individual's conception of his personal deficiencies, not his lack of material resources. Once the shock of having such good luck is over, the doubts are almost sure to come back. If they do, they can be more devastating than they were before.

Must a marital fight run its course?

A SERIOUS battle between a husband and wife should—possibly with the help of professional guidance—have all the issues brought out, since they might crop up again and again. That doesn't mean a husband and wife should go on fighting until everything is settled. Of course, not; the husband and wife should make every effort to reduce the hostility. There's nothing like sensibly working out the knotty issues of a squabble.

Ann Landers

Breast Feeding Another's Child?

Dear Ann Landers: If you think you've heard everything, you're in for a shock. This has got to be a first for your column.

A friend of mine has just succeeded in adopting a child. She and her husband have been on every waiting list imaginable for six years. They brought the baby boy home from the hospital last Sunday. Today I went to visit her. When I arrived, she said, "Oh—you're just in time for Billy's feeding." With that she went to the nursery, brought back this darling infant and proceeded to go through the motions of breastfeeding him. I thought I was seeing things because I know perfectly well that it is not possible for a mother who has adopted a child. Of course, I sat there dumbfounded and finally I said: "How do you know when the baby is finished". She replied: "I watch the clock. The doctor says 15 minutes and no more."

I'm beginning to doubt my eyes sanity, Ann. Does this woman have a screw loose? If so, what with her doctor? Can it be that I am mistaken? Please settle this. I think I'm —Cracking Up

Dear Cracking: No, you are not mistaken. The woman does indeed have a screw loose. Her doctor is undoubtedly pacifying her.

I hope for the baby's sake that she is giving the child supplemental feedings because he is not getting any nourishment from her.

Dear Ann Landers: Are ulcers hereditary? I say no. My sister says yes. As proof, she points to my grandfather who died from ulcers, our dad and two uncles who now have ulcers, and four cousins with ulcers. My sister has stomach trouble—and says she is expecting an ulcer any minute because it runs in the family.

Please check around and let us know who is right—I Hate Medicine

Dear I.H.M.: The reason certain illnesses seem to run in families is because parents often pass on to children a tendency toward specific organic weaknesses.

The psychological aspect is an equally important factor in good health—or the lack of it. Children frequently take on the physical complaints of their parents. This is especially true of migraine headaches, stomach trouble and back problems. The mother who lies down during the day because she doesn't feel well has a good chance of producing children who will do the same. It is a learned response to anxiety and pressure.

Parents can do their children a big favor by eliminating the following sentences from daily conversation: (a) "I have a headache." (b) "My stomach is upset." (c) "I don't feel well." etc. If and when they have a physical complaint, they should keep it to themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: My dear sister lost her husband to cancer. She had her children late in life and now she must go out and make a living. Unfortunately, she looks every day of her 52 years. I've urged her to get a face-lift. Will you recommend a doctor in Phoenix? I've seen some lifts that were loose and I'd feel terrible if my sister had one on my say-so and was ruined. Thank you for your help.—Hopeful

Dear Hope: You thanked me too soon. I am not going to make any recommendations. The success of a face-lift depends on many factors, in addition to the skill of the surgeon —for example, the texture of the skin, the amount of work that needs to be done, the kind of expectations of the patient. (Is she hoping for a miracle?) Your sister should consult her family physician.

Tourist Trade Booms

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's tourist trade, increasing about 10 per cent annually, is expected to hit the $100-million mark within two years.

Last year's contribution to the provincial economy by tourists from mainland Canada, the United States and other parts of the world was approximately $77 million compared with $70 million for the 1970 season. Based on a 10-per-cent annual increase the 1972 contribution may exceed $84 million.

The 1972 season got off to an early start and is expected to be a record one for visitors to Newfoundland. Figures for May, according to Rupert J. Tingley, Newfoundland area manager for Canadian National, showed a 13-per-cent increase in passengers on the North Sydney, N.S.-Port aux Basques, Nfld., service over the same month last year.

The early start and increased traffic is credited to CN's new information program in mainland Canada and the eastern United States, which aims at more accurate informa on about travel facilities available to tourists who plan to visit Newfoundland.

This reason CN ferries provide four sailings each weekday from North Sydney and Port aux Basques. On Saturday and Sunday there are five sailings each day.

The Ambrose Shea provides three round trips a week from June 14 to Oct. 2 between North Sydney and Argentia on the Avalon Peninsula of Newfoundland. It's an 18-hour, open-sea cruise.

CN also operates a number of coastal vessels transporting people and freight to ports on the island and in Labrador, including two weekly trips in the French Island of St. Pierre Miquelon just off the Burin Peninsula.

The North Sydney-Port aux Basques service continues at reduced frequency during the winter but local traffic to northern Newfoundland and Labrador is usually dropped about the end of December due to ice conditions. Service along the south coast—Argentia to Port aux Basques—continues all year round.

Mr. Tingley said: "CN is prepared to cope with an increase in passengers and vehicles. New facilities have been added at Port aux Basques and North Sydney and with an increased number of sailings CN has provided a 25-per-cent increase in capacity on that run."

E. P. Henley, Newfoundland director of tourist development, has expressed concern that there may be a shortage of tourist accommodation this year.

"Last year, with some 180,000 tourists visiting the province, all but 20 of the licensed establishments on the island had extremely high occupancy rates during the summer months and there is need for more motels, motels, tourist homes and cabins."

Broadbent and McGrath Hit Regional Program

OTTAWA (CP) — The leading opposition critics of the government's regional expansion policy renewed their attacks Wednesday, one calling for the resignation of Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand and the other urging a royal commission loquiry into the department.

New Democrat Edward Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) and Conservative James McGrath (St. John's East) were reacting to publication of a purported secret government document which called for close examination of grants to private industry by the regional expansion department.

Mr. Broadbent renewed his charge that much of the $500 million the department spends a year simply provide windfall profits for large firms without creating the jobs that are the purpose of the grants.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau should fire Mr. Marchand if the minister does not quit voluntarily.

Mr. McGrath said in a press release that the department's operations should be studied by a three-man royal commission.

Both said the secret memo tended to confirm the criticisms of the regional expansion program levelled by economist David Springate, a Canadian at Harvard University.

Mr. Springate told the Commons regional expansion committee May 23 that his studies indicate that many grants go to firms that would have settled in the slow-growth areas without the lure of subsidies.

In effect, the grants were windfall profits.

The memo-dated May 15—was written by J. H. Lynn, a senior policy analyst in the treasury board, to M. R. Dennis, a director of effectiveness projects in the treasury board.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury issued a press release later Wednesday saying the memo "simply summarizes a thesis dealing with the regional economic expansion incentives written by Dr. David Springate."

He noted that Mr. Marchand had three criticisms of the thesis when it was presented to the Commons committee: The small sample—31 of 1,600 firms getting grants—lack "of any scientific basis for selecting the sample," and the subjective character of the interviews Dr. Springate made.

Lazy Worker Makes Refund

TORONTO (CP) — Officials in the federal tax department found out Wednesday that the work ethic isn't dead after all.

They got a report from the co-ordinator of a $3,500 Local Initiatives Project grant to renovate the local arena in Listowel, Ont., 50 miles north of Kitchener, who received the following letter:

"I recently worked for you at the Listowel arena. During that time I was a rather lazy worker. I feel I cheated you by not working harder. I am very sorry for not having worked harder."

And to show how sorry he was, the former employee enclosed a $10 refund.

Welland Canal Soon Obsolete

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — About 200 invited guests attending ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of the Welland Canal were told Wednesday that the waterway would soon be obsolete.

Dr. Pierre Camu, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority told ship owners, industrialists and government representatives that by 1985 "the present facilities may no longer be able to provide adequate service."

Indian Parley Split

EDMONTON (CP) — While George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, was calling for co-operation among Indian organizations Wednesday, Manitoba delegates were walking out of the conference.

The decision by the eight-member Manitoba delegation to leave the meeting came as a surprise to the 56 delegates representing 270,000 Canadian Indians. Joe Anderson announced his group was pulling out, but didn't give a clear reason for the move.

Mr. Manuel asked Manitoba to reconsider, saying: "The only way we can overcome our differences is to talk." But about an hour later the delegates checked out of their hotel, indicating they wouldn't be back for today's final session of the three-day meeting.

Mr. Anderson had mentioned responsibilities the group had to Manitoba, but Mr. Manuel suggested the action was prompted by the refusal of other delegations to support Manitoba on several issues.

Mr. Manuel said Manitoba delegates wanted some of the discussions to be held in private and they were not happy with a brotherhood committee established to discuss Indian affairs with the federal cabinet.

Lack of support on economic development recommendations also may have led to the walk out, Mr. Manuel said.

Manitoba pressed for a resolution Tuesday calling on Indians to work with the private sector, but discussion was adjourned before any resolutions were adopted.

Before Manitoba's walkout, most of the discussion centred on a proposed taxation policy and the status of Indian women who marry non-Indians.

Provincial and territorial organizations will be encouraged to resist all forms of taxation.

The 56 delegates—from all territories and provinces except Newfoundland—decided to look into implications of a court case involving the marriage of an Indian woman to a non-Indian.

The federal Court of Appeals has ruled in a case involving Jeanette Corbiere-Lavell, an Ojibwa Indian, that Indian women who marry non-Indian males should not lose their rights as Indians.

Alberta Premier Promises To Give Support to Quebec

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed Wednesday pledged to stand with Quebec in relations with Ottawa so that "French Canada is never again isolated."

The premier was commenting in an interview on last week's provincial prime ministers' meeting in Halifax.

Quebec had stood alone many times in the past.

"In the future this will not happen," said Mr. Lougheed.

Either Alberta or Ontario must stand with Quebec so it is not left alone "even if we do not wholeheartedly support Quebec."

On the division of federal and provincial responsibilities, Mr. Lougheed said the conference showed there is a concensus among the provinces for greater equality with Ottawa—a position enunciated by the Lougheed government after it took office last September.

"What Alberta and other provinces, primarily the Prairie provinces and Ontario, want is more equality and freedom of movement," said the premier. "I can see Ottawa in trouble if it has a minority government and is faced with collective provincial stands."

The stand of the provinces, Mr. Lougheed says, is not anti-federalism, but rather a return to classic division of federal and provincial responsibilities.

Premier Lougheed said the role of the next federal-provincial constitutional conference depends on Premier Bourassa of Quebec who had told the premiers there will be no such conference until after the federal election.

Landerville Seeks to Quash Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Leo Landerville, 62, a former Ontario Supreme Court justice and mayor of Sudbury, is seeking to have quashed the inquiry which cost him his position on the bench.

His lawyers have filed a writ in the Ontario Supreme Court office here asking the court for a "declaration that an inquiry carried out by the Hon. Ivan C. Rand was not duly authorized by law."

The writ also asks for the "quashing of the report of the said inquiry dated 11 of August, 1965."

Mr. Rand, former Supreme Court of Canada justice, found that Landerville made a $117,000 profit in 1957-when he sold Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. shares he had received for nothing, that he had helped NONG get the Sudbury gas franchise while he was mayor, that by city in 1966, that the deal had "odors of scandal" and that the judge was not fit to remain on the bench.

Landerville resigned from the Ontario Supreme Court June 8, 1967, just as the Senate was to begin a debate on an unprecedented motion to unseat him.

High court judges can be removed only by resolutions passed in both houses of Parliament.

Municipal Leaders Hopeful Of United Attack on Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Municipal leaders are banking heavily on the coming federal-provincial-municipal conference developing a united attack on urban problems.

Mayor D. G. Newman of Whitby, Ont., president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, Wednesday stressed the urgency of a united action by the three levels of government to deal with the plight of cities.

He told a news conference he took three years for representatives of the three levels of government to arrange a conference, to be held in Toronto Nov. 20-21. He hoped it wouldn't take another three years to work out solutions to urban problems.

The mayor was announcing appointment of Senator Carl Goldenberg of a Montreal labor lawyer, to be chairman of the two-day conference. The Liberal senator is a leading labor conciliator.

The conference agenda, announced in May, calls for discussion of priorities in urban problems such as housing, transportation and pollution.

There will also be discussion of the role of each level of government in dealing with these issues and an attempt to develop machinery for co-operation among federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Quebec Vegetable Crops Ruined

MONTREAL (CP) — About 60 per cent of the vegetable crop in the Eastern Townships and on the south shore of St. Lawrence River has been wiped out by this week's heavy rain, a farmers' association spokesman said here Wednesday.

"We have not had time as yet to estimate the full damage," said Maurice Guinois, president of the Montreal Regional Association of Market Gardeners.

"But I inspected the south shore . . . and the crops were devastated."

He estimated that $5 million worth of vegetable and hay crops have been ruined.

Mr. Guinois, whose association represents 500 of the region's 4,000 farmers, said he was confident that, with provincial assistance to the farmers, consumer vegetable prices would not increase.

Albert Allain, president of the Union of Catholic Farmers' said milk prices are expected to remain unchanged, despite heavy cattle feed losses. But he said fruit and vegetable prices could rise.

Mr. Guinois said that lettuce, tomatoes, potatoes and corn were among the most heavily damaged crops.

Mounties Deny Cuba Spies on PM

OTTAWA (CP) — If Cuban spies ever tried to infiltrate the office of Prime Minister Trudeau, they didn't make it, the RCMP said Wednesday.

RCMP Commissioner W. L. Higgitt said there is no grounds for any allegation that the Trudeau office was infiltrated by Cuban agents.

The Toronto Star last June quoted Orlando Castro Hidalgo, described as a former Cuban spy who moved to the United States, as saying Cuba in intelligence was trying to infiltrate Mr. Trudeau's office and had set up a network of agents in Quebec.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons at the time that any "serious allegations" of such activity would be investigated.

Commissioner Higgitt said Wednesday the allegations had proved groundless but the matter will be kept on file in case further information should emerge.

Jury Kept On Standby

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon Papers trial jury was ordered Wednesday to remain on call indefinitely to Judge Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo on espionage-conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, rejecting a last-minute defence move to have a mistrial declared, told the 12 jurors and six alternates to insulate themselves from exposure to publicity on the case and remain a jury-in-waiting for at least two months, perhaps longer.

Byrne said jurors, allowed meanwhile to go home or return to their jobs, could anticipate a trip to court in mid-October, either for trial or further instructions.

Lawyers told the judge that in "an exhaustive search" they could find no legal precedence for the jury's strange status.

Two Flee From Jail

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Two men police said they believed were armed and dangerous escaped from jail here Wednesday night.

The men are Roger Carver, 24, of Ottawa and Douglas Bell, 25, of Brockville.

The pair made their escape in a car owned by one of the jail guards.

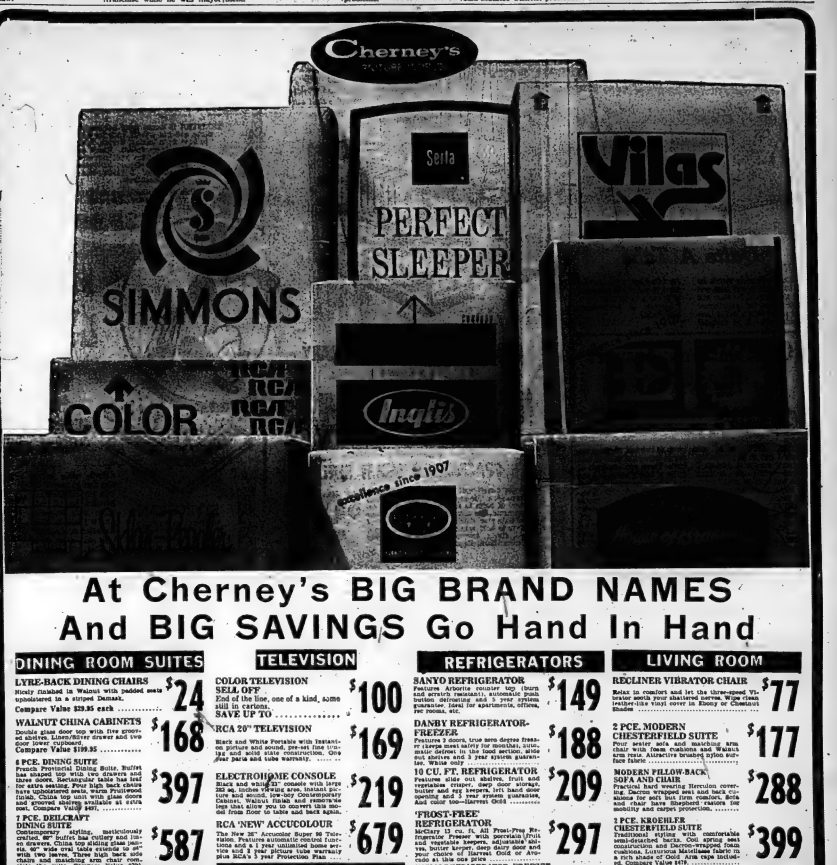
Carver had been arrested Monday on an armed robbery charge and was awaiting trial.

Bell was serving a two-year sentence for a series of breaks-in in the Brockville area.

Police said they believe the men are armed with hand guns.

Liberals Weak In Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes Jean Marchand, regional economic examination minister, as saying that Ontario is the "weak corner" for the Liberal party in the next federal election.



In a Quebec City story, the newspaper says the minister said in an interview Wednesday that if the Liberals lose seats in the province it will be to the Conservative Party.

"It's normal," Mr. Marchand is quoted as saying. "It's because of our policies—bilingualism and regional development which favor everybody except Ontario."

"In Toronto, I have the impression that they say: 'That damned government exploits us'."

Autonomy Urged

MIAMI (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis called on American labor unions Thursday to help promote autonomy of United States-based unions in Canada and to oppose restrictionist trade policies at home.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Please tell me where I can go to escape the ragweed season in August. I intend taking my holidays then and want to spend them in some place where I can get relief.

ANSWER: Ragweed victims should go north for relief in Ontario. Life gets more bearable from Parry Sound northward. For long-distance travellers, British Columbia is an ideal retreat, as are Banff and Jasper in Alberta and Prince Edward Island. Actually, the Maritimes in general offer a haven to hay fever sufferers.

QUESTION: We are driving out to Yellowstone Park, Wyoming, at the end of August. Please tell us the distance, main attractions and a good fast route.

ANSWER: More than two million people a year visit this famous park. It is a place where the earth bubbles, hisses and spouts and where you can come almost within touch of bear, elk, buffalo, moose, antelope, bighorn sheep and, if you are lucky, sight the almost extinct trumpeter swan. There are some 500 bears that sit by the roads waiting for some tourists to come along with food such as cookies or bananas. But feeding the animals is forbidden by the Park Ranger.

There are 10,000 geysers spouting freely in the 3,472 scattered about the 2,400 square miles of Yellowstone Park. Old Faithful is the star of the show. It is not the highest geyser in the Park, but it is the most reliable. It blasts off about every half hour to an hour. The longer the wait between eruptions, the mightier the blast and the longer it lasts. Old Faithful generally sends a stream of boiling water 130 feet in the air for about five minutes.

The Norris Basin Thermal area is a must for visitors. Here, a network of boardwalks takes you across a steaming science-fiction type landscape where the earth bubbles and belches and vapors rise up around you.

There are some 440 miles of trout streams in the Park and you don't need a fishing license. The daily allowable catch is two and anything under 14 inches has to be thrown back. There are hundreds of miles of hiking trails, but you tire easily as most of Yellowstone is a mile high. A visit with only a day or two to see Yellowstone can usually do so by following the 142-mile Grand Loop Road through the park. It includes the major thermal features and the Grand Canyon of Yellowstone, a magnificent gorge with a 308-foot waterfall.

Yellowstone has an assortment of lodges, cabins and inns and more than a dozen campgrounds. They are often packed in summer, so it is best to make a reservation if you want accommodation in any of the lodges or cabins. Family cabins, suitable for four persons, rent for $15 a day and there are plenty of motels along the roads leading to the Park. The main inns are about $15 a day, double occupancy. This is not a summer resort in the ordinary sense. Communing with nature and the beautiful scenery and wildlife are the attractions. There are no swimming pools and the lakes are frigid.

A fast route is to take Hwy. 401 to Windsor, No. 3 via the bridge to Detroit, Interstate pass Chicago on No. 94 Tollway, then go by Interstate 80 to Omaha, Nebraska, take Interstate 29 to Sioux Falls, S.D., and from there Interstate 90 and Route 16 will Parry. The mileage from Belleville is 2,200 miles.

Argo Hemmed In

Jimmy Dye (10) and Gene Mach (78) of Toronto Argonauts start after Bruce Van Ness (30) of Montreal Alouettes as he attempts to break through the Argo line during Canadian Football League action in Toronto Thursday night. Als won and Argos retained their winless streak with a 15-6 loss in Regina last night. (CP) Photo)

Kosmos Still Searching for Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Mark Kosmos, outstanding linebacker with Montreal Alouettes last season, is wondering if he'll ever play football again.

The Eastern Football Conference's nominee for lineman of the year in 1971 was given his release by Hamilton Tiger-Cats after being claimed on waivers from Montreal, but he feels he still has something to prove in football.

"It's just a matter of sitting around waiting for something to break open as the season goes along," he said in an interview here.

For Kosmos, returning to football is not primarily a financial consideration. He is secure in a position with Volume Sales, a furniture company which would like to retain his services.

"I've offered this boy almost twice as much money a year as the Alouettes if he'll stay with us," said Louis Stoll, Kosmos' boss with the furniture company. "That's what we think of him around here.

"He doesn't need that bush league football and front office stuff that's going on around here this year. He's going to do just fine. He ought to tell them where to go."

Kosmos says money wasn't the main issue in his negotiations with the Alouettes. He wanted security with the team so he could remain with the furniture company in Montreal.

"I can't have these people investing all sorts of money in my training and then just get up and walk out on one day's notice.

"And money never was much of a problem with us. All I wanted was some security. The first thing I asked for was $3,000 guaranteed for each year of a three-year contract.

"They (the Alouettes) said no. So I cut the offer to $3,000 each year. They said no again. Then I asked for $2,000 a year. And again they said no.

Evert Advances

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Chris Everts the teen-age sensation from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., reached the women's quarter-finals of the U.S. Open clay court tennis tournament Wednesday with a 6-3, 6-0 victory over Corinne Molesworth of Britain.

Miss Evert, 17, seeded second behind Australia's Evonne Goolagong, double - faulted four times in the first set and had her service broken twice. But after each service break, she came back and broke Miss Molesworth service on the next game.

Argos' Record Kept Intact

REGINA (CP) — George Reed was the spirit Wednesday that enabled Saskatchewan Roughriders to maintain their Taylor field curse," an affliction suffered by Toronto Argonauts for some time.

He rushed for 129 of Saskatchewan's 196 yards on the ground and led the previously winless Roughies to a 15-6 victory over the bewitched Argonauts.

The loss left the Argos the only Canadian Football League club without a win in the 1972 regular season. Also, they have not won at Taylor field since CFL interlocking play began in 1961.

Both teams remain at the bottom of the standings in their conferences and both are injury-ridden. Saskatchewan is without veteran Nolan Bailey, Gig Perez and Ted Duchinski, and Toronto is without first-string quarterback Joe Theismann, sidelined six weeks with a leg fracture.

Second-string quarterback Greg Barton called the signals for Toronto but was good on only 14 of 29 passes and had three intercepted.

It was Reed's rushing, however, that ruled the game. Reed made 25 drives, including a second-quarter touchdown from three yards out.

The scoring started at 3:40 of the first quarter when Zenon Andrusyshyn of Toronto kicked a 27-yard field goal and Saskatchewan made it 3-1 on a single at 11:34 as Elmar Sprovis conceded a point.

The Argos got their last three points of the night at 14:58 of the second quarter on a 19-yard field goal by Andrusyshyn.

The third quarter was tough and scoreless.

Bobbie Thompson got the last touchdown after receiving a 46-yard pass from Lancaster.

Jack Abendschan converted both Regina touchdowns.

Andrusyshyn showed his worth in third-down punting with an average yargage of 47.3 yards on 10 Toronto punts. Bob Learon of Saskatchewan had nine, punt for an average of 38.8 yards.

Pearce also was Lancaster's prime receiver, although passing was not the major factor in Saskatchewan offence. Pearce caught four passes for 37 yards while Thompson got two for 48 yards, Gordie Barwell two for 29 and Reed two for 16.

Reed's touchdown moved him into a four-way tie for third place in the Western Conference individual scoring race with 12 points.

Top rusher for the Argos was Leon McQuay with 43 yards on 11 carries. They had a total of 79 yards rushing.

Barton's favorite passing target was Mike Eben, successful six times for a total of 74 yards while he tagged Eric Allan five times for 67 yards.

Chuvalo Some Welcome Mat

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

"To say the least, it's a bit of a comedown.

After all, one's just experienced the holiday thrill of bringing Ernest Hemingway to life by witnessing Barcelona bullfights, and been caught up in the ever - controversial British sports scene.

George Chuvalo versus somebody named Tommy Burns, presumably — but not necessarily — another master of the noble art of making people bear - bells when they aren't always ringing.

Actually, Chuvalo's tenure as Canadian heavyweight boxing champion — no less, and definitely no more — has left the Toronto pugilist the setting image of some fighters I watched a couple of Sunday afternoons ago. Only they had horns and were transformed into sausage within a few hours of defeat.

Chuvalo may be as thick-skulled and skinned, but, with every bout, assumes more vegetable than animal properties.

Chess — a slightly more cerebral recreation — has taken Europe by storm in the wake of the Fischer - Spassky classic in Iceland.

English manufacturers alone report sales of chess sets have tripled in recent months, and the battle of the board was Time magazine's lengthy cover and only sport story last week.

While we in North America are used to seeing athletes make Prime Ministers look like paupers, some British soccer observers are going berserk over a committee's plan to honor long-time great Bobby Charlton by giving him about $250,000 in proceeds from a special England vs. the World exhibition match.

Bobby Hull will sell that much popcorn per game playing for the World Hockey Association's Winnipeg Jets, but money isn't cheaper to eat than food in Manchester.

Charlton, 35, and one of the most prominent Football Association and all-England figures since joining the pro ranks 20 years ago, makes a basic 40-pounds ($100) for his weekly outing with Manchester United.

That's not a bad wage over 'one, and Charlton lives in a $75,000 dwelling, has numerous financial interests, and such side-earners going for him as weekly newspaper columns and advertising endorsements.

Critics are suggesting that organizers of the Bobby Charlton Day give all proceeds to a worthy charity, or even launch a fund to aid less financially fortunate athletes who hit the skids when their playing days are through.

British soccer writers are hasty to jump on the fact that the sport — by all counts the world's major crowd-pleaser — has become an Olympic farce.

Notes one biliter Brian about the upcoming Munich soccer "sideshow": "In 1972, no-one expects any team from outside Eastern Europe to take a medal.

"Because they refuse to recognize the existence of "professionalism", the communist countries insist that their teams are wholly amateur whereas they are usually composed of players given army commissions so that they can pursue football full-time." Sound familiar, hockey fans?

Commenting on the 83 - year-old Brundage's announced marital plans, one English writer wryly noted: "Mr. Brundage is of course, aware that the important thing is not winning but taking part!"

Ryun, whom many figure may be the pick of the 1500-metre litter at Munich after a psychological comeback to his world-record (3:31.1) form of 1967, makes his living as a professional photographer.

But Olympic regulations restrict Ryun from selling a single glossy of — you guessed it — any athletic competition!

Juniors Join Winning Ranks

So far so good for Belleville's OASA entries — and so far it's been great for the Richard Ellis Juniors.

The Juniors joined the ranks of the Mead Johnson squirts and the BACO midgets as OASA winners Wednesday night by hammering Cobourg 16-3 in the opening game of the Junior A best - of - three series.

The usually weak - hitting Ellis crew reversed form and raked a trio of Cobourg pitchers for 19 hits in taking vengeance for an earlier 8-3 exhibition loss. Behind 3-0 going into the third inning, the home team pulled out the lumber and toppled the rival from last year's all-Ontario Junior B champions.

Peter Stalkovich wore a groove around the basepath for the Printers with two two-run homers, a triple and a pair of singles in his first game in two weeks.

Pitcher Ron Hill jumped on the Junior hitting wagon with two singles and a triple off the right field fence. Terry Pope snapped a trio of singles. Glenn Carleton a pair of safeties, Rick Graham and Terry Meagher a double and single each and Dale Akey, Brian Garrioy and John Romano a single apiece.

Hill was greeted by a single and triple in the first inning and a pair of doubles in the second which produced three runs for Cobourg but the left-hander closed the door on the visitors the rest of the way firing three-hit ball over the final seven frames. Hill managed only two strikeouts but near perfect support from behind produced the Juniors opening - round victory, only their third in 27 league, tournament and exhibition games this year.

Wayne Helps had two singles and a double for Cobourg and Al Burnham a triple and single. Ed Krywionik started for the visitors and was followed by Craig Craig and Al Fenton.

The Ellis Juniors hope to make it two in a row when the second game of the series begins Saturday evening at 8 p.m. in Cobourg.

Fullback Plunge?

Peter Stalkovich's high school football training returned to him during this play in Wednesday night's OASA Junior A first-round contest between the Belleville Ellis Juniors and Cobourg. Peter made like a fullback to beat the throw to Cobourg catcher Steve Bradford on his second home run of the night. Pete pounded two circuit blasts, a triple and two singles to lead the Printers to a 16-3 victory and a 1-0 lead in the best - of - three series.

Howard 19th

Jeff Howard was in the swing of things at the Canadian Amateur golf championship Wednesday.

The Trenton golfer carded an 82 to rank 19th among Ontario golfers competing in the event. A top scorer last winter with the Belleville Bobcats, the versatile athlete carded 40-42 to trail the first-round leader by 20 strokes.

Consecon Keeps Coming

Consecon's last month drive which carried them into the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League play-offs has run over into their semi-final series with Wanamaker and Boily Stables.

Consecon nipped the Stables 4-2 Wednesday night to take a 2-0 straight-hold in the best-of-five series. Belleville and the Junior Farmers are tied 1-1 in the other play-off semi.

Art Keller fired the win for the fourth spot finishers from Consecon, allowing six hits and fanning five. He aided a pair of hits to Steve Tripp trio of safeties for the only hits managed by the winners.

Gary Eardley lasted six innings for the Stables allowing three runs on three hits. Earl Colton finished up in the seventh. Ed Callow smashed a pair of hits to lead league runner-ups W. AND B.

Carlton Wins 13th Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates had nothing but praise for Steve Carlton, Philadelphia Phillies' veteran left-hander, after he blanked the powerful Pirates on a three-hitter Wednesday night.

"He was overpowering," shouted "A ball a pitcher." "He's a machine."

The superlatives came after Carlton struck out 11 batters to lead the Phillies to a 2-0 victory over the Pirates. The victory was his 13th straight and it raised his record to 18, best in the National League.

Elsewhere in the league, Atlanta Braves blanked Houston Astros 6-0, San Diego Padres beat San Francisco Giants 3-2, Montreal Expos defeated Chicago Cubs 8-2, Cincinnati Reds turned back Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3 and New York Mets trounced St. Louis Cardinals 8-3.

Besides his fine pitching, Carlton also hit his first home run of the season and fourth in his major league career.

"I just can't believe anyone can pitch better than he has," Phils' manager Paul Owens said after Carlton extended to 34 his string of innings without allowing an earned run. "And he's a competitor. You give him a run or two early and he really gets tough."

Felix Millan drove in two runs for the Braves with a single and a sacrifice fly but it was Hank Aaron and George Stone who starred against the Astros.

Aaron belted his 22rd homer of the season, a two-run shot in the first inning that gave him 303 for his career, just 22 homers short of Babe Ruth's all-time record. And Stone made the runs stand up with a six-hitter.

Mike Jorgensen and Ron Fairly drove in two runs apiece for the Expos, who broke open their tight game against the Cubs with a five-run ninth inning.

Montreal reliever Mike Marshall, picking up his 10th victory, wrecked Chicago's bid to blow the game apart, coming on in the seventh with two of the bases loaded, nobody out and the score tied.

Yaz Trips Turmoil

BOSTON (CP) — Carl Yastrzemski, Boston Red Sox' superstar left fielder, left the lineup after grounding into two double plays Wednesday while caught in the midst of another internal controversy.

Yaz, working on a three-year contract paying him $165,000 a season, reported to Fairway Park about half an hour before the start of a game with Cleveland Indians.

He missed a team meeting behind barred doors, as the Red Sox presumably tried to clear the air among themselves in the wake of rookie catcher Carlton Fisk's charges that the team was failing to get leadership from Yaz and Reggie Smith.

Yaz took his usual spot in left field against the Indians. Facing right-hander, Gaylord Perry he grounded into double plays in the first and third innings, and was slow in running to first each time.

He was replaced at the start of the fourth. The Red Sox later announced that Yaz was suffering from an intestinal virus and that he was ordered to remain home in bed until the Red Sox leave on a round trip Friday.

Roberts Celebrates

CALGARY (CP) — Kelly Roberts of London, Ont., celebrated his birthday Wednesday by taking a share of second place in the Canadian amateur golf championship.

But the top prize of the day went to Pierre Lessard of Shawbreaker, Que., alone in first place with a three-under par 68 and a one-stroke lead.

Roberts, 19, was tied with defending champion Dick Siderowf of Easton, Conn., and Keith Alexander of Calgary who won the event in 1962.

Ontario Ahead

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gayle Borthwick and Gail Moore sparked a rivalry Wednesday between Ontario and British Columbia in two separate events during the first round of the Canadian women's amateur golf championships.

Ontario, led by Mrs. Borthwick's par 73, took a five-stroke lead over British Columbia in the first round of the 36-hole interprovincial team championship. But the Mississauga Golfmaker was forced to share the lead in the women's individual championship, being played simultaneously at the Nakina Country Club when Mrs. Moore of Coquitlam also fired par 73.

Quebec Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Quebec, seeking its fourth straight victory, emerged with a 5½ advantage over Ontario Wednesday in the opening stages of the interprovincial junior team golf matches.

Wood Moves Sox Closer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California Angels tried to put the knock on Wilbur Wood Wednesday night, but the Chicago White Sox knuckle-baller turned the tables and delivered a sharp rap of his own.

Wood outbuffed California's Nolan Ryan 1-0, singled home the only run of the game and threw the race in the American League West into a turmoil.

The White Sox, six games out as recently as a week ago, climbed within one game of the one-time runaway Oakland Athletics who lost to Kansas City Royals 5-2.

Chicago, without a hit against Ryan until the seventh inning, broke through with two out in the seventh. Ed Herrmann singled and Ryan wild-pitched him to second. The Angels then decided to walk Luis Alvarado to get to Wood but the left-hander lined an opposite-field single inside the right field line.

Kingston to Be Sailing Capital

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Kingston is on its way to becoming the sailing capital of the world, with the announcement that it will be the site of the sailing section of the 1976 Olympic Games.

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal made the announcement in Kingston Wednesday that the yachting events would be the Olympics, scheduled for late August, 1976.

Staging the sailing events will cost about $5,381,173 with all except $500,000 probably being paid by the provincial and federal governments.

In return for the $500,000 investment, money already earmarked for capital investment in sewers and street improvements, Kingston will get more than $2 million in new recreational and marina facilities and $1 million in harbor development.

The success of CORK (Canadian Olympic training Regatta, Kingston) is the reason the Olympics are coming to Kingston, officials of the Canadian Yachting Association said.

Through CORK, says CYA director Bill Cox of Toronto, Kingston is recognized as one of the prime locations in the world for competitive sailing.

Location of the Olympic sailing events will be Cataraqui Harbor, immediately west of Kingston Penitentiary. A breakwater and dock to be constructed for the games will be taken over after by the city and turned into a public marina.

The Olympic host city must stage a pre-Olympic regatta the previous year. The number of people attending the pre-Olympic event is expected to exceed those at the 1976 competitions.

CYA officials calculate about $10 million will be dropped in Kingston during the training weeks beforehand and during the actual 10-day Olympic event. About 7,000 people are expected to be looking for beds and will be booked into motels and hotels up to 50 miles from Kingston.

Two of the six classes of boats that will be competing in the 1972 Olympics in Kiel, Germany, later this summer will be dropped by the time the competitors arrive in Kingston.

The trend today is to smaller, less expensive centre-board boats.

Paul Henderson of Toronto, Canada's voting representative of the International Yacht Racing Union says the working man is taking over competitive sailing.

"He is buying the cheaper centre-board boats," he says.

Four keel boats, Dragons, Stars, Solings and Tempests, make up the bulk of the current six Olympic classes. The other two are centreboard Finns and Flying Dutchmen.

Two centre-board boats are expected to be selected to replace two keel boats. Indications point to a decision being made among Fireballs, 470s, Snipes, OK Dinghys and Lasers.

Each of the 50 nations competing in Olympic sailing is allowed to enter one boat in each class, but not all countries are represented in every class. Canada has boats entered in all six classes in Kiel this summer and will continue the same policy in 1976.

Printers Move Out of Jam

The Intelligencer moved out of a jam and CNR moved into one in Industrial Softball League action last night.

The Intell who finished the season in a deadlock with the Belleville Leaders, downing the bankers 5-3 to take first place in the A division. CNR won a 8-0 forfeit over Utilities to tie Mead Johnson for top spot in the B division.

Ron Culloden spun a four-hitter for the Intell, striking out two batters and not walking a man. Wayne Casselman yielded eight hits for the Lenders striking out three and walking one batter.

Ron Post lined a two-run homer and a double to spark the papermen, while Gerry Genereaux smacked a double and single. For the losers, Paul Curle had a double and single.

CNR moved into a first place tie with Meads when Utilities failed to field nine players. The "B" division co-leaders will play off for the pennant tonight at 8.15 p.m. on the CNRA diamond.

TV Saved Movies' Bacon But Cost Proving Too High

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Changing habits of television viewers have endangered the golden bonanza that film companies have relied upon for financial health: The sale of theatrical features to the networks.

Several movie studios would have gone bankrupt in the last 15 years if television hadn't been paying millions for feature backlogs.

In the beginning, there were no features in network prime time. Then NBC took the plunge, and ABC and CBS followed, giving viewers movies every night of the week. Film studios delightedly watched the average price per feature rise from $300,000 to $800,000.

The recession has set in. Industry observers indicate most features now draw only 1700, 000, some as low as $650,000. The biggest blow is that networks are being selective in what they buy.

"They no longer will purchase any quality feature," Universal executive Jennings Lang says. They are interested in the kind of movie that is likely to make a good rating. And they are very interested in buying pictures after they have been made."

Previously, competition for features was so intense that studios could make deals for future productions. Thus an almost sure profit could be assured on a reasonably budgeted movie.

The networks have dropped such pre-production buys, having been stung too many times on features that turned out badly.

What has brought about the change in network feature-buying habits?

A glance at the audience ratings tells the story. During the 1971-72 season, a survey of 13 top-rated movies on the networks showed that only nine were theatrical films. All the rest were features made for television.

The highest-rated theatrical feature was Guess Who's Coming to Dinner, which placed 13th. The Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton version of Cleopatra, which cost ABC millions, rated only 25th.

The networks continue to pay high prices for movies which seem to have a high-rating capability. ABC recently bought up the seven James Bond movies made so far. One of them, Goldfinger, was reported to have sold for $2.5 million. Thus United Artists may have pieced up as much as $17.5 million for the entire package.

Big money also has been paid for such theatre blockbusters as Patton, Love Story, Planet of the Apes and Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid.

Tiptoe Together Again

HADDONFIELD, N.J. (Reuter) — Singer Tiny Tim and his wife, Miss Vicky, who separated last February, have patched up their differences, Miss Vicky's mother says.

Betty Buddinger said Thursday the falsetto-voiced Tiny Tim and Miss Vicky, formerly Victoria Buddinger, of Haddonfield, ended a three-month separation in May.

They left whose real name is Herbert Khoury, dropped his "stage name" and Miss Vicky discontinued her divorce proceedings.

The breakup occurred when Tiny Tim was reported to have objected to his wife's desire to embark on a modelling career. He also was said to have been unhappy about some revealing photographs of his wife that he found in their apartment.

Tiny Tim, 48, and Miss Vicky, 20, were married in December, 1969. They have a daughter, Tulip, 15 months old.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay this week rejected — at least for now — a proposal by some Broadway people that the city establish a legalized red-light district.

"That is a drastic suggestion and at some point it may deserve serious study," he said.

The performers had suggested that establishment of legal brothels might get prostitutes off the streets in the Times Square area.

The mayor said finding a precinct of the city to house the red light district was "perhaps insoluble."

Huck Bucks Wind To Win Invitational

KINGSTON — Bucking head winds and cool temperatures, Ambro Huck was still the class of the field in the Provincial Downs' Rupert Aylesworth Memorial Invitational Pace Wednesday night, winning the feature in 2:08.2.

It was the eighth win of the season for the pacer and boosted his earnings to $15,000 for the year. Canadian Killean came in second and Canal View Way showed.

Fireman Hanover returned to his winning ways by taking the second race in 2:10. Warrpike won the third, Drummond Song the fifth, Dominion Lad the sixth, Rideau Creed the seventh, John's Prince the eighth and John's Duke the tenth at the Kingston track's seventh night of racing.

Squirts Keep Pouring it On

The Mead Johnson squirts found time between OASA playdown action to wrap up their Belleville Minor Softball peewee house league quarter final series with Dale's Grocery last night with a 7-0 win.

The winners picked up all seven runs in the first two innings and coasted to the win. Andy Rosati smashed a circuit blast and Allan Brooks a triple for Meads who took the best of three series in straight games.

Barry Trim, Doug Jones and Dwight Begley each had two singles in Chase's losing effort.

Yardmen Tykes Edge Kingston

The Belleville Yardmen tykes led off their Eastern Ontario Baseball Association series with Kingston on the right foot Wednesday by edging the home team 11-10.

Brian Cronkright swelled the big Yardmen bat with two triples and a single while McTaggart had three base hits. For Kingston it was McGee and Bob Earl with two hits each. The second game of the series will be played at Pinkerdale tonight, beginning at 6 p.m.

University Teaching Situation Deplored

TORONTO (CP) — The teaching situation in Canadian universities "is an insult to the intelligence of Canadians," Ontario's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism was told Wednesday.

Speaking for the 85-per-cent-Canadian-quota campaign, Tom Clement, a student at York University, told Canadians hold less than half of the teaching positions in English-Canadian post-secondary institutions.

"The foreign invasion has been unbelievable," he said.

The 85-per-cent-Canadian quota campaign demands that federal and provincial governments pass legislation limiting the number of foreign nationals in a university to 15 per cent and that not more than one-quarter of the 15 per cent come from any one foreign country.

No Admirer

EDMONTON (CP) — Fred Plain, president of the Union of Ontario Indians, disagreed Wednesday with Canadian Indian leaders who gave Indian Affairs minister Jean Chretien a standing ovation Tuesday.

No Union

Equality

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A section in last month's amendments to the Criminal Code which brought the law one step closer to equality between the sexes got its first application in Windsor Wednesday when a man was arraigned in provincial court for soliciting for the purpose of prostitution.

Previously, only women could be arrested for that charge.

Bar Stays

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet refused Wednesday to rescind a regulation which will prevent Dominion Dairies Ltd. from using its non-returnable plastic milk jugs.

Flu Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government announced Wednesday development of a new kind of influenza vaccine which it said "holds future promise for the eventual control" of the widespread and sometimes deadly disease.

Blame Toothache

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Tess, the man-killing elephant, may have been provoked into its death-dealing charge on a trainer Friday by a toothache.

Expect Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A union executive said Wednesday night he is not optimistic that a settlement can be reached with the Toronto Transit Commission to avert a strike scheduled for midnight Sunday night.

More Elgible

TORONTO (CP) — About 2,000 Ontario post-secondary students became eligible for additional aid Wednesday as the province lowered the age of independence to 24 from 25.

It will particularly affect students from middle-and high-income families who received little or no government assistance until they turned 25 or married, no matter what actual help they received from their families.

Backs Nixon

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Former treasury Secretary John Connally, who was the only Democrat in President Nixon's cabinet, announced Wednesday he is forming a political committee of Democrats to help re-elect the president, a Republican, in November.

Need Entrances

TORONTO (CP) — An advisory committee has recommended that the Ontario government develop more entrances into Quetico Provincial Park to encourage its use by Canadians.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday August 11

Aries (March 21-April 19): Home and family pull you back to work as seeking must gets done. Don't try to get large deals going.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expect a slow morning. You may be able to do something significant for an older person. Activities requiring attention are preferable.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Clearing away long-standing limitations is your goal. Turn loose whatever has outlived its usefulness, clear your living space.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Getting in a mood is not the answer. Do the minimum essential on your routine work, take time out for meditation.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Friends are sensitive, expect more things than you'll likely to offer, so you can't win no matter how you do it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your sense of responsibility shows and may attract agreement where it fits in with your plans. Also sensitively making use of your mood.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pick the area of greatest need for practical consideration. Put your self into correcting neglect, completing stalled projects.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Calm down to cruising rate for a steady-paced, pleasant but relatively uneventful day. Finish your workweek carefully.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Early hours are favorable for working space, refining plans. Things open up later on.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This is an excellent time to review your progress, find any needed changes of direction, unburden yourself of futile endeavors.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish what you have started first, allowing for pauses. Educate younger ones but stay on your intended program. Safety pays off.

Thyroid Governs Output of Energy

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am being treated for an underactive thyroid and would like to know just what the thyroid is for and what harm it can do when it is underactive. — Mrs. K.

The thyroid gland, located in the neck, is most directly associated with your metabolism. Metabolism, to give you as simple a definition as I can, is the total process of making energy available for your body to use.

The gland governs this activity by producing thyroid hormone. There are, of course, other hormones, for other purposes, produced by other glands);

When the thyroid gland is underactive; it means that the body itself slows down. The patient with such trouble is lazy, slow moving and tires easily. The draft on the fire is low, so just by looking at a patient, to speak.

For outward signs, top great a lack of thyroid will result in the skin, absence of hair in the hair, in extreme cases loss of hair. For another example, women with underactive thyroid glands often have great difficulty in becoming pregnant.

These above are just some of the salient items involved, but actually you will have difficulty in finding any of the normal activities of the human system unaffected by a lack of adequate thyroid hormone.

The degree of thyroid activity, or lack of it, can vary tremendously—maybe seriously off, maybe only a little. In extreme cases it is sometimes possible, just by looking at a patient, to suspect strongly that the thyroid is at fault.

But in other cases, the patient may not feel ill but have some vague symptoms of tiring too easily, or picking up infections more readily than should be, or feeling tired down.

In such cases, metabolism can give an accurate picture of thyroid activity. Even rather slight medication often can afford a marked improvement in the way the patient feels.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife and I are both 74 and have been married 51 years. Until two years ago we always lived in a house. No trouble.

We bought a mobile home, and for the last eight months my wife has been getting a terrible headache, mostly at night. She has had x-rays and two doctors gave her pain pills which don't help.

I was wondering if the mobile home could cause it? Last winter we were in California and Colorado, and she never had a headache. Do you think climate could cause it? Or could it be our mattress and pillows, although these are the same ones we had when we lived in a house. Maybe you can suggest something. — J.M.M.

The one thing that occurs to me is that you may be accumulating traces of carbon monoxide, which can cause headaches but which is not lethal.

Some of these mobile homes are more tightly constructed than a house and if you use some sort of heater that isn't thoroughly vented, it can become monoxide.

Perhaps when you were in California you used the heater less, or perhaps had the bedroom window open. That would fit with what you've told me.

So check carefully as to heater venting and ventilation at night. And let me know if it bears any fruit.

Waves Are High

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — High winds along the eastern end of Lake Ontario drove waves as high as 12 feet crashing onto the New York shore Wednesday afternoon. Several boats were reported destroyed at docks in Sackets Harbor, police said.

The U.S. Coast Guard at Galloo Island reported that it clocked the winds at 40 knots at one point. It said it received no distress calls from boaters during the storm. East of Oswego, winds clocked at 40 miles an hour kicked up waves six to eight feet high.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

Opening lead — ace of hearts.

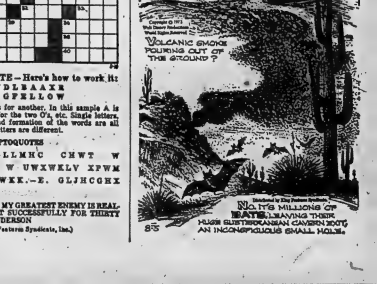
The Vienna Coup is an unblocking play that precedes the execution of a squeeze. It is not difficult play — all that declarer has to do is cash one particular high card before running his other winning tricks.

For example, take this deal which occurred in the match between the United States and the United Arab Republic in the 1960 world championship.

South was West. Zanarini and North was Georges Cress, both of Cairo. Norman Kay was his end I was East.

Kay led the ace and another heart, which Zanarini ruffed. He then cashed the A-K of trumps and ace of diamonds.

It was this cashing of the ace of diamonds that constituted the Vienna Coup. It was an absolute prerequisite to the squeeze that followed.



Zanarini next played three more rounds of trumps, producing this position:

North
West	East
♠ 9 10	♠ J 7 2
♥ J 7 5	♥ K
♦ —	♦ —
South
♥ Q 10

Now he led his last trump discarding the heart from dummy, and I was squeezed. I could not part with a spade, for that would make dummy's spades all tricks. So I discarded the king of diamonds, hoping Kay had the queen.

But Zanarini had the queen, which he cashed, and that was the end of that. The Egyptian pair scored 920 points as a result of the successful Vienna Coup.

Not only that, but it later developed that our teammates at the other table had played the hand in three notrump, that East had led a heart, and that they wound up going down one.

British Trawlers Arrested

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — The captains of three British trawlers are scheduled to appear in court here today on charges of fishing within the 12-mile Canadian coastal limit.

The trawlers Coriolanus and Cassio were arrested Tuesday night when they arrived here to take on supplies. A third vessel, the Defiance, faced similar action Wednesday morning on arrival in this western Newfoundland port.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries department said Wednesday the arrests resulted from an incident off the northwest coast of Newfoundland last week, when the three trawlers were spotted by an aerial patrol.

In addition to the charges of fishing inside territorial waters, RCMP said here today that Coriolanus and the Cassio had been penalized $100 each for customs violations.

A police spokesman said a quantity of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco had been found aboard the vessels.

He added that while the ships have been released from RCMP custody, charges may be laid against some crew members.

The Coriolanus and the Cassio are operated by Helyer Bros. Ltd. of Hull, England. The Defiance is owned by Northern Trawlers Ltd. of Grimsby, England.

Flooded Area Hit by Storms

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The weather system which devastated southeastern Quebec's farmlands early this week struck again Wednesday as hailstorms, rain and high winds brought goose blackouts to thousands of residents.

Sporadic blackouts lasting 10 minutes to six hours hit a 20-mile stretch from St. Casimir to Waterloo, near Granby, 50 miles east of Montreal. Boucherville and Chateauguay, just south of Montreal, also suffered power failures.

Victory Goldbloom, Quebec minister responsible for the environment, is to make a helicopter tour of the area today to assess the damages inflicted by torrential rains which began Monday night.

Five Hours Equals Two Days

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — In just under five hours David Dander paid his debt to society Wednesday night for electing to go to jail rather than pay a parking fine of $11.50.

The 50-year-old engineer who is studying optometry at the University of Waterloo ran afoul of the law by refusing to pay a $1 parking ticket.

He also refused to answer two summonses and was sentenced to two days in jail or a fine of $11.50.

Wednesday night police arrived at his home about 7:30 p.m. and took him away. At 12:15 a.m. today Mrs. Dander took three of her four sons to the jail and checked him out, a free man.

"As long as he was in jail on two different days it was considered a two-day sentence," she said.

Mr. Dander refused to pay the fine, he said, because there is no long-term parking near the university's optometry clinic. He spends one day each week at the clinic and says he can't leave every two hours to feed parking meters.

Iran Pushes Petrochemical Development

TEHRAN (Reuter) — Iran is pushing ahead toward the creation of a giant petrochemical industry, seeking to become one of the world's major suppliers.

Investments in petrochemicals during the last five years have exceeded $700 million while further investment of about $1 billion is forecast for the remainder of the decade.

Iran was the first Middle East country to produce oil, more than 50 years ago. The country also pioneered the region's petrochemical industry.

The basic raw material for Iran's petrochemical industry is natural gas which has been discovered here in abundance. More than three billion cubic feet of gas a day rises to the surface with oil production, much of it in the southern plains.

Under a gas-for-steel deal with the Soviet Union, about one billion cubic feet of Iranian natural gas a day is being exported to Russia from the southern Iran oilfields through a 68-mile pipeline.

With the projected construction of a second pipeline, the export will increase to 1.65 billion cubic feet a day.

Airport Approved

LONDON (AP) — The British government has given the go ahead for what it says will be the world's first environmental city and an environmental airport.

The city for 250,000 people will be built in rural County Essex to support a third London airport, deep-sea port and oil terminals on land reclaimed from the sea.

Eldon Griffiths, undersecretary at the department of environment, told Parliament Wednesday it will cost the equivalent of between $2½ billion and $3 billion.

Although Griffiths said he city would be "pleasing to live in, work in and to look at," environmentalists attacked the government for not placing the four airport runways farther out to sea.

The airport site near Foulness Island in the Thames Estuary, where the river meets the North Sea, was chosen after a long struggle between planners and ecologists.

Half-million Ransom Is Paid in Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Donald Wayne Matheson, about 30, of Calgary has been charged in connection with the kidnapping Thursday of Marlene Hashman, 17, who was later released for $500,000 ransom.

Police said that all of the ransom money has been recovered.

Two other men are being sought in the case.

Two armed men broke into the home of Sam Hashman, president of Great West International Equities Ltd., about 9:30 a.m. Thursday and abducted Marlene Hashman, one of four daughters. She was released unharmed at 11:15 that night.

The men at the Hashman home bound and taped the mouths of two elderly housekeepers and three children, aged seven to 11. They stayed about 30 minutes before leaving with Marlene.

Police said Miss Hashman was kept in the trunk of a car left on the outskirts of the city. When she was released she went to a house to telephone home, and when she couldn't get through, phoned friends.

The money was placed in the car by Mr. Hashman, 42, sometime between 7 and 8 p.m. He drove around the city talking with the kidnappers by telephone at pre-arranged telephone booths. About six calls were made before the money was dropped.

Wagner Demands Probe of Drugs

MONTREAL (CP) — Serious Court Judge Claude Wagner said Thursday there is a Quebec justice department investigation into charges of drug trafficking in the province's jails and vowed he would conduct his own study if necessary.

Judge Wagner said he would personally investigate charges made by a self-admitted cocaine addict if the justice department did not order an inquiry by Aug. 24. William Efford said he was sold heroin or cocaine daily by guards at a Provincial Police detention centre here.

Trudeau Disappointed At Calgary Police Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday night he hopes Canada "will never reach the position where it can't give important and good jobs to Americans."

Mr. Trudeau was expressing his "gut reaction" to the recently-frustrated attempt to hire Oakland, Calif., Police Chief Charles R. Gain as head of Calgary's 700-man police force.

"A lot of Canadians get good jobs in the States and what I say about American applies to citizens of all nations.

"If you're going to hire a non-Canadian in certain sensitive posts, like perhaps this one was, public opinion must be prepared . . .

"But certainly as a matter of principle I don't think it's good to say 'Only Canadians can do all the important jobs in Canada!'"

Altered Future Seen For Ontario's Parks

Talks Begun On Sandbanks

By HARRY MULHALL, Staff Reporter

A dunes quarry site near Sandbanks provincial park may become provincial government property even earlier than the deadline proposed by an official study, Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier hoped last night.

Mr. Bernier also said negotiations between his ministry and the quarrying Lake Ontario Cement Co., to resolve the controversial issue have begun.

He made the remarks in an interview following a speech to the 1972 Ontario Parks Association convention in which he called "disappointing" the "strident demands of a few single interest groups" protesting sand removal operations.

Mr. Bernier said it would be unjust to satisfy the recreational - space needs of some at the expense of jobs for others.

The simmering Sandbanks dispute most recently has seen conservationists challenge recommendations in a report by geologist Walter Tovell, Royal Ontario Museum associate director.

The Tovell study, publicized last month by Mr. Bernier, suggested the site — leased to Lake Ontario Cement for 75 years after government officials mistakenly reforested a company plot — should be surrendered to the province after two or three years. In the meantime, the company should be permitted to remove the remaining sand on the 16-acre site.

But, said Mr. Bernier of the deadline, "I would personally hope to have it cleared up before that," after which the site would be included in the adjacent park.

He said ministry officials already had opened discussions with the company and have met twice with its spokesmen since the Tovell report was publish-

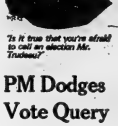
Bales Won't Resign

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dalton Bales of Ontario said today he will remain in his cabinet post despite his involvement in a property purchase in the area of the projected new international airport at nearby Pickering.

Mr. Bales told a news conference that he is transferring his interests in the 100 acres of Markham Township land purchased by himself and two partners to a trustee and will forego any profit from his investment.

Should the property be sold or expropriated and a net profit result after taxes, the profit would be transferred to a public charity designated by the minister.

Mr. Bales offered his resignation to Premier William Davis when his interests in the Pickering land became public knowledge. Mr. Davis asked him to reconsider his decision.



The attorney general said that at the time the property was purchased for $2,500 an acre, the construction of an airport in that section of Markham Township was not "contemplated by me or anyone else."

He added:

"Today, with the clarity of hindsight, and in view of the misunderstandings that have arisen as a result of this investment, and in view of entire interpretations some have put upon it, I have no hesitation in saying that a person with public responsibilities such as myself should not have involved himself in land acquisition while holding public office.

Meanwhile, Mr. Davis disclosed Thursday night that Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communications, told him last February of a past involvement in buying Pickering land.

Mr. Carton said that he had acted as a lawyer in the purchases before he joined the cabinet, "and I did not and do not have a nickel's interest in those properties."

'Is it true that you're afraid to call an election Mr. Trudeau?'

PM Dodges Vote Query

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau ended a West Coast vacation Thursday by appearing on an hour-long open-line radio program during which he fielded questions ranging for the date of the next federal election to the forthcoming Canada-Russia hockey series.

Asked by broadcaster Jack Webster of Radio Station CJOR Vancouver, moderator of the program, whether a federal election is planned this fall, Mr. Trudeau said he would study the situation after returning to Ottawa and decide whether Canada will have "an election-free fall."

"And if we are, then I'll tell you about an election-free winter later in the fall."

Even Nudists May Be Served

By HARRY MULHALL, Staff Reporter

Radical change — ranging from relaxed drinking laws to special motorcycusts' and even nudists' recreation areas — may be part of Ontario's future provincial parks system, Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier indicated last night.

Growing demand for more recreation space in Ontario is facing government with an urgent challenge — and the pressure mounts with rising population, Mr. Bernier warned in a keynote speech launching the three-day 1972 Ontario Parks Association convention in Belleville.

A variety of problems also has seen motorcyclists banned from one area and provincial police patrols in the parks.

Mr. Bernier believed some problems "stem from inadequacies in the way in which we manage" parks.

"Perhaps if we had a new classification system . . . that clearly differentiated between the uses that would be permitted for each park, we would have fewer policing and control problems."

Use of motorcycles conflicted with the needs of others in what might be termed a family park.

"But the young people of this province also have a right to have their own leisure time interests respected by government. And I have already suggested to the people in my ministry that it is time we began searching for an appropriate area in southern Ontario where special facilities could be constructed to benefit groups of motorcyclists."

In Killarney wilderness park, he noticed a group of nudists who have been using the area for more than 15 years. It may not be a common interest.

"But, it is the right of those whose interest it is to have a place within our parks systems to go where they want to go."

Diversity and intensity of such pressure is prompting rethinking of government parks policies, the minister indicated to the opening OPA conference session at the Four Seasons Hotel.

What may emerge could be a parks system more compatible with diverse public needs.

Changes could include:

—Relaxation of current bans on consumption of alcoholic beverages in provincial parks.

—More flexibility, where the traditional family park or wilderness parks would be augmented by separate facilities to meet the needs of young motorcyclists, even nudists.

—Government plans to private trailer parks to extend the recreational network.

Such proposals are not yet formulated. But they are under review by his ministry, said Mr. Bernier, who capsuled his own view this way:

"It's my belief that an adequate provincial parks system should be capable of taking into account the needs of everyone. It should also be sufficiently flexible to make it possible to separate leisure activities that are not compatible."

Study of one policy area — use of alcoholic beverages — was prompted by resolutions by citizens who find present red stricture "unrealistic."

"In recent years . . . the government has relaxed many of the restrictions against . . . consumption of alcohol. And by citizens who find present rules resulted in any reduction in the quality of life of the people in this province.

"Perhaps the time has come

Whitelaw Resumes Parley

BELFAST (CP) — Moderate Roman Catholic politicians and Northern Ireland's British administrator planned a third round of crucial talks today that could end a party discussions on the future of Ulster.

William Whitelaw, the secretary of state for Northern Ireland, flew from London after discussions Thursday with Prime Minister Edward Heath on demands made by the Social Democratic and Labor party, the main Catholic opposition party.

Main topic at today's talks between Whitelaw and the SDLP was the future of suspected IRA men interned without trial.

There still are about 250 men in Long Kesh prison camp—out of the 700 interned during the last year—and the SDLP has demanded an immediate start to their release.

Quebec Farmers To Receive Aid

Quebec government officials surveyed southwestern Quebec flood-ravaged farmlands Thursday, working out details of the financial assistance farmers in the area have been promised.

RAF Airlifts Food to Isles

LONDON (Reuter) — The RAF began today an emergency airlift of essential supplies to the Orkney and Shetland islands off northern Scotland, isolated by the two-week national dock strike.

About 180 tons of goods, including flour, sugar, cooking fats, livestock food and medical supplies, are being flown out from Scotland, representing about one week's emergency supply.

Government sources said the airlift was a "humanitarian use of the Royal Air Force" and did not mean that emergency powers proclaimed last week because of the strike were being implemented.

For several days private aircraft have been ferrying small amounts of essential materials to the islands.

Plans also were being discussed for moving supplies to the Hebrides islands off Scotland's west coast.

Ten—Nine—Eight

The countdown is on as the Quinte Exhibition's red and white balloon prepares to ascend for the first time. The big sphere, heated to a lighter-than-air state, finally got off the ground last night after strong winds prevented an earlier takeoff. Pilots Mark Duffis and Mike Gade, both of Guelph, will take turns floating above the fair from a tethered altitude of 150 feet. For fair stories, see front page second section.

Ontario Parks Conventioners Getting Down to Business

The people responsible for Ontario's community greenbelts buckle down to business today.

The first discussion sessions programmed for the 1972 Ontario Parks Association convention got underway this morning at conference headquarters at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Leading delegates in the first seminar of the convention was D. A. H. Farmer, Ministry of Indian Affairs and Northern Development and co-chairman of the federal - provincial Related - Trent - Severn Study Committee.

As the convention opened last night with a banquet addressed by Ontario Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier — some 150 delegates and wives had registered for the event.

OPA president Kenneth H. Pflug, of Waterloo, said the total of early registrations made him satisfied with the attendance the convention was drawing from municipal parks authorities in the province.

As yet, Mr. Pflug said, no dramatic resolutions were on the conventioneers' agenda for discussion. However, such items often are introduced extemporaneously from the floor during the main business meeting which is scheduled for Saturday.

Later, he said the delegations from enthusiasm displayed by Belleville's representatives at the 1971 convention in Windsor, a "good conference" had been established.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, formally welcoming the delegates said while the economics of a community were important, its esthetics also were vital.

"You're the people responsible for that job," he said.

Such conferences promote co-ordination between various community parks' administrations and thus better parks.

Tonight, Belleville plays host at a civic banquet, the main mid-way event in the three-day convention.

Heading for Heads

Hats are in high fashion at the Ontario Parks Association convention at the Belleville Four Seasons Hotel. Jessie Cheer, city hall employee assisting at conference's registration desk, totes an armful of the colorful headgear, much in demand by visiting delegates.

Talk About Sandbanks

In his speech to OPA delegates, Mr. Bernier placed the dispute in the context of changing public outlook that was creating pressure for more recreational space.

"No one will dispute the urgent public need for additional recreational space in this part of the province," he said.

"Neither, I hope, will anyone dispute the need to maintain the economy of this part of Ontario at its present level."

"I find the somewhat strident demands of a few single interest groups for the immediate expansion of this company from its present site, at whatever cost to the public purse, quite disappointing."

Mr. Bernier said it would not be "responsible or just" to satisfy the need of some citizens for recreation by adopting a "traveller attitude" toward the job needs and livelihoods of others and the province's economic needs to maintain a healthy industry.

The Tovell report is now under consideration and an "equitable and just" decision will be made.

"The Sandbanks issue is, however, a good example of how quickly the public need for resource development can change," he added.

Only a few years ago the Ontario public felt it was desirable to attract industry and that the cement company should be located in the Sandbanks area.

"Today, the pressure is placed upon the development of the same area for recreational purposes," said Ttv. Bernier.

He said it was the government's responsibility to provide programs and policies meeting such needs.

Yesterday's Predictions

Whatever Did They See in 1890 Of Life in Belleville in 1990?

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Almost 100 years ago, a group of Bellevillians who made up the St. Andrew's Church Association, met to discuss what this area would look like a century later.

People are always making predictions about the future . . . from politics to dresses, and from methods of transportation to education.

It's somewhat of a game, but when looking at the report prepared by the women of St. Andrew's, it's surprising to find how accurate these predictions can sometimes be.

Their article, based on a futuristic Belleville City Council of 1990, begins with mentioning it would be presided over by "the most talented and charming Lady Mayoress." In itself this seems nothing new. For in 1956, Belleville's mayor was Mrs. Jane Forrester.

In recent years, council has had two other women members . . . Mrs. Robin Jeffrey and Mrs. Jean Smith.

However, in the more unliberal 1800's, such a move was unheard of. Council and government affairs were strictly for men.

The article made reference to the Lady Mayoress wearing the civic gold chain, clad in the robe of office, the snow white hair of the venerable councillors, plus their robes and badges of office which were in "marked contrast to the piebald appearance in hair and garb of the dissipated City Fathers of 1890."

While there are several aldermen on council who sport white or greying hair, most are indeed dressed in the more colorful garb of today, including Mayor J. Russell Scott, with his gold chain, and purple-trimmed black robes.

The report of 1990 continues: "The Mayoress gave her report and each convener in rotation gave the report of her committee. By these reports we learn that Belleville, 1890, would have enlarged her borders on the north to Oak Hill Pond and would have absorbed Trenton and Deseronto. Kingston would have faded away and in excavating, its old docks would be found.

"By enlarging canals, ocean ships would call daily at Belleville and would find upstream to Canniton Avenue, George Street would have a sewer.

"On the bay shore a large stately building (the high school) would stand. Its opening would be celebrated by the burning of all school books . . . pupils to be taught by object lessons.

"Towers of sufficient height to declose half the globe, aided by telescopes would provide the study of geography, and electric ships would carry students to various countries to learn the languages of other people."

The report makes mention of "electrical wings" which would be furnished to young people so that they could fly "like butterflies," noting that air ships would carry such wings so there would be no more deaths by drowning.

There would be only one creed and doctors would be supported by the community. Ministers would no longer have to hunt for a parish.

The "mysterious" Moira would no longer overflow its banks and citizens would no longer be awakened by icebergs at their doors. Fire engines would be placed where they did not have to be cut out of the ice to serve at a fire. Police courts would be vestilated and dyspepsia would have disappeared.

Amazing as this series of predictions may have seemed back in 1890, all but a few have come to pass, in one form or another.

Belleville has expanded its borders beyond the boundaries of 1890, but has not as yet absorbed the towns of Deseronto or Trenton, although with wider roads leading to both, plus housing developments along Highway 2, this prediction could be getting closer each year.

The less than subtle comment about Kingston may have been a hint at certain heated rivalries, but that city is certainly far from being at historic ruins.

The St. Lawrence Seaway serves as a true prediction of the arrival of "enlarged canals," with ocean - going ves sels, but it doesn't seem likely that they will ever call daily at Belleville, or be able to travel upstream to Canniton Road.

It may seem a trifling thing to complete a sewer for George Street, but in 1890, Belleville's streets ranged only along Front Street. It was not until after the turn of the century that a large scale system was constructed and roads paved.

The large stately building on the bay shore can be none other than the soon - to - be - completed Bayside Secondary School. New methods of teaching that would do away with books, could have been a prediction of future educational television and tape recorded teaching aids.

Large radio and television towers dot the horizons of the world and can be seen quite plainly. Telescopes and satellites study the surface of the earth as well as other planets and the photographs can be transmitted around the world.

Nuclear-powered, ocean-going vessels and the predictions of "electrical ships" carrying students across the seas, are readily believable.

The closest thing to forecasts of special attachable wings, other than parachutes or Mae Wests (she must surely have been!) would be the airplane.

The churches of the world have been working long and hard at coming closer together to form one world-wide creed.

Medicare has been an operational program for several years now, and in other countries, such as Britain, doctors are supported by the community through their government.

Floods in the 1800s, 1918, and 1936, saw ice overflowing into the streets and homes in Belleville, but since that time, this tragedy has not recurred. At this time, workmen are proceeding with a special rerouting scheme in the beds of the Moira River, to prevent just such an occurrence.

The newly constructed court house, demolition of the old jail building, and forecasts of a new provincial court building, ventilation has long been a solved problem and dyspepsia has pretty well disappeared to be replaced with a much worse illness of man . . . ulcers.

Stray Dog Problem Solved?

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Thurlow Township has established a new system for disposing of stray dogs, one which should satisfy most of the municipality's residents.

Clifford Cassidy remains dog catcher but from now on, he'll transfer strays to Don Tucker's Stirling pound. In the past, he kept dogs for 72 hours in his barn but the building was recently ruled unfit by officials of the department of food and agriculture.

Thurlow council Wednesday offered Mr. Cassidy the option of remaining as dog catcher or handing over his duties to Mr. Tucker's animal patrol service. For accepting the transfer system, Mr. Cassidy will receive his regular salary of $65 per month, 15 cents per mile, and $1 for each trip to Stirling.

Mr. Tucker's government - approved pound handles strays from 18 eastern Ontario municipalities. Dog owners pay $10 to reclaim their animal or the township pays the same amount to have it destroyed.

Mr. Tucker's offer to perform pickup service in Thurlow will be reviewed at the end of the year.

One satisfied resident is Mrs. Minette Bromley of Zimwood Drive. A member of humane societies in three countries, she told council in July she was "appalled" to learn about the treatment of dogs in Thurlow Township. Her letter to government officials in Toronto prompted the inspection of Mr. Cassidy's barn.

"Oh lovely," she said when told of the new arrangement. "I hope I did some good. You'd be surprised at the number of people who called to say it was about time somebody spoke up and did something."

"Her only complaint now is with the 72 hour retention regulation during which dogs must be claimed or disposed of.

"In nine out of 10 cases, a week would be a good length of time to get your dog back," she said. The canine crusader intends to solicit government aid again in amending the rule.

Bell Bargain Rates Creating Overload

There are times when success causes problems, and Sunday around noon seems to be one of them when it comes to dialling long distance from Belleville.

According to Bell Canada's local manager E. G. Thompson, the company's Sunday bargain calling rates that were introduced last November, have been so popular people are calling more and talking longer, with the result that circuits are often overloaded and calls can't be completed.

The rate for calls dialed direct from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday is three-quarters off the regular day rate.

The overload problem is most apparent during Sunday lunchtime — noon until about 2 p.m. — when some callers have been experiencing difficulties.

"It's a frustrating experience when you try to call someone and can't," said Mr. Thompson. "The way to overcome the problem is to place your calls either earlier or later in the day, avoiding the lunchtime peak period. The three-quarter discount is in effect from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Sundays."

South Thurlow Water, Sewer Bylaw Passed

Thurlow council has passed water and sewer bylaws necessary for the installation of services in the township's southern fringe.

The bylaws now go to the ministry of the environment and the Ontario Municipal Board for approval. They follow completion of a cost analysis description by Belleville Engineer Walter Watson.

The system would eventually utilize Belleville's facilities, bringing services to the village of Hamilton, Black Diamond Road and Cloverleaf Drive.

People and Places

Parking is a problem at Kingston General Hospital as it is here in Belleville and during a visit there one afternoon recently we discovered something is being done about it.

There is a great pit in the green area between the hospital and the university campus and as of now it is a noisy eyesore, rock base and pneumatic drills and all.

On inquiring as to what was going on, we were told that construction of a parking garage was under way.

It is sad to see that verdant area being set aside for vehicular use, but given the lack of space for this purpose, there seems to be no alternative. Certainly little has changed as to parking or structurally since the couple of weeks we were hospitalized there a decade ago. At that same time we left the car in a small enclave (which is still in use) facing the waterfront.

This part of the city which was the original capital of Upper Canada and next year celebrates its tricentenary looked its very best on this Friday afternoon. It was a brilliantly sunny day and people were relaxing in the pleasant parkland around the Murney Tower built as a defence work during the Oregon crisis of the 1840s and now a museum. From this point one sees also the long strip that is the coastline of Wolfe Island.

We were down Kingston way again at the weekend ,returning by Number 2 highway via Napanee and Deseronto and there is a certain consolation about this route that is oppressive. You do not expect to run across a fine country restaurant offering French cuisine in such country, but there is indeed such a place shortly before entering Napanee from Kingston and we hear it is very good.

In Deseronto a young Indian couple play with their three youngsters in the community's waterfront park and boats are active offshore. Then, by way of a change, we cross the Skyway Bridge and continue homewards via Northport and Demorestville where the history and architecture of many an interesting old residence rouse one from the torpor that seemed to hit us earlier.

Here there are terrain and the feel of the past that are reflected within the pages of the Hastings and Prince Edward Historical Atlas, published by H. Belden and Co. in 1878 and more recently brought back in offset edition by Mika Silk Screening Ltd. of Belleville, with printing by Maracle Press of Oshawa.

Here too there are maps and pictures of these very areas of which we speak, as they appeared almost a century ago, as well as descriptive matter relating to people and places. The United Empire Loyalist tradition in all this is strong and the heritage and stability it represents are qualities we need to preserve in a changing world.

Seasonal Thoughts

If we have not already read the signs of seasonal decline ,the advertisements of the moment and the contents of store windows make it uncomfortably clear.

Fall and winter are making the scene in the stores and there is a snowmobile ad which proclaims a machine that will "make your '73 winter a beautiful and quiet experience."

If so seems apparent, manufacturers are producing quieter machines that is all to the good. But it will not be enough if snowmobile owners continue to ignore recommendations of both the manufacturers and the government controlling their use.

For example we quoted recently from a letter under the name of Gordon D. Campbell, director of Road and Motor Vehicle Traffic Safety for the federal government, in which he said in part: "The official position of the snowmobile manufacturing industry has frequently been stated as recommending snowmobiles for off-road use only. . "

This is something police are going to have to enforce in both urban and rural areas where some snowmobilers at least are prone to hot-road their machines along open roads, posing a risk to their own safety and that of other road users, while also creating noise levels that are unacceptable to people living in the vicinity.

Americans Think Canada Still A Colony

Students Guide Summer Visitors Around Parliament Hill

By PARMER TRESSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Among the most popular summer jobs for Canadian university students is to become one of the guides who conduct visitors through centre block of Parliament.

About 44 applications were received for the positions this year but only 17 guides are selected for the jobs, which started May 15 and end after Labor Day. The guides are divided into two shifts but all are on hand for the rush hours when the greatest number of visitors arrive for the tours, from noon to about 10:30 a.m. each morning, following the changing of the guard ceremony on the front lawn, and lasts well into the afternoon.

The guides are given a training course during which they learn facts and figures about the features in the centre block such as the Commons and Senate chambers and the parliamentary library, and in a short time they have memorized short descriptive statements.

They are asked some amusing and unusual questions. Some people want to know what the centre block weighs but unfortunately no one has yet got around to putting it on a scale. Many of the unusual questions come from the United States visitors some of whom still think the Queen is the active head of government and that Canada is still a colony and cannot make any legislation without the consent of Great Britain.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 people visit the centre block each day and each guide conducts about eight separate groups during a shift. One reason why the job is sought-after is the $3 an hour it pays—good money by summer youth-employment standards.

One difficulty is that a guide is only allowed to work at the job for one season and a new group of students will be hired for next year. Best method of application is through the local member of Parliament but the Speaker of the Commons has the final say in selecting the small, fortunate group of young men and women.

A few English-language purists are disturbed about a new trend, both within and outside government, to put rather stark labels on everything. It all started around the time that Trans-Canada Airlines became Air Canada, partly because the publicly-owned airline was doing a lot of international flying. Then we have had Statistics Canada replacing the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, partly because the word Dominion upsets some people.

Recently, we have been inundated with stories about Hockey Canada and Team Canada, it caused one observer to wonder, when he listens to his radio portable about a discussion of Team Canada and the possibilities of Robby Hull playing, if Air Canada will fly to Russia by Air Canada after reservations have been made by Bell Canada. The whole trend sends shivers up the backs of patriots who are concerned about what is happening to our English language.

On a more serious note, those who have been worried about the number of university and college teachers who have been appointed to Canadian posts from outside the country, are now given a slight ray of hope. Our old friend, Statistics Canada, reports that in the 1971-7 year, 56 per cent of all teachers appointed to full-time jobs in Canadian universities were Canadian citizens. This compares with 35 per cent a year earlier. Of the additions, teachers from the United States account for less than half or 20 per cent, of the teachers from other countries.

Fidel Castro's Cuba Puritanical—and Literate

By JOHN HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
THOMSON NEWS SERVICE

"I have, let's see,
I have already learned to read and count.
I have, I have already learned to write and to think
. . . and to laugh . . . "

This slight piece of Cuban verse, from the pen of Nicolas Guillen, Cuba's poet laureate, summarized the one unassailable success of the Cuban revolution—literacy for all Cubans.

Previous social revolutions in Latin America and elsewhere, with the possible exception of the Chinese Communist revolution, did not accomplish this early promise of ending illiteracy. Fidel Castro's revolution has done so.

The early air haphazard approach of "each one teach one" substituted later by the establishment of schools throughout revolutionary Cuba, represents the kind of literal draft accomplishment for change, only possible under revolutionary conditions.

Canadians, more than Americans, have come to accept the reality and permanence of revolution in Cuba.

Canada played no role in the hot-house and often cruel politics of the years before Fidel Castro took power, which centred around American dominance of the island's economic life.

The bases for that external control of the Cuban economy were the renewable sugar agreements with Cuba, the world's largest sugar producer. These gave the Cubans the best price in the world for their sugar. But that basic industry was dominated by huge, American-owned sugar holdings.

Cubans call the years before Castro, "el imperio" or "the empire" meaning a time when Cuba was an appendage of the American economic and political empire. Critics of Castro and the revolution say he has merely substituted the "imperio" (American) for another (Russian).

The Soviet Union and Communist China buy much of Cuba's sugar these days but equally important the U.S.S.R.'s weekly tanker runs into Havana keep oil and other petroleum vital petroleum products flowing into Cuba.

Without that oil, the revolution would quickly grind to a halt. Which would bring Cuba to her knees more quickly, ask the cynics,the end of the U.S. sugar quota in the bad old days in the end of the Batista officers in the brave, new ones?

This chronic dependency probably explains the fierce determination of Cuba to assert her identity—and the nearness of her revolution. "Free Territory of the American" is a slogan invented by Havana's devout propagandists.

Fidel Castro's revolution has deeply affected the Third World. Even sleepy and corrupt Havana has become a "purified" world capital, seat of the Tri-Continental Congresses of anti-imperialist powers. Since 1966, delegates from Communist countries as far apart as East Germany and North Vietnam have met in Havana.

Payments Delayed

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In Belleville, a woman receives nine cheques for nine days of sickness (Intelligencer, Aug. 3). In Toronto, two men get no payments for three to six months (Globe and Mail, Aug. 1), and another gentleman is presented with a prepayment-form instead of $1,261 outstanding benefits (Toronto Star, Aug. 3).

As a former employee of the UIC, I am not surprised by the above examples. Delays in benefit - paymnts are common, their causes are innumerable and inexcusable.

A claimant's benefit is an income which he has earned by paying his weekly insurance premiums promptly; he is entitled to his benefit, when he applies for it, and not eight weeks or eight months later. If the benefit payments are delayed, the UIC is legally responsible for hardships it causes.

Yet, the UIC High Command looks with indifference upon the misfortunes generated by its empire. It can afford to be indifferent, since a ruinous claimant must seek redress from the very bureaucracy that has inflicted him in the first place.

To break this vicious circle, an agency is needed with the authority to settle justified complaints when they arise. Since such an agency does not yet exist, I recommend that a misused claimant sends his complaint to his Member of Parliament, with carbon copies to the UIC District Office and the editor of the local newspaper. He can also threaten legal action to obtain redress.

Move to Give Provincial Auditor More Clout

By DON O'TEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Looked at casually it is an apparently innocuous recommendation.

It is "that an office be provided in the legislative building for the provincial auditor."

But in one of 16 proposals made this year by the public accounts committee of the house. But it isn't all that innocuous. In fact, you could say it carries a fair wallop.

No more tedious details about the auditor's office should be needed. It must be well known by now that, to put the best face on it, the office has been less than satisfactory. For years there have been complaints from opposition parties and even some cabinet ministers relative to what it should be the office of the Ontario provincial auditor was hopelessly inadequate, that as a watchdog of government spending it was not their watching or dogging and that compared to the competent office of the auditor general in Ottawa it just didn't rate.

So how is putting the auditor in an office in the legislative buildings going to bring about reformation?

Well, the big problem of the auditor's office all along has been that it has been more of a servant of the government than of the legislature(or the public). For many years the auditor general has always been close to the leaders of the government; premiers and treasurers have relied on him for all kinds of advice and he's been close to them in their work but he also has been housed close to them.

For some years the auditor's office was down the hall from the premier's. Now it is in the treasury wing.

The circumstances have been so cosy that there has been really no chance of a tough firm and diligent audit. You don't criticize well people you are working with.

A move across the crescent from the treasury-building to the main legislative building could mean a remarkable change in the effectiveness of the office, for it would register very firmly not only on the auditor but with all those associated with him that he is a servant of the legislature and of nobody else.

Once this is registered, he can be completely independent, objective and hard. And an audit that is hard, and known to be hard, will be valuable these days when public faith in government is not the highest.

New York Gets Hydro from Quebec

Sherbrooke La Tribune:
Premier Robert Bourassa has announced the sale by Hydro-Quebec of 14.4 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity to Consolidated Edison Co. of New York between 1977 and 1981 at a cost of $123 million.

At a time when Jean-Lapin, federal trade and commerce minister, speaks of the difficulties of trade negotiations with the United States, this sale shows the difference in political strategy between the two levels of government.

But let us avoid visions of grandeur; selling ourselves to the Americans is not our national objective whatever the price. . . . We must be at least strong enough to use what we have, that is our natural resources, as a power for negotiation and not as Santa Claus's pack to cater to the whim of an all-powerful Uncle Sam.

We are saying that the Quebec government has made a gift to an American company. In effect, Quebec will have to invest $25 million to conclude a sale bringing in $123 million . . . Added to that will be the interest Quebec would probably have to pay the Americans on the loan Hydro-Quebec needs to build a transmission line to the American border. . . .

These 14.4 billion kilowatt-hours would bring about $123 million to Hydro-Quebec if they were sold to Quebec consumers instead. We are selling our natural resources almost for a song because to an American company. How many millions of dollars will be added to Consolidated Edison's coffers at our expense because we, Quebecers do not know how to play their roles of negotiators.

It is said this electricity is a surplus that will never be used in Quebec. . . . If we are producing too much electricity now why start on the James Bay project? Is our government completely losing control?

With this transaction we are seeing the resurrection of the Duplessis era . . . when the motto was "Let's sell Quebec to get power." Quebecers no longer want to give away their natural resources to the Americans.

More on 'Conflict' Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Last night I read another letter from a "disturbed citizen" and I realize now that there are a great number of us who are wondering about our Mayor and his charges brought against him. Why doesn't he retaliate? Why did only two aldermen press for an investigation? What is he keeping to himself? Why are the rest of our council keeping silent?

There are too many unanswered questions here: I live in these times; I have a right to know!

However, on Sept. 1st, power restrictions will go into effect. These will include the illumination of street signs, a reduction of window lighting in shops and other places of business.

Man with Mafia Document Jailed for Counterfeit Bills

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man who possessed papers described as a "rare and genuine Mafia document" was sentenced Thursday to one year in jail with a recommendation that he and his wife be deported after the term.

Francesco Caccamo, 34, who had worked 10 years in an aluminum products company before his arrest a year ago, and his wife, Rosa, 29, were described as "apparent model citizens" by Judge Garth Moore.

But they led a "Jekyll and Hyde existence," he added.

The couple, who have four children were found guilty June 19 of possession of six counterfeit $10 bills which police found in their home when investigating a shooting of three youths in a shopping plaza.

Mrs. Caccamo was given a suspended sentence.

Caccamo also received a six-month consecutive term for having a weapon dangerous to the public peace. Police found a loaded pistol in the home. He also was fined $150 for having an unregistered weapon.

During the trial, Albert Sabatino, head of an Italian government anti-Mafia investigation force, said the 27 pages of Italian handwritten papers were genuine Mafia documents that give the rules and conduct of the society.

The judge, who ruled out a fear that the money had been paid for babysitting services, told Caccamo "the interests of Canada would best be served by you being deported on completion of your sentence."

Fewer Own Homes

In 1971, 60 per cent of the country's total number of dwellings was occupied by owners. The figure was 63 per cent in 1966, and at a peak 66 per cent in 1961.

The total number of dwellings rose to six million last year from 5.3 million in the 1966 census. Rental accommodation accounted for more than half the increase.

Indians Want Control Of Their Own Affairs

EDMONTON (CP) — The recurring cry for greater control of their own destiny was sounded again Thursday by Canada's 270,000 Indians as the general assembly of the National Indian Brotherhood ended three days of debate.

The assembly passed a resolution asking the federal government to dissolve the comman Barber commission which is investigating Indian claims.

The 56 delegates from provincial and territorial Indian organizations said the commission's terms of reference are too restricted. They also said Indians should have a say in establishing an alternate method of dealing with their territorial claims.

Although Dr. Lloyd Barber, a University of Saskatchewan vice-president, was appointed in 1969 to study claims, many Indian groups have refused to co-operate and are doing their own research.

Dr. Barber has no power to settle claims but can subpoena records and witnesses.

Outlays Large

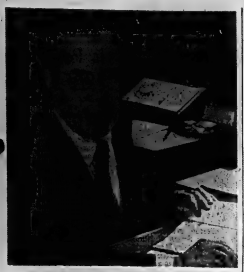
OTTAWA (CP) — Spending for public consumption is expected to grow at a faster rate in Canada during the last half of the 1970s than in any other major industrial country with the possible exception of Japan, international statistics show.

A report on expenditure trends for the 23 members of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development says spending for public consumption in Canada will increase by 3.5 per cent a year between 1975 and 1980. Whatever inflation prevails in that time will increase this projected rate of public outlays, made principally by governments.

Fischer Strong

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The experts predicted that Bobby Fischer would win the adjourned 19th game of their championship chess match today, bringing him within 4½ points of the world title.

A victory for the American challenger would make the score 8 to 5 in his favor. Russian champion Boris Spassky needs seven points to retain his title, and with a maximum of 11 games remaining, Fischer could win with a run of draws.



At the adjournment, Fischer was two pawns ahead, six to Spassky's four, with one of them on the seventh rank in a position to promote a queen. Each player had two rooks and a bishop.

Marchand Replies

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition attacks on the effectiveness of handing out incentive grants to companies setting up in depressed areas were called "ridiculous" Thursday in a statement by Jean Marchand, minister of regional economic expansion.

The minister, in a general defence of the grant program, said his critics, most vocal being Ed Broadbent (NDP—Ontario-Whitby) and James McGrath (PC—St. John's East)—had "the initiative be carried away by the pressured reactions of an election."

He says they should have considerable influence in CBC decisions without being forced to become part of the administration. (CP Photo)

Ad Men Fear U.S. Competition

TORONTO (CP) — Foreign-owned advertising agencies in Canada enjoys an unfair advantage over their Canadian counterparts, Ontario's committee on economic and cultural nationalism was told Thursday.

The advantage stems from the subsidiaries' parent relationships south of the border, according to a submission to the committee by Canadian advertising agency representatives.

"They are often . . . able to use those relationships to affect a significant price advantage over Canadian - owned agencies seeking to service the same client needs," the brief said.

It said Canadian - owned agencies were "virtually powerless" to respond to this kind of competition.

Want to Bargain

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Seeking a united front in negotiations with government and industry, about 250 Ontario members of the National Farmers Union approved a resolution Thursday calling for collective bargaining.

The resolution was adopted at the close of the Ontario region's two-day annual meeting. It will be presented to the union's national annual meeting in Winnipeg later this year.

The resolution stipulates that 50-per-cent membership plus one person will be required in each region to certify the NFU as official bargaining agent for all farmers.

Pork Recipes Plentiful

Pork Versatility Promoted

"The Pork Institute is a communications umbrella in Ontario and we provide the consumer with all possible information through the press, radio and exhibits such as our's here at the Quinte Exhibition," says Marjorie Elwood, food consultant and home economist for the Pork Institute. This institute emphasizes the versatility, taste and nutrition of pork to the consumer.

"There is no seasonal time for pork. This is an old wife's tale. Long ago, there was an adequate refrigeration and possibly this is why pork was believed to be bad in the summer," said Mrs. Elwood.

Mrs. Elwood, the only consultant for the Institute, has a barbecue included in her exhibit. Pork can be barbecued, broiled, baked or simmered. There is possibility and versatility in pork which is high in B vitamin and gives you sparkling eyes, and steady nerves." She added that pork is higher in iron than any other food.

Fruit can be cooked with pork in appealing recipes with apples, bananas, pineapples, cheese dishes, wine or vegetables.

"In our institute there are seven employees who design posters, and as the ones we display in supermarkets. We're now working on a basic pork textbook for teachers in the public schools, high school and university level. It would be a pork reference book."

The University of Guelph is assisting the Pork Institute in their research of the meat. A wall chart is also scheduled to be completed by late fall.

The meat can be on a dieter's menu, since there are less than 250 calories in three and one half ounces of cooked pork.

Posters which emphasize that pork is different have won two design awards in Montreal. This is the first time the Institute has had posters made in Canada.

Mrs. Elwood will be showing the pork exhibit at more fairs in Ontario but due to the tight schedule, she cannot attend all. Pork products in each area, the Ontario Food Council, and the Department of Agriculture assist in her work.

Patio Pork Chops

To have tasty, appetizing barbecued chops, have your meatman cut them about 1 inch in thickness. The rib, loin and butterfly chops are very tender and do not need marinating.

Choose 1-inch thick rib, loin or butterfly chops. Adjust grill of barbecue so chops are about 5 inches above heat. Cook for 10 minutes on each side. Continue cooking, turning occasionally, until well browned on both sides — about 20 minutes longer. If desired, brush chops with a barbecue sauce during cooking or season them to taste with salt and freshly-ground pepper.

Porkabobs

(6 servings)

The Chinese and the Polynesians know pork well. This recipe typifies how cleverly they season it.

3 to 4 lbs. pork loin, boned
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly-ground pepper
6 whole coriander seeds
6 whole cumin seeds
¼ cup thinly sliced onion
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons soya sauce
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
Dash of ground ginger
¼ cup lemon or lime juice

Remove any excess fat from pork and cut meat into 1 inch cubes. Arrange them in shallow pan. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over meat. Let stand several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Drain off marinade into saucepan. Dip skewers in salad oil, then thread pork cubes on them, allowing 4 per serving with ¼ inch between cubes so they will cook on all sides. Brush meat with marinade. Place on grill about 3 inches above heat. Grill 5 minutes, turn, brush with marinade and grill another 5 minutes. Continue to turn, baste and grill until meat is well browned on all sides — about 25 minutes total time.

Insecticides Recommended For Home Gardens

Home gardeners take pride in their vegetable or flower garden and in the ornamentals and shrubery around the home. At this time of year a variety of chewing and sucking insects may injure or deform many garden plants. Effective and safe insecticides are available to control these pests, says Professor F. L. McEwen, Department of Environmental Biology, University of Guelph.

Small, greenish sucking insects called aphids may be found on the undersides of leaves or in clusters at stem nodes. To control them and other sucking insects, use a spray of 50 per cent malathion emulsion at 2 teaspoons per gallon of water. There are a few plants, particularly in the ornamentals, that are sensitive to malathion and can be injured. READ THE LABEL before applying. Because aphids multiply rapidly, chemical control must be applied regularly.

Cabbageworms, flea beetles and the Colorado potato beetle injure cabbage, cauliflower, potatoes and lettuce by eating the leaves of the plants. Sevin (carbaryl) can be used as 50 per cent Sevin wettable powder (2 tablespoons per gallon of water), or as a 5 percent dust. An application of 25 per cent Methoxychlor emulsible concentrate (2½ tablespoons per gallon) also provides good control. Both chemicals are effective but Sevin is more easily obtained by the home gardener. If Sevin is used, do not apply within 3 days of harvest; with Methoxychlor, do not apply within 7 days of harvest. READ THE LABEL BEFORE TREATING your vegetable plants.

Insecticides of plant origin such as Pyrethrins, Rotenone and Nicotine Sulfate can also be used. These are not as effective against the caterpillars and sucking insects as are Sevin, Methoxychlor, and malathion and have no safety or biological advantages. Follow the label directions for their use. FOLLOW STRICT SAFETY PRECAUTIONS WHEN USING NICOTINE SULFATE. It is a highly toxic chemical.

The home gardener must make careful applications at frequent intervals for best results. Control of insects, mites, these chemicals and other insecticides, fungicides and herbicides for use in the home garden. Preparations are also available for specific problems. When used as recommended, the materials will assure quality vegetables and maintain flowers in good condition.

No matter what product is used, READ AND FOLLOW THE DIRECTIONS CAREFULLY. Store them in a locked cabinet out of reach of children. Always keep insecticides in their original containers. Never put them in containers that might be mistaken for a household product.

Deficient Soil Causes Tree Root Damage

Vigorous healthy trees require soil with an adequate supply of air, moisture and nutrients. A deficiency of any of these can result in damage to the roots, branches and leaves. In some affected trees the leaves do not expand and in others the leaves emerge but turn brown abnormally EARLY. Such symptoms are often indicative of root or trunk damage, says Professor J. C. Sutton, Department of Environmental Biology, Ontario Agricultural College, University of Guelph.

Excess water crowds out the air needed in the soil. Roots deprived of air cannot function properly and become susceptible to fungus attack, decay and die-back. Because damaged roots cannot supply sufficient water and nutrients to the branches and leaves, branch tips may die-back and in severe cases, the entire tree dies. Insufficient water can also result in the same symptoms.

Recently transplanted trees frequently show these conditions during the first 2 or 3 growing seasons. Take extra care when transplanting. Try to prevent damage or loss of roots before transplanting. Avoid exposing bare roots to the sun or wind. Make sure that the transplant hole is large enough to accommodate the natural spread of the roots. Remember that the soil should be at the same level in the trunk as before transplanting.

When transplanting mix peat moss with the soil before putting it around the roots. This helps to retain moisture in dry periods, keeps the soil aerated and helps roots spread through the soil. Peat moss is especially necessary in clay and other textured soils, and in sandy soils to hold moisture. Water immediately after transplanting.

Symptoms are usually the same in established trees. The soil may be excessively wet resulting in poor aeration, or excessively dry because of soil compaction, asphalt paving, concrete or other factors. Tree roots sometimes suffer severe damage in trenching and other excavations, or by excessive use of fertilizers. Lawnmowers, children, animals and children often damage the trunk, exposing it to infection by decay and fungi growth, impairing movement of water and food materials from the roots to the branches.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Marlow of Kingston, Ontario announce the engagement of their daughter Kathleen Marie Teresa, B.N. to Mr. Wm. G. Tatham, B.A., LL.B., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm C. Tatham of Belleville.

The marriage will take place at Sacred Heart Church in Godfrey, Ontario, on Sept. 2, 1972.

Tooth Decay Experiment

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Five hundred school children here have become part of an experiment that may eventually lead to prevention of tooth decay.

Each child in the project has two matching teeth — one upper and one lower — treated with a thin plastic film, called pit and fissure sealant, developed by a Washington chemist, Dr. Ray Bowen.

Two similar teeth on the other side of the mouth are left untreated. At the end of three years, the researchers will determine how successful the sealant is in preventing decay.

Dr. Ronald Jordan of the University of Western Ontario, who is assessing the value of the project, has already checked some of the children six months after the film application and says the results are good."

Use of the film for protecting teeth was developed by Dr. John Gwinnett of the University of Western Ontario and Dr. Michael Buonocore of Eastman Dental centre, Rochester, N.Y.

Dr. Gwinnett went from Britain to Rochester where he worked on the sealant and then came to London three years ago bringing his interest in the sealant with him.

The sealant is applied after the tooth is cleaned and treated with a phosphoric acid solution. The acid makes the tooth more porous and thus enables the film to adhere to the tooth.

Dr. Jordan says no layman can determine whether a tooth has been treated with the film. A dentist would have to scratch the tooth with a probe to find the sealant.

As the man assessing the project, Dr. Jordan is not told which teeth have been treated and which have not.

Frozen Foods Need Care

What do you do when your freezer accidentally becomes disconnected or when power fails after an electrical storm? Can the food be safely refrozen? These and other questions are answered in the latest publication from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, called "Care For Your Frozen Foods."

Many people do not realize that freezing does not sterilize food and temperature of zero degrees or below is essential to maintain the color, flavor, texture and nutritive value of frozen foods. Moreover, the conditions of thawing are very important to preserve quality and avoid the risk of food poisoning. Under certain conditions spoiled foods may be safely refrozen. This handy booklet describes what to look for when buying frozen foods, how to thaw frozen foods, how to thaw frozen foods is safe to refreeze food.

"Care For Your Frozen Foods" was prepared by food specialists of the Ontario Food Council, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food to meet the need for concise information related to the home-maker. Sweet Corn Is Perishable

While dimples may be attractive on a beautiful young girl they are a sure sign of old age on a kernel of corn. Plump kernels mean juicy, sweet, tender corn. Sweet corn has an extremely short shelf life. To maintain its freshness, corn must be chilled immediately after picking, held under refrigerated conditions and used within 1 to 3 days, say food specialists of the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Most sweet corn is hydro-cooled. In other words, the corn is plunged into an iced water bath immediately after picking and held there for at least one hour. This lowers the internal temperature of the kernels to 40 degrees or below or 35 degrees. Without hydro-cooling the corn continues to respire and the sugars, responsible for its sweet juicy flavor, are quickly changed into starch.

Although hydro-cooling helps to preserve freshness, sweet corn should always be held under refrigerated conditions and used as soon as possible.

Ann Landers

Retarded Child's Parent Annoyed with Public

Dear Ann Landers: When most people learn you have a retarded child they tend to write him off as useless. Why isn't a better job of education done so the public will know that most retarded people can look after their personal needs, do housework, make meals, sew, and even hold jobs.

Retarded people have different intelligence levels. Some are smarter than others, just like the nonafflicted. I have encountered a great number of people who are under the impression that all retarded children must be put away. When I tell them our child lives at home and attends a special school they seem surprised.

This special school takes children from five through 18. The ones who can, learn reading, writing and math. Those who aren't able to handle these subjects are given vocational training. Everyone moves at his own speed. The ones who are equal to specialized training graduate to a sheltered workshop to learn woodwork, commercial painting, farming, how to operate simple machines, baking, carpentry and handicrafts.

Please print my letter as a favor to all parents of retarded children who encounter so much ignorance from people who should know better — Toronto Mother

Dear Mother: Here it is with my thanks. You have educated several million people today.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our 50s. We have had a good marriage for more than 30 years, with fine children and grandchildren.

About a year ago, I discovered my husband's collection of pornographic pictures and literature. I found the collection by accident and it is making me sick.

I could accept another woman in his life easier than this filthy junk. It would not seem so abnormal. A woman could go to bed do something for him. These dirty pictures and scummy short stories, with language such as I have never heard in all my life, seem so unnatural.

We have discussed this openly and he says it's a hobby, like stamp collecting. He claims there's something wrong with me, because I don't get turned on by it. Tell me, Ann, is something wrong with me—or is it him?—Appleton, Wisconsin

Dear App: You're fine, dear. It's a case of arrested development. Grown men who get their jollies from smutty pictures are like little boys who sneak behind the barn to do naughty things. Bear with him and one day he may get bored—just as a big segment of society is getting bored with dirty movies and naked stage plays.

Dear Ann Landers: I wasn't satisfied with your smart-aleck answer to that 17-year-old boy who wrote to say he was making it with 12 girls and was dead tired all the time. He needed advice and you gave him slick.

I would be glad to help him out. I am a 16-year-old fellow who isn't making it with anybody. If you will put me in touch with him I'd be happy to take over some of his obligations. I have a motorcycle so it's OK if he lives some distance from me. (I live in Vallejo.) Please print this soon so he will know he has a buddy who wants to help.—Randy of T.L.Q.

Dear Randy: That kid (he lives in Fullerton, Calif.) received dozens of offers of assistance from big-hearted fellows who were willing to come from as far away as Boise, but it is not my policy to put readers in touch with one another. Thanks for your offer, but no dice.

Successful Living

Reader Offers Rose Pot-Pourri

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a retired man and read your column every day. So now I want to help you. Gardening is my hobby. At present I am buried in roses and what a pleasure to have them when I am still alive and can smell them!

Long before incense or spray air freshenera, I can remember that "Rose Jar" in my grandmother's parlor and the lovely perfume when she would leave the jar open to freshen the air. The roses were plainer then but just as fragrant as now.

Last year I discovered how to make wine from the rose petals. It is very good and easy to make, so I will send you both recipes: the one for the pickled rose petals and the rose wine.

Keep up the good work and may God bless you. Some people really do have terrible problems.—Rose Jar.

Dear Rose Jar: Thank you for sending us your recipe "Rose Pot - Pourri". The results sound super.

If others want copies of Rose Pot-Pourri or Rose Petal wine we will be glad to make copies, asking only for 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(Note to Readers: We are grateful for the many other readers who have sent in variations of the Rose Pot-Pourri theme. Most of them contain approximately the same ingredients and I am sure any of them would do the job.)

Dear Doris: What is the proper way to drink a glass of ginger ale with a slice of orange projecting over the side of the glass?

Do you eat the slice of orange or just take it off and leave it at the plate? — Beverage Etiquette, Please.

Dear Beverage: That colorful slice on the rim of your glass is merely a garnish. If it is in your way remove it. If a straw is provided for imbibing, you can leave it where it is.

If it is thinly sliced and appeals to you go ahead and eat it. The only thing you don't do is squeeze your orange into your glass — probably because it is likely to splash mess up your table napkin and your dress or at least your fingers.

Dear Doris: In planning for a guest speaker is it better to have him merely give his speech, then thank him and that's that; or to ask him ahead of time whether he would be interested in a question and answer period? — Chairman.

Dear Chairman: Why not ask him what he would like? Sometimes a discussion period is the best part of all, since it brings into focus the questions the audience is wondering about.

Let the speaker know beforehand the time allotted to him, keeping in mind the possible discussion to follow. Most seasoned speakers enjoy a question period; just as a columnist like me appreciates a feedback from readers.

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Can a husband be overly attentive?

NOT to his wife—and she is the one who counts. Of course, not every husband who never lets his wife out of his thoughts is attentive. A husband is attentive if he never misses a birthday or anniversary because he looks forward to pleasing his wife. If husband, however, fears what his wife may do if he would ever miss a birthday or anniversary, then he is not attentive. He is simply thinking more of himself than he is of his wife.

Is it foolish to fear loneliness?

NO. Even if it were, a person cannot help being afraid to be lonely. Nor can he try loneliness to see if he could get used to it, the way he could attempt to resolve his more substantial fear—say a dread of standing up at home plate and trying to hit a pitched ball. A person fearing loneliness should seek professional help to find out if there is really something else he is afraid of, perhaps having to face reality when he is alone.

Must older children set example?

YES; and they will if they learn how to behave properly from the example set by their parents. Older children who are little more than tots themselves, however, should not be made to feel that they are responsible for the way younger brothers or sisters behave. There is no quicker way to stir resentment than for parents to let younger children get away with murder" and then blame the older children for the younger ones' behavior.

How Good Is Your Cow Sense?

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

To the urbanite, the Quinte Exhibition's judging competition sounds like a post-graduate biology course. As if knowing all about cows isn't enough, entrants must also be thoroughly versed in the intricacies of swine and crop raising.

To someone raised on a farm, of course, problems such as why crossbred cows are better than straightbred cows occur as a matter of daily conversation. The real trick is to explain why you placed the four black show heifers in the order you did.

Best judge among 160 young experts Thursday was Heather Rogers of RR 4, Odessa, who scored 632 of 650 possible points. The competition was open to persons in four counties between the ages of 12 and 20.

In addition is problems about breeding, the scorers want to know how many offspring a sow should produce each year and what type of chemical best combats ragweek in a field underseeded to alfalfa.

As before any exam, contestants spend weeks cramming information, although most have spent a lifetime preparing for just such tests.

Wednesday was Achievement Day at the Ex as the Belleville Rotary Club sponsored various junior livestock shows.

Shelving of Act Repeal Pleases Quinte Mohawks

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA RESERVE—Shelving of the 1969 federal white paper on repeal of the Indian Act would draw nothing but favorable reaction from all Canada's Indians, Bay of Quinte Mohawk Chief Earl Hill said today.

"It was definitely nothing but harmful to the Indian," said the chief.

His comments came in the wake of the Globe and Mail Ottawa report that the controversial white paper, which proposed repeal of the Indian Act and placing Indians on the same legal basis as other Canadian citizens, had been indefinitely shelved.

Instead, said the report, the government will make a step-by-step attempt to regain Indians' confidence by settling outstanding treaties and other obligations.

The 1969 document has been challenged by Indian groups since it was first announced.

"I think it's a good thing if it is shelved," said Chief Hill. "I don't think it should ever be brought back out again. It was definitely harmful to the Indians if we'd gone along with it . . ."

The chief indicated he was not surprised by the report and there had been recent evidence federal authorities were not pressing the white paper's cause.

"We've had communications from Indian affairs department officials saying they weren't pressing the issue, and that it was not a white paper policy but a white paper policy proposal. But how do you distinguish what it actually is?" asked the chief.

"We realize there have to be some definite changes made in the Indian Act. And we have to have some or our aboriginal claims settled . . . The government isn't honoring the treaties they made with the Indian."

Treaty terms containing aboriginal rights to unrestricted hunting and fishing, have been contradicted by a later-day white man's legislation, such as the Migratory Birds Act.

The Ottawa dispatch said confidential documents reveal the government's decision to shelve the white paper.

It adds: "Instead, the government will make a step-by-step attempt to regain the confidence of Indians by settling outstanding treaties and other obligations, as well as a series of other specific measures, before attempting to establish an overall policy on the status of the Indian people and their legal relationship with the government.

"Referring to research on aboriginal and treaty rights being undertaken by Indian organizations, a cabinet minute date July 14 records a decision that 'subject to any judicial rulings, no fundamental policy decisions should be made on status and special rights until the Indians can table their presentations to the government.'

The document is said to call for action in the meantime to improve programs and services for Indians, including changes in existing programs in response to reasonable Indian proposals."

$500 Grant Aids Rock Cleanup Of Moira River

Moira River Conservation Authority has received a $500 provincial grant to clear loose rocks from the Moira River channel between Latta and Plainfield.

The rocks constrict the channel, resulting in an upstream accumulation of flood during the spring run-off. The potential flood hazard will be removed with aid of the grant from the ministry of natural resources.

All member municipalities have been designated as benefitting and will be levied the Authority's share of the cost.

Hell Driver At Home In Fiery Inferno

Ex Hell Drivers' Antics Applauded

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Imperial Hell Drivers lived up to everyone's expectations last night — tearing around the track to the applause of the audience — and packing the grandstand twice to the delight of Quinte Exhibition promoters.

Crowds jammed both the grandstand and the infield area to watch the antics of clowns and drivers during the two, one-hour performances.

Admission to the grandstand show was included in the entry fee to the grounds.

The Hell Drivers navigated over ramps — raced through firewalls and sent sheets of dirt spraying over fans in their fish tail stops inches from the retaining fence.

"Precision driving is the name of the game," says Hell Driver manager Paul Riddell. "These are stunts and we make them look easier than they really are. We have accidents just like any other driver."

A clown working with the team last night testified to this fact by performing with his leg in a cast.

Complete with crutches, Co Co weaved across the track bringing roars of laughter from the crowd with every near miss.

To top his act, Co Co perched himself on the trunk of one of the cars and jockeyed it around the track, holding onto a length of rope.

A motorcycle-driving clown was driven through a wall of fire and Hell drivers who slid on the seats of their pants through burning gasoline were some of the highlights of last night's show.

Gem Mounting Many-faceted Hobby

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Jewelry and gem stones have taken over Quinte Mall this week as the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club holds its annual rock display.

The date of the event was changed this year to follow the Bancroft Gemshow. The result is nine top dealers from as far away as Toronto and Montreal displaying their wares.

But the real bargain for viewers is the demonstrations of jewelry making mounted by local craftsmen.

For the first time, the intricate craft of faceting gems can be observed, as Irwin Knight works to turn a lump of nondescript quartz into a sparkling gem stone than the average eye cannot distinguish from a diamond.

Mr. Knight, a machine shop instructor at Ontario School for the Deaf, began faceting North Hastings stones this spring and says there is no shortage of practice material in Hastings county quartz. Thunder Bay amethysts are another favorite, producing a sparkling soft mauve-colored gem.

The art of rolled gold wire jewelry - making is demonstrated by another craftsman from Kingston, who has a large supply of his wares for sale. The rolled gold wire settings are particularly appropriate for native stones.

But the dedicated rock hound will come into his own today when rock swapping begins. It will continue until the Mall closes Saturday evening.

Quinte Gem and Mineral Club is a young organization still seeking members interested in the wealth of stones available for the picking in his area.

"Membership in a club is the only way to get into most mines," says Mrs. Walter Savage, RR1, Corbyville, wife of the Club president.

The club offers its members field trips both to privately - owned mines and to rock-rich countryside in the northern parts of the county.

In The Money

Several Quinte Exhibition exhibitors have finished in the money for their entries.

Mrs. B. Prettie of Picton cleaned up in two divisions, winning a total of $166 in prize money for her vegetables and $106 in the hay, grain and field crops division.

Mrs. Prettie won 19 of the 65 prizes offered for vegetables and 22 of the prizes in the hay, grain and field crops division.

Hubert Thompson of Roblin also won 22 different prizes for hay, grain and field crops and won $103.

Beulah Cheese Factory at Madoc was judged to have the best cheese factory display and won $100.

Mrs. Cyril Shaw of Eldorado was the prize maple syrup maker this year, earning $36 for 9 entries in the 11 entry field.

Two sisters-inlaw led the field in domestic science displays. Mrs. Ilsner Leavett of Wooler won 18 prizes and her sister-in-law won 17.

Smash and Bash Tonight

Two demolition races will be staged before the grandstand audience tonight at the Quinte Exhibition.

In the first contest, four separate heats will be held with the winner of each receiving $50 and a trophy.

These heats are to begin at 7 p.m.

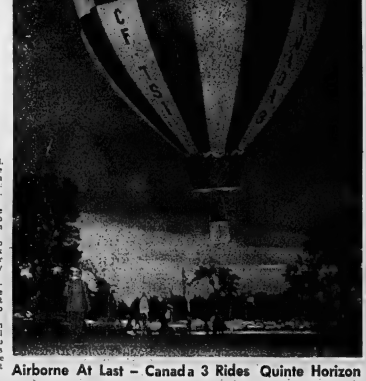
The second event, scheduled for 9 p.m. will be a run-off of the winners who will be competing for an additional $200 and another trophy.

So far there have been five drivers from the Belleville area who submitted names for the competition, with other entries from Trenton and Picton.

An added attraction to the derby will be the team members from the Imperial Hell Drivers. They will be driving somewhat stabbier cars than they used for last night's precision driving show.

Rules for the derby stipulate that drivers must be 18 years old. Drivers must wear crash helmets and cars must be equipped with a seat belt. All glass, with the exception of the windshield, must be removed from the car, and cars cannot be reinforced.

As an added safety measure, drivers will be disqualified if they intentionally smash into another driver's door.



Drivers interested in entering the competition are asked to be at the infield area for 6 p.m. to draw positions.

Ex Numbers Up

Attendance at the Quinte Exhibition yesterday showed an increase of 1,700 people over the same day last year.

Total paid attendance reached 9,914, not including hundreds of youngsters who attended the fair free of charge, celebrating Kid's Day.

Promoters expect that this year's fair will live up to the motto "bigger and better than ever" if attendance figures remain as encouraging.

Riders Dump Als

MONTREAL (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders rode to the top of the Eastern Football Conference standings Thursday night on the strength of a balanced attack and an ability to make the most of Montreal Alouette miscues.

Alouettes provided the opportunities and Gerry Organ's toe the finishing touches as Ottawa stormed to a 25-0 first-half lead and then hung on to beat Als 28-19.

Sonny Wade, starting Montreal quarterback, dismayed 18,649 fans at McGill Stadium with a display of football philanthropy which saw him dump five passes into the hands of Ottawa defenders and cough up two fumbles to Rough Riders.

The tone of what Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry called "unbelievable" first half was set early when Jim Elder stoned for fumbling the opening kickoff. Ottawa fired off Wade's first pass and running it 38 yards to the Montreal 35-yard line. Three plays later, Organ kicked the first of his four field goals, a 36-yard effort, and Ottawa jumped into a lead they never lost.

Wade's second pass of the game, two plays later, was intercepted by Dick Adams who ran the ball to the Als' 35. Quarterback Rick Cassata worked the ball to the Montreal one-yard line in four plays before diving over the line for the touchdown. Organ's convert gave Ottawa a 10-0 lead.

The young placement kicker added a 17-yard field goal four minutes later and Wade's fumble on the next play set him up for another three-point kick, this time from the 32, and the Riders moved in front 16-0.

Wade's fumble late in the first quarter on his own 29 set up Bob Hounsard's two-yard touchdown plunge, converted by Organ, early in the second quarter and 38-and 27-yard singles by Adams and Organ respectively gave Ottawa its 25-point half-time lead.

Montreal closed the gap when running back Ike Brown took a 25-yard pass from George Mira, substituting for Wade, for a touchdown. Sweet missed converts after both Harris and Brown TDs.

Etcheverry said after the game Wade has not necessarily been knocked out of his starting position.

"I don't have any idea who's going to be my starting quarterback next week."

Mira hit on seven of 15 throws for 73 yards and was not intercepted. Five of Wade's 10 aerials were picked off by Ottawa while his nine completions accounted for 97 yards.

Art Cantrelle, with 48 yards on 12 carries, was Rough Riders' leading rusher, while Denson's 34 yards on 11 runs was tops for Montreal.

Homers Best Interlocking Bet

TORONTO (CP) — Betting on Canadian Football League interlocking games? You might be well-advised to pop your wager on the home team.

In the 234 interlocking games played since the East-West encounters were inaugurated in 1961, only Hamilton-Cats have a winning road record—16 victories, 12 losses and one tie. And those figures will change tonight when the Cats prowl in Clarke Stadium against Edmonton Eskimos.

Before the home folks, however, it's a different story.

Only Montreal Alouettes and Winnipeg Blue Bombers have a losing home record in interlocking play—the other seven clubs are ahead of their visitors.

Across the board, EFC clubs have won 118 interlocking games to 101 for the Western Conference teams. There have been seven ties and four of those belong to British Columbia Lions.

Hamilton's interlocking nemesis is Calgary. The Stampeders are ahead of the Tiger Cats 4-2 in Calgary and 3-2 in Hamilton. The Cats, on the other hand, are ahead of tonight's opponents 4-1 in the west and 4-2 in Hamilton.

Team-by-team record of away games in the interlocking schedule, home games in brackets:

Montreal 7-9-1 (10-16-1); Ottawa 13-13-2 (21-7); Toronto 9-18-1 (19-9); Hamilton 6-12-1 (21-7).

Winnipeg Blue Bombers 8-13-1 (9-9-4).

Edmonton 7-14-1 (11-6); B.C. 3-13-2 (16-4); Saskatchewan 10-14 (14-10); Calgary 11-11 (15-7); Regina 8-15 (5-20).

Chuvalo Quick Winner

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo entered the ring at 19 pounds over his regular fighting weight and stopped challenger Tommy Burns with a technical knockout at 2:35 of the first round of a non-title fight Thursday night.

About 2,500 boxing buffs paid more than $25,000 to watch the bout which was scheduled to go 12 rounds.

The 34-year-old champion battered the unranked local boy with a combination of hooks to the body and head. Burns was knocked down three times before referee Dave Brown of Vancouver ended it.

Burns also lost in the chunky Toronto fighter at Hamilton in 1970, at 2:06 of the sixth round.

After the fight, Burns, 38, said he is quitting boxing but will promote the sport in this city.

The 226-pound champ was guaranteed $10,000 and Burns picked up $2,000 for their two-minute effort.

Burns, who weighed in at 228½ pounds, said Brown shouldn't have stopped the fight because he wasn't hurt.

"If he wasn't hurt, he had a hell of a good act," said Chuvalo.

Chuvalo's record now stands at 71 wins, 15 losses and two draws. He won 61 by technical knockouts. His next bout is in September against Virginia heavyweight Charles Boston.

Habs Sign First Draft Picks

MONTREAL (CP) — Nine players have signed multi-year contracts with Montreal Canadiens, the National Hockey League club announced Thursday.

Included in the signees were Steve Shutt, Dave Gardner, Michel (Bunny) Larocque and John Van Boxmeer, the Canadiens' top four choices in the NHL amateur draft last June.

Shutt and Gardner formed two-thirds of the highest scoring line in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last year while playing for Toronto Marlboros. Shutt had 83 goals and 69 assists for 113 points, while Gardner had 53 goals and 78 assists for 129 points. The other member of the line, Billy Harris, was drafted by New York Islanders, who begin play in the NHL this fall.

Larocque, a goaltender, played last season for Ottawa 67s of the OHA while Van Boxmeer, a six foot, 185-pound defenceman, was with Guelph CMCs of the Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Hubik, Pullan and Wilson all played college hockey in the United States last season. Pullan, a centre, was an all-American at Cornell University where he totalled 45 goals and 61 assists in 26 games.

Hubik was a defenceman with University of Minnesota at Duluth while Wilson played defence for the University of North Dakota.

Gilbert scored 33 goals last season with Hamilton Red Wings of the OHA, while Ford had 36 goals and 72 assists for Muskegon Mohawks of the International Hockey League.

Fifty-five players have received invitations to the Canadiens' camp, including goalie Bruce Landon and defencemen Jim Roberts, J. C. Tremblay and Brad Selwood, who have already signed contracts with teams in the World Hockey Association.

Sinden Schedules Warmups

TORONTO (CP) — Three intra-squad games have been scheduled at Maple Leaf Gardens to help coach Harry Sinden pick his starting lineup for the opening game of the Canada-Russia series, the Team Canada coach announced Thursday.

Sinden said the three warmup games Aug. 22, 26 and 29 will give his 35 players game experience before their first meeting with the Russian national team in Montreal Sept. 29.

"By playing three pre-series games, we'll get a pretty good idea of which 19 players should play in the opening game," Sinden said. "In addition, our players, who are used to National Hockey League rules, will get an opportunity to adapt themselves to international rules and the international system of two referees."

Arrangements for the intra-squad series were made with president Harold Ballard of Maple Leaf Gardens, who said there would be a later announcement on ticket prices and distribution for the games.

Hadfield, Hodge Stay Put

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Vic Hadfield, captain of New York Rangers, has signed a $1 million, five-year contract with the National Hockey League Club.

The newspaper says Hadfield only admitted to signing the multi-year contract but neither the 31-year-old winger nor his lawyer, Bob Woolf, in a telephone interview from Boston, denied the figure or term.

Woolf is quoted as saying the contract "itself is communicate with what any superstar is making in the National Hockey League or the World Hockey Association."

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins announced Thursday the signing of veteran right wing Ken Hodge to a five-year National Hockey League contract.

Terms were not announced, but Hodge's lawyers said the contract represents "a substantial commitment by the Bruins."

Hodge, 27, had 16 goals and 40 assists for 56 points in 60 regular games last season.

Hodge said he had been approached by Cleveland Crusaders of the new World Hockey Association, "but we never used that as a lever in our negotiations with the Bruins."

"I really don't think I ever seriously considered leaving Boston," he said. "There were many factors that influenced my decision to stay. I have been five years and I have been treated more than fairly."

Globe Upsets League Leaders

The Globe Hotel finally broke the spell Rollins Construction had built around them in the Commercial Softball League Thursday night by upsetting the runaway pennant winners 3-2.

The Hotelmen earned their first against Rollins with two runs in the first and one in the sixth and then withstood a last-inning rally by the Constructionmen. The loss was only Rollins' second of the season.

Winning pitcher Bill Harrison drove in the first two hotel runs with a double and two errors produced the winning marker in the sixth. Globe's only error of the game, Dale Duvals single and a sacrifice brought in Rollins', two runs in the final frame.

Harrison gave up five hits, three singles to Duval, a double to Ken Denille and a single to Al Ferguson. The two double righthander fanned two and walked one. He added a pair of singles to his cause with Ted Wallace, Rob McLeod, Perry Reddick and Lionel Gordon also contributing singles.

Ken Denille took his first loss of the season but kept his 0.00 earned run average as all three Globe markers were unearned. Denille struck out 6 for six hits while stiffling nine and walking two.

Meads Biggest Winners

The long Industrial Softball League regular season battle is finally over but Mead Johnson and CNR but now the play-off wars begin.

Meads emerged from the dust as Division B pennant winners and the league's winningest team after last night's 2-1 sudden - death victory over the CN.

Sonny Holloway hurled the five-hit win but it was Gary Genereaux's rbi double in the seventh inning that gave Meads the title. Holloway struck out nine and walked one.

Mark Sheridan took the loss for the Trainmen, who had led the league all year long. Sheridan struck out seven and walked five. Barry Tomlin doubled for the only extra-base hit.

Meads won't have much time to digest their pennant win as they open the first round of the play-offs tonight at the Alemite against the division A pennant winners, Intelligencer. The CN battle the Lenders in their first post season encounter Monday. Ellis and Foleys meet each other at Prince Charles School and the Utilities battle Stewart Warner at the Alemite to round out tonight's schedule.

Squirts Half Home

It's two down and two to go for the Read Johnson squirts in their quest for the OASA Zone championship, after eliminating Peterborough last night.

The Belleville boys nipped their visitors 3-1 to sweep the best-of-three series in two straight games. Meads won the first game 7-6 Tuesday night.

Farmers Trim Barber Gang

Morton's Barbershop captured Prince Edward - Lennox North Shore Softball League pennant during the regular season but that might be all they will win after failing to trim the Farmers last night.

The third - place Farmers shaved the Belleville boys 9-6 for a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five semi-final series.

Dennis Snell started for the winners, going three innings before giving way to Clarke Alexander. The pair allowed seven hits while fanning eight and walking only two. Brian Montgomery, Paul Pettingill, and Bill Kristanek each had a pair of hits for the Farmers.

Bruce Sutherland went the route for Belleville, allowing 10 hits and striking out seven.

Fourth game in the series will be Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. in Ameliabburg. The winner meets Consecon in the league finals. Consecon eliminated Wannamaker and Bolly Stables in three straight games.

the local nine with an error accounting for the other score. Bob Hedley finished for Belleville with Ron Begley and David Urch adding singles.

Tim Soule hurled the win, firing a distance M. He struck out 15 including the final three batters in the seventh after a triple and double walks had produced the lone Peterborough tally.

Mike Davidson allowed only four hits for the Lift Lock City crew and picked up 13 strikeouts. Mike Sabotino tripled for the losers' big blast.

Meads have eliminated Nanrace and Consecon both in straight games and now await the winner of the Fakenham-Gananoque series in the semi-finals.

Bob's , Flyers Make Finals

It's boiled down to the finals in the bantam division of the Belleville Minor Lacrosse playdowns after Bobs Sports and the RCAF wrapped up their semi-final series in convincing manner last night.

Bobs blanked Bud Gill Appliances 3-0 for the round-robin win in the best - of - three series. One more contest, a draw, Wally Inwood, John Labarge and Tom Shatland picked up the markers for the winners.

The Flyers also picked up a shutout, stopping Towers Food City 5-0 to take the series two games to one. Jerry Reese tallied twice for the winners with Jamie Kennedy, Bob Sanders and Bob McLean adding the single goals.

Astros' Walker Not Pessimistic

Baseball may be a game of inches for some, but it's still a matter of feet for Harry Walker.

"We're close enough in the National League West race so that Cincinnati can hear the pitter-patter of our little feet," says the Houston Astros manager.

"Close enough is 6½ games behind the leaders—not a ridiculous position at this time of the season, but certainly not suicidal.

"Anything can happen," Walker said after his Astros defeated Atlanta 9-3 while the Reds were losing to Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2.

The Dodgers also chopped a game off their third-place position in the West. They now stand 16 games behind Cincinnati.

"I'm not giving up on this race," said the Dodger manager Walt Alston. "After all, we were farther back at this time last year."

The Dodgers used Willie closed with a rush and wound up losing the West pennant by one game to San Francisco Giants.

Tommy Helms, who played for Cincinnati last year, provided a big hit in Houston's victory Thursday night. His two-run triple came in the sixth inning rally in the seventh inning that put the game away.

The Astros scored five runs in the third inning, then lost a lead in the fifth when Mike Lum hit a three-run homer for the Atlanta 3 at the stage for Helms hit past a diving Dusty Baker in centre field.

The Dodgers used Willie Crawford's big night to beat the Cincinnati. He had four hits and knocked in four runs.

Crawford was riding the bench with a .216 average and had only one hit in his last 13 appearances before Thursday night.

Reliable Osteen, with eighth-inning relief help from Jim Brewer, won his 13th game. He is second in the third kfi hander to forfeet the Reds this season.

Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson thought it was the Reds who beat themselves—not Osteen.

"Osteen is a smart pitcher," said Anderson. "But I really didn't think he beat us tonight.

Billy Williams drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in a five-run fifth inning as Chicago defeated Montreal. Williams career RBIs now stand at 1,154 to move him into second place behind Ernie Banks on the all-time Cub list.

Pace Setters Play Saw-off

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After a long night's journey into today's Chicago White Sox and Oakland Athletics settled nothing in the American League West Division race.

The battle for first place that began Thursday night in Oakland was suspended early today at 3-3 after 17 innings.

The game will resume tonight and be followed by the second game of the crucial series.

Elsewhere Detroit Tigers remained one-half game ahead of Baltimore in the AL East despite a 1-0 loss to New York—the third-place yankees are only two back—when the Orioles suffered a similar 1-0 setback at the hands of Milwaukee Brewers.

The Athletics, with a one-game lead over Chicago, twice came from behind in the five-hour baseball battle with no end.

Pat Kelly put the sox ahead 3-2 in the top of the 13th, leading off with a triple and scoring later on Bob Locker's wild pitch.

But Angel Mangual hit a one-out double in the bottom of the 13th for the Athletics and scored on pinch hitter Gene Tenace's two-out single off Steve Kealey.

Both teams all but depleted their supply of pitchers in the first 17 innings of the game, with Oakland using eight and Chicago six.

The struggling Tigers suffered their sixth 1-0 defeat of the season when Ike Brown's run against Joe Coleman on Bobby Murcer's double, an infield out and Johnny Callison's two-out infield hit.

New York then held on behind the five-hit pitching of Steve Kline and Sparky Lyle, who posted his 26th save.

Rookie Gary Ryerson scattered 10 hits and George Scott singled home a sixth-inning run as Milwaukee nipped Baltimore and ended the Orioles' four-game winning streak.

Umpire Asks To Be Excused

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Joe Cronin of the American League announced Thursday pire Bill Haller had requested that he not be assigned to any games involving Baltimore Orioles or Detroit Tigers because his brother, Tom Haller, is a Detroit catcher.

"Bill made the request about a week ago and would any thing be might favor Detroit in said game," Cronin said.

Cronin said the request has been approved.

Detroit and Baltimore are the leading contenders for the AL East championship.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, Aug. 12:

Aries (March 21-April 19): Close associates or family members demand more attention than you find convenient. Possibly you have an overly crowded schedule to meet.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Extra care with all things mechanical is advised. People may be contrary as there are too many quirks for orderly routine.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Prepare for changes, moments of tension which pass as you express your concern. Compromise anything short of principles.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Taking care of matters at hand may be enough for this week end. Make notes of news but delay response until you have more to say.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Watch your impatience and inclination to pose abrupt demands. Basic achievers nothing may spoil much of what you already have well set.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Talking over your business with friends leads to complications. Relatives tend to differing views over money and its uses.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your judgment is biased on behalf of your friends. A second thought should cross before any definite commitment is made.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Opposition may come from people you don't know very well, for reasons having nothing to do with you personally.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Minding your own affairs is a fine art again. Feeding off questions about money with friends and acquaintances is difficult but necessary.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Look for peace and inner harmony while you reconsider schedules and cope with interruptions. Travel should be saved with patience.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get back some of what you have been giving out, and if it's not pleasant, it's your job to do things to change matters.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Everybody has bright ideas about spending money. Including yours. Think about the future and what you have promised to do.

Gravenhurst Man to Face Charge in U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — County Court Judge Harry Walsberg ruled Thursday that a former Gravenhurst city treasurer should be returned to the United States where he faces a charge of embezzling $11,000 from a San Jose, Calif., bank where he formerly worked.

John Lamoreaux, a 41-year-old Canadian citizen, was charged with three embezzlements from Crocker National Bank in San Jose in 1963.

Lamoreaux has 15 days to appeal the results of the extradition hearing.

He was arrested July 21 by RCMP at Gravenhurst, about 100 miles north of Toronto.

Charter Flight Operators Fined for Tax Evasion

TORONTO (CP) — Two charter flight operators were fined a total of $211,410 Thursday for evading payment of income tax between 1967 and 1969.

Fining John Gilligan, 45, and James McVeigh, 40, both of Toronto, Judge M. J. Clooney described their operation as a most profitable enterprise.

Both men pleaded guilty. McVeigh was fined$279,760 and Gilligan $131,650. They were each given six months to pay.

If they default McVeigh must serve four years and five months and Gilligan five years and five months in penitentiary.

Investigator Otto Skyraky said the charter-flight operation, which operated under 16 club names including the Irish Canadian Social and Athletic Club, grossed more than $3 million and showed net profit of $412,-000 from 139 charter flights.

Car Sickness Pill Results in Sleep

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 12-year-old daughter has been getting car-sick since she was six. Our doctor assures me she will outgrow it and in the meantime has given her a medication. However, the medication works by putting her to sleep, and I am concerned about the emotional problems which have resulted. She refuses to go on class trips or accept any invitation that means riding in a car. With all the serious illnesses this probably doesn't seem important, but if you could, I would appreciate any suggestions. — A.J.S.

Maybe not a serious illness, but it's serious to her.

One suggestion is that, since there are various seasick remedies, trying some of the others, or trying smaller doses, perhaps may calm her down enough without putting her to sleep. It may take a little experimentation, and I hope she'll go along with the efforts. After-all, she's missing a lot of fun the way things are.

While the motion-sickness remedies are pretty good these days, one possible alternative might be worth a try: very small doses of phenobarbital or some other sedative.

Another thought is to give her the medication (the one she is using or some other) a little more in advance of a car trip which may be more satisfactory, and perhaps make a smaller dose just as effective. A heavy meal before a ride is not as good, generally, as a smaller meal taken earlier so it has time to work gradually.

Finally, in smaller children, an old remedy is to put an ordinary paper bag, such as a grocery sack, on the youngster's chest, next to the skin. Whether it was merely a counter-irritant or worked because of some psychological aspect, I have no idea, I just know that people have said it succeeded. At 12, your daughter may be too old to try that. Still it's a notion.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I just came from the doctor yesterday. I'd been having trouble with shortness of breath and was almost sure it was my heart.

He gave me an examination and diagnosis and said he couldn't find a thing wrong with my heart. It is emphysema I have, he says.

Emphysema, a loss of elasticity in the lungs, is one of the important causes of shortness of breath. It is not a cure-all disease, but proper care is necessary to keep it from becoming worse.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it a fact that sickle cell anemia affects only Negroes? Also, why just lour our son, 12, who had cystic fibrosis. Is it true that Negroes do not get this disease? And why can't research find a cure for either of these diseases: — L.A.

It's not true that only blacks get sickle cell anemia, but it is vastly more prevalent among them. Otherwise it is found chiefly among people from the Mediterranean area, and is being reported among Puerto Ricans. It is rare in black people.

Cures for these diseases: Great efforts are being made, and there has been progress in easing the intensity of these diseases. Both are inherited disorders, which makes cure very difficult, but research is making headway.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

You are declarer with the West hand at Six Notrump and North, leads the jack of clubs. How would you play the hand? Assume that the diamonds are divided 3-1.

You have to be extremely careful if you want to make sure of the contract. Win the club, cash the ace of diamonds, and lead the queen of hearts!

If the queen loses to the king, you have twelve tricks. You win any return, then cash the A-K of hearts and Q-K of diamonds. Next cash the jack of hearts and discard the nine of diamonds. With the diamonds now unblocked, you cash the A-K-Q winning yourself to twelve tricks.

Now let's assume that the defenders refuse the queen of hearts. In that case, continue with the ten. If they take the ten, you again have twelve tricks, playing essentially as described above.

Of course, the opponents may refuse the ace, too. In that event, lead the queen of spades! If the queen loses to the king, you once more find yourself able to unblock the diamonds by discarding one later on the jack of spades and will make the contract in that suit.

If the queen of spades is refused, you don't have to bother unblocking the diamonds. You score twelve tricks consisting of two spades, three hearts, four diamonds and three clubs.

Note that you cannot afford to cash the ace of hearts before attempting to force out the king. You must undermined the ace each time to assure the contract. Against some declarations, leading the ace would be fatal if the defense met its obligations fully.

It would also be technically wrong to start out by cashing the A-Q of diamonds. If you intend to give up a trick in hearts or spades, you could run into serious difficulty if the player with the short promptly took it and returned a diamond, thus blocking the suit.

One other pitfall to avoid in leading spades before hearts, that could also prove fatal under some conditions.

Tomorrow: Top-notch card reading.

Land Pressures On Upswing Here

Crime Buster Returns

MONTREAL (CP) — Pacifique Plante, a noted Montreal crime-buster in the early 1950s, says a provincial inquiry into organized crime scheduled to begin hearings this fall is the only way to check the spread of underworld power.

The structure of the inquiry commission, extraordinary powers of search and seizure given the Quebec Police Commission and apparent government determination to conduct a thorough investigation are extremely promising, he said in an interview.

In Montreal this week to discuss a book he is writing on organized crime, Mr. Plante recalled his days of fighting crime and discussed the growing sophistication of underworld figures.

Crime bosses have decentralized their interests, he said, and are infiltrating legitimate businesses, spreading fear as their main weapon against the public and even police.

Mr. Plante gained instant fame in the early 1950s as author of a series of articles on Montreal crime after being dismissed as captain of the police morality squad in 1948 for "insubordination."

He returned to Montreal last year to launch a book and said his old ally, Mayor Drapeau, had become a "dictator" who has "eliminated all his former backers."

OMB Power To Be Clarified

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Board has issued a formal order declaring that higher courts should determine the OMB's jurisdictional powers to reconsider the merits of the Scarborough Expressway.

Metropolitan Toronto has challenged Mr. Kennedy's right to reconsider the merits of a section of the $102-million expressway in east-end Toronto. Residents in the area, where 300 homes would have to be demolished, have objected to it.

Toronto Faces Transit Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Time began to run out today for negotiators trying to halt a transit strike in this city of more than 2,000,000.

Pessimism and optimism alternated during an all-night session following talks that began Friday morning.

Leonard Moynehan, president of the Amalgamated Transit Union, said the union needed a settlement by noon if the executive board is to call off the strike by 3,300 Toronto Transit Commission workers, set to begin at midnight Sunday night.

The strike would leave an estimated 1.8 million daily passengers without public transit. 1.3 million without public transit.

Lewis on Campaign Big Business 'Welfare Bums'

TORONTO (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis set the scene for his party's election campaign Friday with a blistering attack on big corporations, society's "real welfare bums."

In a fact-and-figure-packed speech to about 40 nominees and party pillars—they included son Stephen, Ontario leader, Donald C. MacDonald, national party president, and Clifford Scotton, national secretary and campaign director—Mr. Lewis cited examples of what he described as the "corporate welfare system."

He said big business takes an increasing amount from the public purse through grants while paying a decreasing amount in taxes through various loopholes and concessions.

It is an issue he and his party intend to hammer at until the next federal election.

An aide said later the party intends to produce a list of 100 companies which have cashed in on what Mr. Lewis called "a new kind of welfare rip-off—corporations that siphon hundreds of millions of dollars each year from the public trough while they pay a declining share of the income tax receipts to government services.

The 63-year-old socialist-leader cited what he said were three examples of this:

—Davie Shipbuilding Ltd., a subsidiary of Canada Steamship Lines, received regional expansion and shipbuilders' grants worth $27 million between 1966 and 1972. During those same years the parent company—tax figures are not broken down among subsidiaries—paid $35 million in income tax.

—Denison Mines Ltd., an Ontario uranium-mining company headed by Stephen Roman, Conservative candidate in the Toronto area riding of York North, did not pay any taxes between 1961 and 1970, despite profits of $53,538,288 between 1965 and 1970 "and Lord knows how many millions in the four years before that."

—Shell Canada a subsidiary of the multi-national oil and gas company, Shell International, had net earnings of $516,557,000 between 1964 and 1969, Mr. Lewis said.

But during that time it paid not one single, solitary cent of income tax, thanks to a vast network of tax concessions, depletion allowances and other dodges."

McGovern To Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — George McGovern, Democratic candidate and apostle of the so-called "new politics," plans to break tradition and campaign during the opposition party's national convention later this month, The South Dakota senator, trailing badly in the public opinion polls, is mapping plans for a full week of on-the-road campaigning during the Republican convention Aug. 21-23 in Miami Beach, McGovern campaign strategists said Friday.

Public Access Needed

By HARRY MULHALL
Water shrinks.

Today it's shrinking slightly more than ever — from public view.

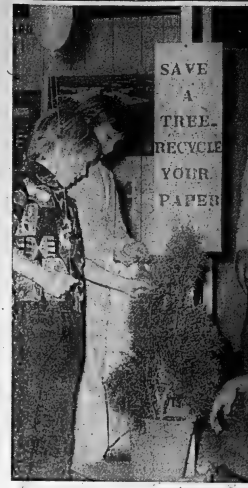
The water is still there, plentiful as ever—but development is making it less accessible to the public.

The trend poses a potential problem that nags government conservationists — a concern expressed yesterday during the 1972 Ontario Parks Association convention.

The pattern of creeping urbanization sees waterfront land developed to the benefit of some — and the disadvantage of many unless protective steps are taken, and local authorities may be the best insurance agencies, senior government spokesmen indicated.

In a small way, the problem already is visible in the Belleville area, says D. A. H. Farmer, who is helping head a unique scrutiny of one of Ontario's major water courses.

Mr. Farmer, a federal civil servant and co-chairman of the Canada - Ontario - Rideau Trent Severn Study Committee (CORTS) headed a panel that discussed his group's work with OPA delegates at the Four Seasons Hotel.



The federal-provincial study involves the 423-mile waterway between Ottawa and Georgian Bay in which the Bay of Quinte links the Trent and Rideau systems.

Unavoidably, there's development along the waterway. Inevitably, it's increasing. But the heavier its concentration, the less accessible waterways become to the public — unless needed measures are taken.

Mr. Farmer describes the Bay as a "most important link in the whole Rideau-Trent-Severn corridor. The group is still studying Quinte waters and the Lake Simcoe area, where development already is intense.

"The problem through out the corridor is for people to

Preservation of the environment is an international proposition, as three youngsters from New Jersey get the message from Belleville's Clarence Young at Quinte Exhibition. Visitors to the PACE booth yesterday were Darren, Danica and Trent Beeby, in the city to visit grandparents.

Exhibition Is Changing

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

With the old incentive toward agricultural excellence gone from fall fairs, Quinte Exhibition executives seek their role as a bridge, linking producer and consumer.

And the shift in consumers' interest is evident in exhibits. For the first time, ecology and environmental control surfaced this year at the fair, in a booth set up by PACE (People Against a Contaminated Environment).

The Sandbank's issue and pollution of the Bay of Quinte were the themes, but tucked into a corner a cedar bush pleaded through a sign behind it, "Save a tree by recycling paper".

The recreational aspects of the natural environment are emphasized at the Quinte Hastings Trail booth. The trail is mapped out, markers are identified and pictures of the scenic route lead the hikers.

In the Ben Bleecker Auditorium the Bartonian Metaphysical Society will test your extra-sensory perception for free and just outside the doors the women of St. John Ambulance are eager to baby-sit your children, also for nothing.

East Indian curio booths have reached Belleville for the first time this year, with three different firms offering a touch of the exotic east to fair-goers.

The historical Scottish-French alliance is alive and still going strong, indicated Elmer Wood of Crookston, whose Trumbee Mona walked off the show ring with the Ayrshire championship. Mr. Wood also took the reserve

Stanfield Supports Provinces

ALMA, Que. (CP) — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Friday the provinces would be given the powers they need to fulfill their aspirations if he wins the next federal election.

Speaking in French on an open-line radio show, Mr. Stanfield said: "I want to strengthen Canadian unity and that can only be done by a decentralization of powers."

During the 90-minute broadcast, the Conservative leader told listeners in this community 140 miles north of Quebec City, that he learned of provincial needs while premier of Nova Scotia.

The federal government should hold a national conference of major business leaders to find ways to reduce unemployment, he said during his tour.

Unemployment could be reduced, he said, if there was greater investment in private industry and if Canadian industry could gain better positions in foreign markets.

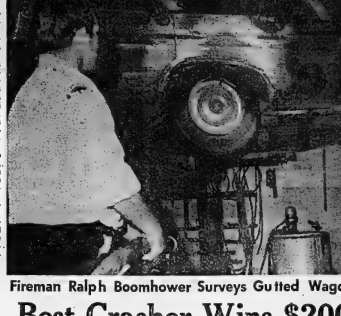
Car Destroyed In Garage Fire

Mechanics removing worn shock absorbers from a customer's car Friday evening, believed gasoline fumes ignited by sparks from an electric torch were the cause of an estimated $2,500 flash fire.

Gene Mulroney, owner of Mulroney's Sunoco station at the intersection of Dundas and Bershtmer, told The Intelligencer he had a helper, Donald Bruce, had just set aside the old shocks, when there was a "burst of flames".

Asked what the possible cause was, he said he believed gasoline fumes trapped in the rear of the station wagon owned by Kendrick Brambley of 82 Bertram Boulevard, were ignited by heat or sparks from the acetylene torch which had been used to remove the worn parts.

When city firemen arrived, shortly after the 8 p.m. alarm, they were greeted with heavy flames and smoke coming from the two-door garage.



Mr. Mulroney said he had almost got the fire out when his small extinguisher ran dry.

The 1967 station wagon was almost completely gutted, windows were broken and the exterior badly scorched. Glass from the sliding garage doors was broken, a car jack and fan belts were damaged, but apart from that, "there was a minimum amount of damage", said the garage owner.

Mr. Mulroney said at no time was there an explosion, adding the gasoline from the Brambley car was drained as soon as the fire was completely out.

"We were very, very fortunate," he added.

City police estimated damage to the car . . . considered a writeoff . . . was $1,200. The garage owner estimates between $1,000 and $1,500 damage to the garage.

Municipalities Best Source for Decisions

Local governments have a responsibility to make known their case in tackling water environment problems in their areas, the Ontario Parks Association heard yesterday.

Safeguarding water resources is also the job of municipalities as well as senior governments, delegates to the OPAs 1972 convention were told.

The convention winds up today after a three-day conference at the Four Seasons Motel that drew delegates from various municipalities across the province.

Final business today follows the conference's social highlight last night — a civic banquet given by Belleville as host city.

The role of civic governments in environmental issues was stressed during the conference's major discussion session yesterday.

It came as federal and provincial civil servants discussed findings of the Canada-Ontario Study — Trent - Severn Study Committee (CORTS).

The CORTS study involves the 435-mile water corridor linking Ottawa to Georgian Bay and includes the Bay of Quinte and Trent systems.

Leading the discussion was CORTS co-chairman, D. A. H. Farmer, of the Ministry of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

OPA delegates were told as municipal representatives they had both the responsibility and opportunity to resolve environmental problems.

What happens along a waterway involving all local governments and agencies in that system, said Norman Patrick, conservation branch director of the province's natural resources ministry.

Failure to recognize this principle results in "a chain of once-ordinated efforts," he said.

Reaching solutions "isn't a matter of senior governments and of municipal governments also," he said.

Mr. Farmer told OPA members there seemed no reason to create a "super agency" to handle the environmental needs such as those cited by the CORTS study.

"There are such agencies in the field now," he said. "We don't need another level of government. What we need is co-ordination."

Senior governments may be able to provide a form of coordination but much lethal responsibility "is going to wind up at the municipal level".

Last night's civic banquet was attended by more than 200, including delegates guests city council and administrators headed by Mayor Russell Scott who was chairman of the event.

Concluding business today includes the OPA annual meeting during which new officers will be elected for the coming year.

Best Crasher Wins $200

There is no more sickening sound than the grinding of metal against metal in a car crash.

Perhaps that's why' stared enactments of the same grinding crash draws capacity audiences to demolition derbies and scenes of organized mayhem in which drivers deliberately try to wreck each other's cars.

The thrill of destructivity drew more than 2, 000 people to Quinte Exhibition's grandstand last night for the first demolition derby in two years.

The crashed against cars, revved - up engines smoked and snorted and backfired, clouds of smoke and steam rose over the track, gas tanks were ripped out and fell thawered over the mud.

The event, was sponsored by Motorland Chrysler, BP Oil and Quinte Exhibition, was produced by Paul Riddell of Imperial Heil Drivers.

Rules stipulate taat drivers must wear crash helmets and cars must have seat belts fill in which drivers deliberately try to wreck each other's cars.

Four heats were run, with four cars in each battling until only one was left running. The four winners, their cars hastily put in operating order again, met for the final cham pion heat.

Like most amateur sports, demolition derbies attract "pros", competitors who enter most of the events run, off in their areas to finally achieve a high degree of skill.

Two such came out winner and runner-up in the Quinte Exhibition event. Winner of the $200 grand prize was Ken Zampoli of Toronto and runner-up was another Toronto man, Klaus Tenson. Winners of the other heats, and $50 each, were Earl Gregory of Trenton and Ray Gaffud of Motorland Chrysler.

Paper Pickup Planned

The waste paper drive, once the exclusive property of the occasional fund - raising Boy Scout Sarnia, is the firm holding the city's garbage contract, will begin compulsory recycling of paper in the fall.

Since June, a moderately successful recycling project has been operating in Park Dale. Quinte Sanitation has supplied an extra man to separate paper from each household garbage.

The paper was sold to Belleville Metal and Waste, which in turn sells the material to Miller Brothers mill.

Harold Graham of Quinte Sanitation said the company will use packers to pick up the waste paper after the regular garbage pick up. He said his firm will not make a profit on the recycled paper, but hopes to break even.

PACE's Mr. Reed said his group went first to city council to ask for paper recycling.

"I thought at that time that we needed a depot where paper could be redirected," he related. "I asked a couple of aldermen for help in getting a depot. They said they could not find one, but they could give us some advice."

Overtures to Quinte Sanitation met with a warmer response and recycling will soon become a reality in the city. The successful, the company may even extend the service to Trenton.

Land Squeeze Is Coming

get to the water without having to own the land," explained the farmer in an interview after the discussions.

"All of the waterfront is being taken up for private development and people don't get a chance to get to the water. The problem is only arriving in this area now."

He cites as a local, if small example, the almost total buildup along the Bayshore between Belleville and Trenton.

Is this the harbinger of denser developments?

"Everything is possible," says the Corks co-chairman. "We're seeing a lot of growth now on Lake Simcoe at $300 a foot front. So you're paying $30,000 for a 100-foot strip of land."

(B) comparison, one Belleville realtor estimates land on the now unfashionable Bayshore of the Bay brings about $150 a foot frontage. He wouldn't guess on the Belleville - Trenton shoreline since, he said, land is so scarce in both.)

Development in areas like Lake Simcoe will set up pressures nudging growth into other areas, said Mr. Farmer.

"And here it is what? A 100 miles or so out of Toronto — 'an hour by Highway 401. So it's coming — and we have to be ready for it."

A prime worry — one mentioned during the OPA discussion — is that development areas along the Ottawa-Georgian Bay corridor eventually might become one unbroken strip. Hoping of assuring public accessibility to water resources, CORTS already has recommended a parkland belt on the shoreline be kept in open space.

If there is such development "there should be room for people as well. It shouldn't be necessary, for instance, for someone to go to Nanance to get to the Bay."

He emphasizes the inevitability of development, and indicates CORTS' attitude is not to stand in the way of progress.

"We're not against development. Development has to come," says Mr. Farmer. "All we're saying is that: There's no reason why the situation, without detriment to the people owning the land, can't be channelled by some kind of government to ensure access."

Municipally - appointed conservation authorities do "beautiful jobs" in such situations, he says.

"We certainly believe them very useful because . . . they can identify local needs. It's easy for a province to say we need a provincial park — and provide a major park. But for the municipalities, the municipalities are the best people to answer the problems."

championship with Ivanhoe Pretty Girl.

In Holstein country, a 63-herd Ayrshire operation's unusual, Mr. Wood admitted.

"I'm into Ayrshires because my grandfather was," he said. "That's the main reason. He came from Scotland."

Ayrshires are unpopular in Hastings County, not common in Quebec. For breeding stock, Mr. Wood has to go to Quebec.

"My bull, he's a Frenchman," said Mr. Wood.

The bi-cultural alliance has paid off for Mr. Wood, with his 3-year-old Mona now champion Ayrshire of both Kingston and Belleville fairs, and giving promise of a distinguished show-ring career.

Her success suggests that federal government bicultural experts might begin their campaign again on the bovine level.

Champion Mona's milk goes to a cheese factory, and the end product is on sale in two places on the exhibition grounds.

That taken - for - granted gourmet's delight, Belleville-Brockville Swiss, is available at the Eldorado Cheese Factory's booth and in the Curling Rink. The Eldorado factory sold 40f pounds of fresh curd Thursday at 25 cents and 50 cents a bag. It's staff expertly handled city-dwellers' questions such as : "Curd is a waste product of cheesemaking, isn't it?" and "Aged cheese turns white with age, doesn't it?"

The connection between milk and cheese is demonstrated in the curling rink where district cheese factories take turns each day making cheese.

Wiping his sweating brow, Eric Reid of Evergreen Factory in Stirling said "It's not many years ago that I did it all by hand, but I don't like it."

He was turning curd in the vat with a fork, and occasionally offering fresh, rubbery pieces to spectators.

About 4,000 pounds of milk is delivered daily to the Curling Rink vat, where modern cheesemakers get underway at 11 a.m. They have automatic equipment, and cheesemaking processes, in the old-fashioned way of 1890. But the final operation, pressing the curd into cheese, is forgotten. So great is the market for curd that all produced at Quinte Exhibition is sold "as is".

Eyesore Fence at Picton Junkyard

Want Eyesore Removed

PICTON (Staff) — A Hill Street junk yard owned by Bloomfield wrecker Murney Howe was termed "an eyesore and certainly a fire hazard," by a Picton woman who addressed council this week.

Kathleen Camp, resident of a section of Broad Street overlooking the junk yard site, said Mr. Howe has not operated a business there in more than twelve years. She said at least six years have passed since the high board fence surrounding the junk yard was painted.

Miss Camp urged action from town council and said the site had become "a jungle" but she had been unable to contact a weed inspector to view it.

A neighbor living adjacent to the wrecker's lot also is concerned with the fire hazard it creates, according to Miss Camp.

One Hill Street resident yesterday recalled that a petition was circulated in the neighborhood several years ago demanding that Mr. Howe fence his junk yard because it was an eyesore.

The woman said a fence was built, but neighbors changed their minds as time passed and asked to have it removed. Mr. Howe did not comply with the request.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis yesterday said the complaint concerning the junkyard has been referred to town solicitor Jack Ward who will decide whether or not Mr. Howe is contravening any municipal bylaws.

Hoarse Power

Francis Maracle of RR1, Deseronto, tries the Monaghan Pulmonary Function Analyser in the Curling Club at the Quinte Exhibition while tester Mrs. Betty Gray watches. The respiratory analyzer revealed that Mr. Maracle, 54, a steady smoker until six years ago, has permanently reduced lung capacity but can breathe comfortably. The device can be used in hospitals to check for cystic fibrosis, asthma and other diseases.

Breath Testers at Ex Examine Lung Capacity

Been feeling short of breath lately and wondering what to do about it?

There's a device in the respiratory disease booth in the Curling building at the Quinte Exhibition that can provide most of the answers.

One mighty breath and the state of your lungs, plus the passages which lead to them, are defined to whatever degree of congestion exists. The analysis is free and the experts on hand will be only too willing to test you.

Mrs. Betty Gray, a pulmonary technologist at Belleville General Hospital, says her Monaghan Analyzer is particularly effective in exposing damage inflicted by smoking.

"All smokers fall down in one test or another compared to non-smokers," she says.

Two sensing units on the $1,000 machine measure the amount of air exhaled and its rate of flow when a person blows into a specially-designed tube. By simply pressing three buttons on the analyzer, Mrs. Gray determines the person's lung capacity, the amount exhaled in the first second and the peak rate of flow.

It is the second factor that is most important in checking for cigarette damage. If the testee cannot emit 70 per cent of the air in his lungs within one second, chances are he's suffering from bronchial problems brought on by smoke passing through the bronchial tubes.

A normal male, in his early 40's and less than six feet tall, has a lung capacity of 4.5 litres.

But one curious smoker — he put away 25 cigarettes a day for 25 years before quitting six months ago — managed to exhale only 3.69 litres of air, 2.58 litres in the first second. That works out to exactly 70 per cent, prompting Mrs. Gray to comment:

"If we test him in six months, I daresay he'll come up again. But how much, I don't know. The damage has been done."

Mrs. Gray has used a similar device in local schools.

The analyser is on loan to the Hastings-Prince Edward Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association for the duration of the fair, although Mrs. Gray says the hospital may purchase one soon.

Testing hundreds of persons each day is no problem for Mrs. Gray, who is currently preparing a survey on smokers versus non-smokers in the hospital's pulmonary ward. But for her booth-mate, Mrs. Margaret Hallam, it presents a unique hazard.

"I help out when people are exhaling," she says. "By the end of the day, I've exhausted myself."

Hydro Strike Delays Garage Opening

The Ontario Hydro strike has delayed the opening of Thurlow Township's new municipal garage.

The five-day building was scheduled to go into operation at the end of July, but lack of electricity has interrupted both plumbers and electricians.

Township clerk Clare Horton said today he expects the garage will open about a month after hydro is hooked up.

Parks of Tomorrow

We are all familiar with the warnings about over-population, but it comes as something of a shock to learn that 30 years from now Ontario's population will have doubled. This means, given present trends, there will be some 18 to 20 million people in an era of increased leisure time. And if it is a strain now on environmental and recreational resources think what things will be like then.

The tendency of course is to let the Government look after the population's needs and this includes providing for leisure time. In fact this year alone the Government is spending about $20 million acquiring land for park and recreational facilities.

That is the word from Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier, but like the provincial minister goes on to emphasize, as he has done to the Ontario Parks Association convention here in Belleville, "that the government cannot provide all the recreation facilities that will be required." Municipal cooperation will be needed and private enterprise will also be encouraged to become more involved.

There is indeed such a need but in trying to be all things to all people — as we shall see in a moment — we wonder if the Government is not overreaching itself. The effort for instance, to create a provincial parks system "capable of taking into account the needs of everyone."

The minister speaks of "flexibility" sufficient to absorb the motorcyclists currently banned from the parks, and even nudists, while also relaxing the restrictions on alcohol. But since Mr. Bernier acknowledges motorcycles conflict with the needs of others in what might be termed a family park, he foresees a form of what we might call "recreational apartheid" . . . a classification system that clearly differentiates between the uses permitted for each park. The minister speaks of a need for an appropriate area in southern Ontario to cater to motorcyclists and mentions a nudist group that has been using Killarney wilderness park for 15 years. He allows that this may not be a common interest but "but it is the right of people whose interest it is to have a place within our parks system to go where they want to go."

It sounds more like a pronouncement of a minister of our free and easy Liberal government in Ottawa and it may be about will think the Davis administration is going a little overboard in its efforts to be "with it."

Take motorcycles. Would this sphere of "recreation" not be more properly left to private clubs which could arrange for responsible use of the machines in areas set aside for the purpose. In Britain for instance hill climbs through rugged country, not to mention motorcycle races, are popular, but the Government has no part in their organization. And so on. We do need more individual and community enterprise in sphere of activity. We also think this is not Scandinavia . . . and think what mass acceptance would do to the blue jeans industry!

Tastes Do Differ

In recent years there has been controversy as to what constitutes obscenity and what does not. Tastes differ, but each of us can be sure enough in his own mind as to what constitutes indelicacy of thought and action.

Vulgarity of language and of conduct are more open today than ever. In the movie, The Hospital, for instance, the language used is pretty blue by any standards. The whole thing is something of a caricature of hospital life with the staff rushing around from blunder to blunder (such as operating on the wrong people) and bawling each other out with picturesque "with it" language. We should think that any self-respecting hospital or medical man would be shocked by this film. And yet there may be some satirical truth in it all, even if it is minimal. A hospital run as this one is run would not be tolerated for long.

One thing about the language, it does stop short, as we recall, from the four-letter variety, although making up amply for this lack with other blistering verbiage. That versatile Canadian actor, Donald Harron, has a small role as one of the many half-assed doctors in the film. He deserves better and besides is much better in television's Hee Haw — as the radio announcer chronicling all the local corn.

'Running Mate' System Not A Problem in Canada

BY FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

Judging by the troubles of the Republicans and Democrats in the United States, it is probably just as well Canada does not have an official vice-prime minister.

President Nixon has experienced some anxious moments in the past four years over some of the speeches and statements of Vice-President Agnew, but is prepared to keep him as his running mate for another term of office. The Democrats have been acutely embarrassed by the appointment and subsequent resignation of Senator Thomas Eagleton as George McGovern's chief assistant.

In Canada our political parties don't elect vice-leaders who thereby hold conventions. Even the leadership candidate who comes up in second place on the final ballot is not necessarily regarded as the vice-leader or heir apparent. When Mr. Stanfield won the Progressive Conservative leadership he defeated Duff Roblin on the final vote. Mr. Roblin soon dropped out of sight politically. When Prime Minister Trudeau captured the Liberal party leadership, Robert Winters was the also-ran, with John Turner third. David Lewis was elected head of the New Democratic Party on a final-ballot victory over James Laxer, the Waffle leader.

One reason why the runners-up in our leadership contests are rarely the number two party men is the importance of being a member of the House of Commons in order to make any significant impact on policy and it is a strategy. This requirement effectively took care of Mr. Roblin and Mr. Laxer in the instances mentioned above.

Our parties do have a pecking order, however. In the case of the opposition it is often the House leader who assumes the number two role. Ged Baldwin fulfills this position with distinction for the Tories. On occasion the NDP caucus has elected a deputy leader for Commons purposes, although Stanley Knowles is frequently regarded as the main party spokesman after Mr. Lewis.

The government party's hierarchy is much easier to define as it is laid down in the list of cabinet ministers, according to their official order of precedence. The order is established either according to their position, as in the case of the prime minister, or according to the date when they swore seven into the cabinet and became members of the Privy Council.

The present list puts the leader of the government in the Senate, Paul Martin, in the second spot, followed by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Veterans' Affairs Minister Arthur Laing. Finance Minister Turner, despite holding one of the major portfolios and running third in the leadership race, is well down the order in 11th place.

When the prime minister is away from Ottawa an acting prime minister is named from the ranks of the cabinet. Sometimes, such as during the current holiday season, the acting prime minister comes from the middle to lower end because so many of the senior ministers are absent.

Mr. Baldwin's importance to the Conservatives, especially when Mr. Stanfield is away on the campaign trail, may be judged by a recent Baldwin release setting forth his views on the sins and errors of the Trudeau government. One paragraph reads:

"Now, politicians and voters alike watch and wonder as the federal government withdraws cavort around the campaign cauldron, stirring the election brew and muttering their incantations while they look at the gruesome mess for signs as to when and on what issues that call ought to be made."

"There was a Jane Fonda movie on the late show last night!"

Britain and U.S. Review Loopholes in Law

By KEN PRITCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Civil libertarians in the United States were understandably jubilant when on June 29 the U.S. Supreme Court, by a 5-to-4 vote, abolished the death penalty on a state basis for crimes ranging from murder to rape and armed robbery.

A few days later in Britain, a criminal law revision committee brought in recommendations of a different nature. The committee, in its 11th report since 1959, urged changes in laws of evidence with the aim, it said, of "making the law less favorable to the defence."

These contrary swings of the legal pendulum were both inspired by shocks.

In the U.S., death penalty statistics indicated blacks were being discriminated against. In Britain, police and prosecutors have been complaining that the rules of evidence help a new breed of professional criminal escape punishment.

A letter to the editor of the New York Times from a number of distinguished lawyers said statistics gathered in the last 40 years showed 90 per cent (405 out of 455) of all those executed for rape in the U.S. were black. And 90 per cent of all those in prison June 29 awaiting execution for rape were black.

The letter praised the role of a voluntary organization, the legal defence and educational fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, for bringing the court challenges which led to the abolition of the death penalty and a historic turn toward humaneness and rationality in the administration of justice.

The Supreme Court decision followed others through the years which increased the rights of U.S. defendants. An accused person must be promptly warned that he has the right to remain silent, legal aid must be provided at public expense in a broad range of prosecutions.

The British law revision committee recommended that the long-used police caution be abolished. It would withdraw the right of an accused to make unsworn statements — not subject to cross-examination — at his trial. It would let the court decide on the admissibility of a confession — a relaxation of present practice. It would even require that a woman give evidence against her spouse in cases involving violence against her person or a sexual offence on the household against a person under 16 years.

The committee, whose 19 previous reports have passed into law almost intact, took note of an increase in the number of sophisticated criminals who "use every possible means to avoid conviction," and found a good deal of feeling "that the law of evidence should be less tender to criminals generally."

Bolstering its case are the crime figures-up 5.8 per cent in Britain in 1971 over 1970.

Behind those opposing legal trends in Britain and the U.S., differences in national traditions and characteristics may be discerned.

Britain has long been famed for the honesty and good sense of its police. But in the U.S., distrust of government and authority of all kind is traditional, when may explain the ongoing tendency to impose rules and precedents that curb the power of police and courts.

The differences there are, however, have never given Marshal Tito any peace. And paranoically, Catholic and conservative Croatia produced Tito the Communist who is a Croat and a Serb.

And now the causes of Serbian and Croat nationalism have spilled outside Yugoslavia and have become an additional factor in growing world terrorism. Croat orthodoxy has admitted to the assassination of a Yugoslav ambassador in Scandinavia and attempts on the lives of others.

Serbian nationalists, still loyal to the monarchy which was overthrown during the Second World War, practise their hatred against Tito's communism and have also been accused of attacking Yugoslav diplomatic missions overseas.

No leader of a federal state with nationalism unresolved like Canada or Nigeria, or ones in open conflict like Vietnam, can ever condone separatism.

This would end the nation's existence.

Yet none of them have clear-cut answers to foreseeing a political breakup.

This, a Communist dictator will apparently try suppression of restless minorities.

For him, a solution from the old Austro-Hungarian empire might be possible, that is more divided of important federal responsibilities, for example, foreign affairs and defence, among the major minorities.

Yugoslavia No Stranger to Nationalist Unrest

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Separatism brought near terror to Canadians during 1970's FLQ crisis. For the first time, a group committed to independence for Quebec, expanded post office box bombings in Montreal into kidnapping and murder.

Yugoslavia, another federated state, sits on the timebomb of violent, historic separatism. In this presently Communist state bloody civil war preceded by 1939 from a union of Croats, Serbs and Montenegrins. Croats and Serbs are locked again in traditional hatreds.

Unlike Canada, where in 1970 we experienced the first violence of the kind of violence that was formed from the ruins of the old Austro-Hungarian monarchy.

Croats in the north are Catholic, conservative and in the past, closely oriented to Western Europe. Serbs in the south are Orthodox, more aggressive as warriors and in the past closely associated with Eastern Byzantium which was the headquarters of the ancient Holy Eastern Orthodox Church.

During the Second World War and the German occupation of Yugoslavia, the Croats took advantage of the German intention of breaking up the Yugoslav union to form a kingdom under protection of the Italian House of Savoy.

Wartime Croatia was purely and simply a fascist state, an unenviable record for it in such a vicious fight — wing militia called the Ustasi and trained in Gestapo methods.

The allies openly supported Josif Broz Tito, leader of the left-wing, and as it turned out, communist partisans. In 1946, before Tito turned his "national communism," he tried and executed Gen. Mihailovic, the right-wing partisan for alleged collaboration with the Germans.

These terrible differences have never given Marshal Tito any peace. And paranoically, Catholic and conservative Croatia produced Tito the Communist who is a Croat and a Serb.

And now the causes of Serbian and Croat nationalism have spilled outside Yugoslavia and have become an additional factor in growing world terrorism. Croat orthodoxy has admitted to the assassination of a Yugoslav ambassador in Scandinavia and attempts on the lives of others.

Serbian nationalists, still loyal to the monarchy which was overthrown during the Second World War, practise their hatred against Tito's communism and have also been accused of attacking Yugoslav diplomatic missions overseas.

Edmonton Research

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

May we make an appeal to your readers for some missing documents?

The Historical Branch of the City of Edmonton Parks and Recreation Department has been researching information about the Hudson's Bay Company Fort Edmonton as it was during the 1840s, in preparation for an authentic reconstruction of the post. Much of our knowledge of this fort in the 19th century is derived from Fort Edmonton Journals of Daily Occurrences which are now in the Hudson's Bay Company Archives. Unfortunately, all of the Journals between the years 1834 and 1851 are missing, but it is possible that they still exist somewhere, perhaps in a private collection.

If any readers have information concerning the whereabouts of these missing years we would sincerely appreciate hearing from them at:

'Conflict' Decision

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The rejection by Belleville City council of the motion presented by Alderman Donald Souter, to have a judicial enquiry into the alleged conflict of interest by Mayor J. Russell Scott should have been no surprise to the citizens of Belleville. Seven members of council including Mayor Scott have decided that we shall not be informed with the true facts in regard to the conflict of interest charge.

Alderman Souter as an elected representative had an obligation and duty to bring the conflict of interest charge before members of council if he thought the best interest of all the citizens was not being protected. He should be commended for courage and determination in trying to get the truth and facts.

Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey as seconder of the motion made a fair and reasonable assessment of the situation. She was like a breath of fresh air, compared with the dismal performance put on by other members of council. The flimsy excuses used for not having an inquiry, should go down in the history of Belleville as a perfect example of not facing up to the issues involved, truth and justice.

These members of council have sown the seeds of suspicion and doubt in many citizens which will linger for many years to come.

The suggestion that the ordinary citizen can take action is just a joke. For how many of us have the financial resources to hire a Solicitor and the time to spend in court. The cost involved in this charge. So once again we the citizens are left in the dark in their quest for information to assess what has been done by our elected Belleville.

Have the residents of Valleyview Crescent been denied sanitary sewers since 1967? Because an engineering survey company owned by Sanctuary Developments was not granted a rezoning problems which could have endangered their health have been eliminated. Backups into basements and raw sewage coming to the top of soil over the tile beds.

Whether the charge of conflict of interest against Mayor Scott is true or not I do not know, but I am convinced that people are entitled to the truth, upon conflict like this accomplish this is to have an inquiry.

The reputation of Belleville and its citizens is jeopardized if these charges are not cleared up. It is the duty of elected representatives, or if necessary, the Government of Ontario which has the authority to clear up this matter do so.

'Parliament' of Church Meets Tuesday in Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — A church report saying Quebec has a right to independence and resolutions ranging from apartheid in South Africa to abortion in Canada are up for discussion starting next Tuesday when the parliament of the United Church of Canada starts meetings.

Several major concerns face the 25th general council of the United Church, Canada's largest Protestant religious denomination.

They deal with national goals for Canada, the environment, liberation of women, youth, underdeveloped countries and the future of society.

The 450 commissioners to the general assembly, which usually meets every two years, will determine administrative policy for the church and determine how the church should react to the issues of the times.

"Heightening the quality of human life is our main concern," said Dr. George Morrison of Toronto, secretary of the general council.

Church spokesmen said the much-discussed union with the Anglican Church of Canada and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) will not come about as a result of this eight-day assembly.

The general commission on church union will report on the status of negotiations under way for nearly 25 years, but no action is to be taken scheduled by the council.

First business scheduled is election of a moderator to succeed Rt. Rev. A. B. Moores of Toronto.

Four men have been nominated: Rev. R. W. Henderson of Vancouver, personnel secretary of the British Columbia conference of the church; Rev. Clifford A. S. Elliott of Metropolitan United Church, Toronto; Rev. N. Bruce McLeod, Bloor Street United Church, Toronto; and John Black, a Kingston, Ont., lawyer.

If elected, Mr. Black would be the second laymen to become moderator. The first was Robert McClure, a Presbyterian, noted surgeon and medical missionary, now serving at a hospital in North Borneo after his official retirement in 1971.

The possibility of a woman becoming moderator for the first time in the 47-year history of the United Church officially appeared last month with the election of Rev. Lois E. Harriet Christie of Toronto. She said she wished to continue her duties as deputy-secretary of the 56-new church division of mission in Canada.

Church officials say there is a possibility at this meeting of a reversal of the church's position on abortion, adopted at the last general council meeting, in 1971 at Niagara Falls, Ont.

The church went on record at that time as stating that abortion is a private matter between a woman and her doctor, permissible in certain medical, social and economic circumstances.

The vote, however, was not unanimous and there were many abstentions. Many of the 31 million members of the church have expressed disapproval of the stand.

Wholeness Is Holiness

By The Rev.
GORDON C. SMYTH

It is easier to get a group to discuss prayer than to engage in it. A strong sense of self-conciousness has overcome a weaker sense of faith. It is high time we left to analyze themselves those who say we are conditioned by glands, molded by environment, and otherwise religiously inspired by auto-suggestion.

The late A. Ian Burkett, whom I was privileged to count a friend, once told of a spring outing from Ottawa with a distinguished professor of psychiatry. "With the Bible and particularly within the New Testament," said Dr. Burnett's companion, "there is far more wisdom and insight than there is in all the books of psychology put together." Afterwards my friend exclaimed, "What a confession for a great teacher to make! What a testimony to the sovereignty of Jesus!".

Wherein was He different? He lived our life. Only 18 verses of the 111 verses that comprise His Sermon on the Mount, for instance, were without rabbinical precedent. Many of His parables He situated in what was Jesus to God, by prayer, that His ministry was God's activity revealed, the words He spoke were God's truth, and the gains through it have been because the Cross was God's victory. The mysteries cracked down the secret to its source. He was praying in a certain place, One spoke for all, "Lord, teach us to pray."

Perhaps clear mind expresses a deep purpose, its expression is always orderly. The Lord's Prayer contains three series of prayers. The first relate to God, the second to man, and the third return to God. This model prayer reverses the popular sequence. Let us subdue our wants to the purposes of God and hold them in the perspective of God's praise.

"Our Father who art in heaven," . . ." True prayer refers a person to a life that is "more." An individual is lifted above his individuality. He realizes that his situation is not unique. He gains courage and serenity.

"Hallowed be thy name." The most sensitive Jewish souls regarded God's name as too sacred to use. The person who prays in that spirit draws to the forefront of his mind the things that are most sacred to him. He asks that other persons, associations, and hopes may usher him into communion.

"Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." For centuries, devout and patriotic Jews had longed for such a time. Jesus took familiar feelings and filled them with new significance. His emphasis on spirituality is no relate. Anyone who thinks so should read "Markings," by Dag Hammarskjold, late Secretary General of United Nations.

"Give us this day our daily bread; . . ." Now we come to personal needs. We are advised to be restrained. The words suggest that we make no plans for the future. And yet the only time on which we can count is the present. If we accept this emphasis, what satisfaction we would have and what disappointments we would escape.

"And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors; . . ." If any group especially shows the value of this petition, it is Alcoholics Anonymous. Nobody can be right inside himself, let alone with "Our Father," when he is needlessly at odds with another. If he is guilty, let him ask for guidance to make such amends as are within his power. If he is innocent, let him forgive as he would be forgiven, lest he add injury to injury.

"And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." Temptation invites the misuse of opportunities. This is the case with a healthy individual failing to reserve strength. This is the case with a sick person heading towards self-pity. This is the case with a "self-made man" forgetting there is no such creature. We should not pray to pass through temptation into its opportunities for growth and maturity.

"For Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory." Prayer ends as it begins, with God. We tend to see things fragmented or out of proportion. Jesus saw things steadily and saw them whole. Wholeness is holiness. A life pattern of on the model prayer is lived God continuously. It is assured that all things come out even at the end of the day and at the end of all the days more than even still.

Churches Combine To Operate Shop

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Churches of four denominations — Roman Catholic, Baptist, United and Anglican — combined efforts to open a surplus clothing store a year ago and it has been an overwhelming success.

So much so that volunteers who operated the Dorcas Shoppe in this Annapolis Valley town hope someone will start up a similar enterprise to meet the increasing demand.

The used clothing store started out as the idea of the Wolfville Ministerial Association and evolved in response to a need for used garments for low-income families in eastern Kings County.

A public appeal for items drew excellent response and soon 40 collection depots were established.

Items collected are sold Friday afternoons and evenings at a small charge to 162 families registered through permissions-to-buy slips or chits. Eligibility is determined by sponsors such as ministers, teachers, welfare workers and nurses in public health. The Victorian Order of Nurses.

Only volunteer women who operate the project in a former bakery building have been able to repay the original loan from the Inter-Church Council. After overhead expenses, proceeds have also been used to buy new shoes, blankets, towels, knitting wool and children's and men's clothing.

The store has also received and distributed housewares. Little is wasted.

Clothing deemed unsuitable for distribution through the store is taken to a nearby workshop for young mentally handicapped youths. There buttons and zippers are removed and carded for sale at the Dorcas Shoppe. The remaining cloth is sold to service stations and other businesses as cleaning rags.

Catholics, Protestants Press Groups Co-operate

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — At the International religious press convention held in Banff in May the 300 delegates voted overwhelmingly in favor of structural co-operation between the Roman Catholic and Protestant associations which they represented.

A joint task force on merger set up a year ago by the Catholic Press Association and the Associated Church Press offered three options in respect of association as practised in this joint convention, structural co-operation which would involve doing together everything that it can be shared, or complete merger into one association.

Delegates voted for the second option, which will begin with a joint directory and publication of a joint trade paper and may lead eventually to one office and one set of personnel.

Some 400 Catholic magazines and newspapers in North America and the Caribbean are represented by the Catholic Press Association, with a total circulation of more than 24 million. The Associated Church Press is largely Protestant but includes 8 few Catholic publications. It has 181 members with 200 subscribers totalling about 20 million.

The executive secretary at the New York headquarters of CPA is James Doyle. ACP is based in Chicago, with Alfred Klausler as executive secretary.

At the Banff convention, which was the third joint gathering, workshops and speakers were shared, as well as some business sessions. The chairmen were Rev. Louis G. Miller of Ligouri, Mo., president of CPA, and Rev. DeCourcy H. Rayner of Toronto, president of ACP.

The Canadian Church Press, which helped sponsor the convention, elected its first Catholic president, Douglas Roche of Edmonton.

Senator Keith Davey gave the opening address. Other speakers were Prof. Edmund C. Arnold of Syracuse University and Prof. Robert Crichton, Durham College, Oshawa, Ont.

Four of the awards given by ACP were won by the Canadian Churchman, the Anglican national newspaper edited by Hugh McCallum. Included was an award for general excellence in the newspaper class. Two awards went to the Western Catholic Reporter, edited by Mr. Roche. The major ACP magazine awards were won by New World Outlook, published in New York by the United Methodist Church in association with the United Presbyterian Church.

A task force with Mr. McCallum as chairman was appointed by the ACP board of directors to appraise the present Associated Church Press set-up and chart its future.

Church Incomes Are Cut

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Belttightening has become standard operating procedure for American churches.

Their income simply isn't keeping up with costs.

This point is underlined statistically in the current issue of Giving, U.S.A., published by the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel.

Church members aren't increasing their religious giving enough to offset inflation, the report says, editor Harlan F. Lang, in analyzing the trend.

He notes that in the last three years, giving to religion has risen 13.5 per cent, but inflation has totalled 16 per cent, resulting in an actual drop in church contributions.

As a consequence, denominational budgets have been cut, staffs reduced, missions cases, programs curtailed, and discussions of replacements held up.

Altogether, contributions to religious causes in the U.S. in 1971 totalled $8.6 billion, a larger sum than before, but it represented a declining percentage of the total American philanthropy—40.7 per cent of it.

The year before, in 1970, it was 42.6 per cent and in 1969 it was 43.2 per cent. In other words, the religious share of charitable giving fell nearly five per cent in two years.

Lang said, Lang said, is being shifted to "civic, cultural and health organizations."

Lang also notes that in the last three years over-all spending for religious and welfare purposes has risen only 24 points, while spending for recreation was up 35 points, housing up 36 points and medical care, up 37 points.

Total church membership in the country now is 69,951,953, 43.2 per cent of the total population. But church attendance has been slipping for the last decade and now stands at 40 per cent of the membership on an average Sunday.

The sharpest decline of attendance has occurred among college-educated people, which is means a loss of those with higher income and most ability to contribute.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

WHERE LOVE IS ALL THAT IS NEEDED

"He is the best and gentlest and most reasonable and well-mannered as well as most beautiful, small animal of his kind . . ."—wrote the novelist, Henry James, of his dog.

As a visitor first enters the airy glossy-dark, panelled-room (of KirkElla Kennel, 265 John Street), around which play-pens stand neatly in a row upon the cherry-red vinyl-covered floor, for 28 Pekinese dogs, he is greeted by a barking chorus in protest, which ceases immediately upon the appearance of their mistress, Mrs. John Burkett, which assures "all is well." Then and only then each sits, lies down or stands with watchful, well-mannered, respectful silence.

"But what is your secret? How do you maintain such politeness? Such trust?" the visitor asks, noting an entire wall completely covered with colorful prize ribbons, as he sits down in one of several comfortable armchairs near a TV set.

"My only secret, if indeed it might be called that, may be summed up in one word Love. Love is all that is needed. Sheer love brings out character, personality."

"In what way do you demonstrate your love?"

"Well, for one thing. I make a point twice a day, to pick up each dog. Talk a moment with him, cuddle and hug him. Loving each as I do, each one feels special, important and completely contented.

"Loving, of course, includes organized routine for their well-being. Each one looks forward to it a time for meals, a time to run and play about the yard, regardless of weather, come summer or winter. A time for grooming, for meticulous care of their pens.

"A contented dog is a loved dog."

"What would you say, presents your greatest problem—if any?"

Mrs. Burkett smiles at the thought, as she answers:

"One of my greatest — is: naming each puppy suitably. (All our dogs being pedigreed, must have three names submitted for approval of the Canadian Kennel Association: thus if the first is not considered appropriate, there is choice of the second or third name.) Each puppy has his own distinct personality. Here for instance, is a new female puppy, interested in everything, happy natured, almost constantly dancing due to her insatiable curiosity. So I've named her "Merry.".

Ah, over there is one dear little Pekinese, so tiny in size he might truly be carried about up one's sleeve, and is, therefore, known as a Sleeve Pekinese and looks exactly like an animated wee toy and so beautifully formed. He captivates the heart at once. "We've chosen the name Winky Dinky for him," says Mrs. Burkett.

"It is truly remarkable," she continues, "how sensitive dogs are of their names. One little dog seemed to be unhappy with no matter what name we called him. One evening my husband happened to say, "Well, Little Joe . . .". With that he wagged his tail, his whole being perked up. He liked that— and Little Joe became his name.

"His new owners in Wellington tell us one evening he heard his name called in the TV series, in Bonanza, and rose quickly from the hallway where he was lyig to run direct to the TV set — in answer.

Mrs. Burkett comes by her love for dogs quite honestly and naturally, for her father bred dogs, in London, England.

"Pip," the champion prize-winner of Kirk-Ella kennels is a stunning, golden, long-haired Pekinese, and above his pen, hanging on the wall is a beautiful oil-painting of his likeness. He is the grandson of the world famous Pekinese in England whose owner refused to part with him for a large sum of money.

And now as the visitor takes his leave, all 28 little Pekinese stand up silently as if on ceremony, wagging their tails as if to say, "Can't you stay a little longer?" and "Please stay a while", and departure is made with a glow and warmth that gives meaning and depth of the force of sheer love that indeed shapes their lives.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

NOT as far as he is concerned. Those who know the egotist may think he is deluding himself in believing he is No. 1, but he has sold himself on that idea. He may have had doubts in the beginning when he first started to think he was "the greatest"—perhaps he needed to build himself up to offset a fear of being hurt. Now, though, he is completely sold on the idea and enjoys his enormous self-confidence.

Has romance gone out of style?

NO. The heart still leaps when that certain smile is turned your way; it is still exciting to meet your "date" at the appointed place. Indeed, today, there seems to be more romance, because more men and women have come to expect it to enter their lives. If it is slow in coming, they will do what they can to encourage romance—quite a contrast to men and women who, a few years ago, would never admit, even to themselves, that they wanted it.

Do all mothers spoil their sons?

ASK any mother and she will say "no!" Many mothers could, of course, but those who do spoil their sons don't realize they are doing it. In fact, a woman who has seen her nephew, say, "spoiled rotten" by her sister or sister-in-law will turn around and do the same thing when she has her own boy. Strangely, too, a mother of a son and daughter is more apt to spoil her son than is a mother who has only sons.

Ethnic Jokes Offend Polish Wife

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is Polish and his name leaves no room for doubt. We were transferred to another city (a good promotion) and literally I want to put my best foot forward.

A dinner, in our honor last weekend turned into a fiasco. I'd like to know if I behaved poorly, as my husband seems to think. Within 10 minutes the hostess asked me to have some Polish hors d'oeuvres. She then handed me a bowl of potato chips. There were a number of other knee-slappers of similar quality. I was horrified by their lack of sensitivity and I let them know I didn't think ethnic jokes are funny, particularly those that made Poles out to be ignorant and stupid.

When he got home, my husband said the people were being friendly, showing their acceptance of us, and that I should have kept my mouth shut. I'm afraid I got us off to a bad start. Yes or no?—Feeling Guilty in the Bahamas

Dear F.G.: I believe you demonstrated integrity and courage by speaking out. Your husband should be proud of you.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from Sinking Fast, the 16-year-old girl whose mother was driving her crazy.

I'm 35 now, married and a mother myself. I remember when I was 16 and my mother was driving me crazy. I was convinced that she wanted to ruin my life, hated my friends, my clothes, my hairstyle, everything about me. Or, so I thought. Now I realize she was going through the menopause and I was driving her crazy, too.

When I went away to college, I was able to tolerate her much better. Four years ago I married and moved to a nearby state. By that time I was actually fond of, her and looked forward to the occasional weekend when we could get together.

Last May my parents moved 1,500 miles away. Now I miss my mother terribly and think how wonderful it would be if I could see her every few days. I grieve over the years we wasted arguing and fighting.

I hope all the other girls who are sinking fast will realize what a good friend a mother can be. I'm thankful I woke up before my mom was gone forever.—St. Louis Woman

Dear Woman: You are not the same person you were 10 years ago and neither is your mother. I'm sure you've both learned a lot. Don't spend any more time grieving over the "wasted" years. You had to live through those years in order to be what you are now.

Shrinking Work Week Allows Leisure Time

By DORIS CLARK

Sociologists predict that by the year 2000 we will work 30 hours per week and have 12 weeks of annual vacation.

When I talked to journalists from a number of countries (at our international conference) I found that the pace toward this new-leisure-time society was uneven. England has two or three weeks' paid-vacation. France has four and even five for certain professions. Belgium will have four weeks by 1975, with additional vacation pay. In Norway they have been taking four weeks' holidays — plus extended week-ends for skiing — for some time.

The trouble with a great many places is that when they get the leisure time they don't know what to do with it, nor where. In France and Belgium here is some experimenting going on with apartments with mobile room dividers. These dividers can be moved around according to each one's recreation (or other) needs.

Creative hobbies are just as important as professional training.

We have guilt complexes about anything but work, and inferiority feelings about our ability to improve our communities. Belgium relates an experiment tried on television which featured a couple on a week-end, incapable of utilizing newly acquired free time.

We who live in Canada might well use such time to "get with it". How? Through swimming to educate ourselves about what is new and changing and creative in the 70's. No room for prejudices or closed minds!

Dear Doris: Would you please tell me how long the change of life lasts? After four years of it, I still get very depressed.

They tell me it bothers you for 10 years. I don't like going in crowds and can't wait to get home. — despondent.

Dear Despondent: Unfortunately there is no set time when it starts and when it stops. Some people don't even notice anything emotional about it at all.

With today's medical knowledge your doctor is the one who can prescribe hormones, and these may be just what you need to lift your spirits and give you back your old zest.

Dear Doris: I hear you have some rules for seniors. It seems to me we all have aches and pains, or some kind of handicap to put up with.

And it also seems to me that one of the important parts of growing older is that we learn how to live with such things and still occupy our minds and hearts with activities and people which are more important to us than said aches and pains. — Over Seventy.

Dear Over: I couldn't agree more. Sooner or later one faces the need to taper off, but this does not mean we let our minds go stale. Actually, the more we keep the blood circulating in the brain, the less likely we are to court senility.

I am sending you our leaflet — written by an expert on growing older — and entitled "Aging — Some Rules To Go By". This may be had by anyone writing in to ask for it, enclosing 20 cents and an eight-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. If you have a legitimate beef, sign your name to your note about it. All names are kept confidential.)

IS THE WILL OF THE PUBLIC TO BE IGNORED?

An appeal to the people of Ontario to assist denturists to overcome yet another obstacle in our long and continuing struggle to secure legal status.

BILL 203

On June 26, 1972, the Honourable Robert Welch acting on behalf of the Honourable R. T. Potter, Minister of Health for the Province of Ontario, introduced in the legislature Bill 203 being "An Act to Provide for the Licensing and Practice of Dental Technologists."

Mr. Welch, in his comments made an introduction of the Bill, stated as follows:

> "After careful consideration the Government has decided that a new health practitioner to be known as a dental technologist should be permitted to deal directly with the public in the taking impressions for, the making of, and the fitting of, complete upper and lower dentures."

Initially, the introduction of Bill 203 was greeted by the public as at least a partial solution to the raids and prosecutions instituted by the Royal College of Dental Surgeons against denturists throughout Ontario. Initially it was thought that full opportunity would be provided for denturists to qualify to be licensed as dental technologists and to perform their services as an accepted health entity in the Province of Ontario.

However, the public has not been informed of several important developments that have occurred during the few short weeks which have elapsed since the introduction of Bill 203. These developments have had the effect of undermining the belief of denturists that enlightened responsible legislation would be enacted during the forthcoming fall session of the Ontario Legislative Assembly. We sincerely believe that the public will share our dismay of recent decisions reached by the Minister of Health which, in our opinion, will thwart rather than fulfill the intent of Bill 203.

NO CONSULTATION

Prior to the introduction of Bill 203 and, indeed, since the time of Dr. Potter's appointment as Minister of Health, the Denturist Society has tried unsuccessfully on numerous occasions to meet with the Minister.

To date, we have been unable to secure an appointment with Dr. Potter and are therefore of the firm opinion that it has been determined in advance not to recognize this Society and not to take our views into account with respect to any aspect of Bill 203. This seems to us to be completely inexplicable when one realizes that it was the Denturist Society and the Denturist Society only that challenged publicly the dental profession's anomalous monopoly over all aspects of dental care.

Response from members of the public directed to Members of the Legislature was, in our opinion, instrumental in convincing the Government to create a role for dental technicians (denturists) independent of dentists. The only dental technicians who have been operating openly in accordance with standards and regulations of any kind are those who are members of the Denturist Society of Ontario. It is because of the excellent work that has been done by these more than two hundred men and women and the very substantial public support for continuance of their services, that the Government was moved to introduce Bill 203. We must ask therefore why has the Minister of Health refused to see us and why is there such evident reluctance to take into account our views BEFORE decisions are made which will efectively determine our fate?

To date, we have received no satisfactory answer to these questions. Indeed, the Minister of Health has not only flatly refused our requests for meetings, but has proceeded to announce the formation of a committee to recommend standards and criteria for the licensing of dental technologists, several members of which we believe to be COMPLETELY HOSTILE TO THE VERY CONCEPT OF BILL 203.

THE DENTAL TECHNOLOGIST LICENSING BOARD AND THE STANDARDS COMMITTEE

An examination of the powers and duties of the Board which will be established to administer the Dental Technologist's Act clearly indicates that it will govern and regulate all aspects of the new dental health practitioners profession, either through its powers to oversee the functioning of the Registrar, its power to set or approve the examinations to determine the qualifications of applicants for licenses, or by recommending regulations to the Minister of Health to be made by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. In effect the Act gives no substantive rights to the dental technologists aside from procedural rights and right of appeal from the Board of Dental Technologists where a license is revoked or refused and in effect turns all regulation over to the Board.

The Standards Committee (not to be confused with the Licensing Board) which will shortly begin functioning, would appear to be the forerunner of the Board and the standards required to qualify for a license under the Act finally recommended by this Committee will be of crucial importance not only to denturists now, but will be of even greater importance to the success of the new profession of dental technologists when the Act comes into force.

A CLEAR DANGER

It is very apparent to us, as it will be to any reasonable person, that the attitudes and views of the members of the Standards Committee and later the members of the Licensing Board, will be all important in determining the success and scope of activity of the dental technologist profession. The danger exists that a quorum or a dominating proportion of the Committee (and later the Board) could be fundamentally opposed to the entire concept of dental technologists and by either out-voting or influencing the other Committee members could effectively thwart the purpose of the Legislature by unduly limiting the scope of activity of dental technologists or by creating bars to entry or by setting standards so high as to prevent all but a handful to qualify.

The Act provides no assurance that a dental technologist will be appointed to the Board and certainly none can be appointed until the licensing procedure begins, as none will exist.

The paramount concern of denturists is that no representative of the Denturist Society has been appointed to the Standards Committee which, presumably, is an advisory body only. Additionally, the Committee consists of two dentists and it is well known that the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario has vigorously opposed the activities of denturists and the passing of this Bill. Indeed, the Ontario Dental Association is currently petitioning its more than 3300 members for contributions of $200 per member (something in the area of $650,000) to establish a public relations, advertising and lobbying fund for the primary purpose of blocking the passage of Bill 203. The Committee is also partially composed of a registered dental technician appointed by the Governing Board of Dental Technicians, and a dental hygienist registered under The Dentistry Act, both of which are members of auxiliary bodies that have long been involved with the dental profession in a subordinate role and therefore could be unduly influenced by the dentists who are members of the Committee.

Concerning the two lay persons who will serve on the Committee, one of whom will act as Chairman, we have no real apprehensions. We think it likely that they will be much more objective than those members who have been appointed from either the dental profession or the two auxiliary bodies.

TO THE MINISTER OF HEALTH

Since we have no other alternative, we are appealing to you in this quite extraordinary fashion to reconsider your decision respecting the composition of the Standards Committee and to proceed as soon as possible to appoint a representative or representatives (2) of the Denturist Society to this Committee. Surely this is the only proper way of ensuring that denturists currently in practice and the interests of a great number of people residing in Ontario who have supported our efforts over the past several months will be dealt with fairly and honestly.

TO THE READER

As has been clearly indicated in the past, it is only your continuing support of denturists that will determine whether or not the present problems will be resolved to the satisfaction of all. We urge you therefore to write the Premier of the Province of Ontario and your Member of the Provincial Parliament expressing your support for our recommendations and concerns.

If you require the name and address of your member of the Provincial Parliament please feel free to phone or write:

Rexe Signs WHA Contract

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Steve Rexe has turned aside thousands of pucks in his hockey goaltending career, but he's not about to turn his back on a rare second opportunity to make it big.

Rexe has reached a signed and — contract — worth around $23,000 if you count all the bonuses — to the Los Angeles Sharks of the World Hockey Association.

Rexe won a first team all-star berth and the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A most valuable player award last season with Belleville's Quintes despite his team missing the playoffs.

Now 25, the Peterborough native was a 1967 draft choice of the expansionist Pittsburgh National Hockey League entry but balked at signing when the Penguins asked him to report to their — Montreal, Detroit, and Boston; and Wes Gillow, who played with last year's Allan Cup champion Spokane Jets.

"Even in the event the NHL's reserve clause holds up, Gardiner would have to go back to Vancouver and I figure it would be between Gillow and myself for the top two spots," Rexe reasoned.

In addition to the resumes sent in his behalf by friend McBride, Rexe attributes the Los Angeles interest in him to the fact that one of the Sharks' executives was with Pittsburgh when the NHL club drafted him.

Another friend will be a teammate of Rexe's. Larry Mavety, a Western Hockey League standout the last four seasons, accepted an offer from the Sharks based on reporting to the American League's Tidewater Wings, who named him their head coach, which winds up Sept. 2.

Ironically, although he was not named in the WHA's mammoth player negotiation list and rival other WHA Senior A players were, Rexe is the first one signed by the WHA out of the league.

He had played the last three seasons for the Belleville entry and in the first year of senior hockey revival in the city with the old Mo Hawks in 1966.

Although a move would leave behind a lot of present hockey memories, Rexe jumped at the WHA opportunity. "You're either hot or cold when you're not playing pro hockey and I decided I'd better do it again.

His absence would create a tough hole for the Belleville Quinte's Sports Foundation to fill this season.

But Foundation director and long-time senior player Lionel Body was stoic about the apparent loss of the team's anchor man.

"We half expected it. It's only logical that Steve would get a contract offer. We're very happy for him but it's not the end of the world for us we'll find another goalkeeper."

STEVE REXE

Amarillo minor league affiliate.

"I'd like to stick with the big club, but with this kind of contract I don't care where I go," Rexe enthused over the Sharks' offer, which came after friend Jack McBride sent resumes of his hockey background to seven of the 18 WHA entries.

"We had offers back from five of them, but the Los Angeles one was too good to pass up."

Rexe is the fourth goalie to be signed by the Sharks. The others are NHL "jumper" George Gardiner, last year with Vancouver Canucks; 40-year-old veteran Michel Pevreault, who has seen brief action with three NHL teams

Chris Grayson and Pam Carruthers got in a little post - tournament putting Friday but it wasn't really necessary after the two had taken the laps and the gross honors at the first annual Wilson Staff Junior Tournament. Chris took home the boys' trophy to Picton with a 70 while Pam carded a 86. The day-long event attracted more than 70 entries to the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

Juniors Borrow Tee

The older members of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club stepped aside Friday afternoon and gave the run of the course to their younger counterparts in the first annual Wilson Staff Junior Tournament.

Over 70 golfers below the age of 18 and including 11 girls battled the huge 72 par Quinte course in the day-long event.

Chris Grayson proved to be the class of the field as the Picton native fired a 73 to win the low gross title and the Wilson Staff trophy. The 15-year-old won the juvenile division handily and his score stood up to take the entire tournament.

"I just started playing regularly this year," states Chris. "My score today was could be low the 86 I usually shoot."

While Chris was below his usual score Pam Carruthers of the Quinte Club shot her usual 88 to win the girls' half of the competition. The fourth-year golfer and runner - up in district play last month tied little trouble in winning the low gross over-all prize with a 18 - hole female competitor. Jennifer Hipkin, who carded the low net score of 128. When Stevenson made it a sweep for one of - town golfers in the juvenile division as the Cobourg shooter took low net honors with a 67. Doug Ridley finally broke through for the host club, winning second low gross with an 81. Napanee's Bruce Fraser carded a 68 for second low net.

In junior boys' competition Rob Graham took low gross honors with an 81 with Napanee's Doug Green firing a 72 for low net. Charles Ledermen had an 84 for second gross and Al Wood a 73 for second net.

The bantam boys weren't too far off the pace set by the older competition Secondly Randy Hutchinson of Quinte who had an 86 for low gross and Doug Rainboth of CFB whose 71 took low net. Bay of Quinte had the next two low scores with Paul Hipkin's 87 taking second low gross and Ron Bonten's 72 good for second low net.

Bev McGee and Debbie McLeod of Quinte carded 41 and 55 respectively to take the honors in the girls nine hole competition. Karilene McDonald of Napanee shot a 36 for low net.

"I hope this is the first of many such tournaments for many years to come," stated Wilson's sales manager Joe Drabot who was on hand to hand out the trophies to Pam and Chris. "It finally gives the younger players something to play for."

Industrial Play-Offs Open

Meads Winning 'Money' Games

There may not be a pot of gold waiting for the winner of the Industrial Softball League play-offs but five teams proved they were money players as first round action began with four games Friday night.

Mead Johnson came off their hard fought - sudden - death pennant contest with the CN Thursday to handle the Intelligencer 3-2 in a match between division winners. The CN nipped Brooke Bond 2-1 behind the two - hit pitching of Perry Soule in a battle of the runners - up. Stewart Warner edged the Utilities 9-8 in a slugfest and Foley's and UIC battled to an 11-11 deadlock.

A five run outburst in the sixth inning carried Mead to their win over The Intelligencer in the opening game of the round-robin play-off series. Jim Sopha's three-run homer in the sixth was the crushing blow for the winners.

Sopha added two singles to his hitting total with Ken Osborne punching a triple, double, and single. Gary Geneteaux a triple and Ken Lessels a double and single. The hitting was enough to back up Osborne's four - hit pitching performance. He fanned four and walked one.

Ron Post's three run shot over the right - centre field fence at the Alemite had given the Printers the early lead but it was their last offensive effort. Dave Feeney had a double and Joe Edwards a single to round out the hitting. Gerry Gneregaic started for the Intell before giving way to Ron Culleden.

Perry Soule had six innings of no - hit pitching and a 3-0 lead under his belt for the CN before Brooke Bond came up with two hits and two runs in the final frame.

Soule fanned seven and walked only one in giving the CN first blood in the second-place finishers' round robin series. Barry Tamlin had two singles for the winners with Bob Lloyd and Brian Plumbe adding one each.

Dennis Cashaw's triple brought in one Bond run in the seventh and then he scored himself on a throw by the mound duty with Bob Chambers.

Runs were coming in droves for UIC and Foley's in their play-off match but it settled nothing as they tied 11-11

Derek Smith had a homer for Foley's with Bob Wannamaker adding a single and double and Bill Minaker two singles. Smith and Gary Matter shared the pitching duties for Foley's giving up six hits and fanning four.

Bernie Coughlin was the big threat for UIC smashing a homer and two singles. He also pitched six and two thirds innings giving up six runs and six hits. Garry McMurray didn't allow a hit in his third of an inning but was around for five Foley's runs.

Dennis Kay had a perfect night at the plate for Stewart Warner, pulling a homer, double, and single to lead his teammates to a victory over the Utilities.

Fred Davis batted the win, allowing 12 hits and fanning seven. He also found time to bang a triple and double.

Wilson Bulpit was the mainstay of the Utilities, smashing a double and two singles plus taking the loss on the rubber. Stanley Blz had a triple and double for the only other batting threat.

Pirates Dig Talent

The Pirates are coming to town Sunday but baseball players and not gold will be the treasure luring the buccaneers.

Jim Frail, chief Ontario scout for the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, will be conducting an Instructional and Evaluation clinic at Parkdale Sunday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

This will be the second local year for the camp, open to all boys between the ages of 15 and 20, and the second year for any hopeful big leaguers to show their stuff.

Hitting, fielding, pitching, and speed afoot will be what Frail wants to see. All participants should bring their uniforms, spikes and gloves.

Only Temporary: Martin

Tigers Dropped from Top Spot

Baltimore Orioles took over first place in the American League East Division Friday night but Detroit Tiger manager Billy Martin warned them not to figure on holding down that lofty peak for too long.

"Tell 'em it's only temporary and tell 'em not to get used to it," said Martin. "Tell 'em we'll be back."

Martin exuded confidence Thursday night despite a 5-3 loss to Cleveland Indians that dropped his Tigers out of the top spot for the first time since July 10. The Orioles moved in by a half-game after beating Boston Red Sox 2-1.

"Being in second doesn't feel any different than being in first," said Martin.

If Martin hopes to find room at the top once more, he'll have to recover a lasting trend that has had the Tigers by the tail of late. They've lost nine of their last 13 games.

New York Yankees, another threat in that wild division, were beaten 4-2 by Milwaukee Brewers and dropped 5-3 in the continuation of Thursday night's suspended game and the White Sox then took the second contest 1-0.

In Friday night's other American League games, Kansas City Royals turned back Texas Rangers 3-0 and California Angels beat Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Steve Dunning pitched a seven-hitter to tame the Tigers for the Indians. The Indians scored three unearned runs in the first inning as a result of a muffed line drive by Detroit left fielder Gates Brown—but it was the Tiger hitting, not fielding, that had Martin worried after the game.

The Tiger manager said he would use an instant replay television camera in try to correct his club's hitting problems.

Bobby Grich led off the ninth inning with a home run to power Baltimore and Mike Cuellar over Boston. Cuellar struck out 13 Red Sox but yielded the tying run in the eighth on three singles.

George Scott drove in two runs with a triple and homer to lead Milwaukee over New York.

Oakland won Friday night's first game with Chicago when Joe Rudi spanked a two-run homer in the 19th inning. The game, halted by curfew with the score tied 3-3 after 17 innings Thursday night, was picked up prior to the scheduled game between the Athletics and White Sox.

Roger Nelson pitched a three-hitter and Richie Scheinblum and Amos Otis hit home runs to pace Kansas City over Texas. Clyde Wright pitched a five-hitter and drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning single to pull California past Minnesota.

Starts Double Trouble

Roxburgh Unruffled

CALGARY (CP) — Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, unruffled at seeing his course record fall, played steady golf Friday and stretched his lead in the Canadian amateur golf championship to three strokes.

His record, a six-under-par 65, stood for little more than 24 hours before Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., overpowered the Earl Grey Golf Club course with a 64.

Barr's blistering round lifted him into a tie for second place with defending champion Dick Siderowf of Easton, Conn. Going into the final round today, Roxburgh had a 207 total, six under par, after opening with Wednesday's shooting of 68. Thursday and coming home with 69 Friday.

Siderowf and Barr had 210. Bob Wylie of Calgary was alone with 211 and three others were tied for fifth at 212.

Roxburgh and Barr, both 20-year-old amateurs, broke the record which stood since 1959 when professional Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver fired a 66 in the Alberta Open.

Barr was giving a total effort on the 18th green when an even lower score was riding on a 15-footputt for a birdie. He slid the ball into the cup but then made the little pressure shot for the record.

Barr's was a 12-stroke improvement on Thursday's.

Howard in Pack

CALGARY, Ont. (CP) — Stu Hamilton of Brampton was top Ontario golfer after the third round of the Canadian amateur championship Friday, standing 11th with a three-round score of 215. He shot a 73 Friday.

Leader Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver shot a 69 for a 54-hole total of 207.

Nick Weslock of Port Credit and Kelly Robert a of London are at 216, Lou Molnar of Thornhill is at 224, Wayne Kitura of Toronto has 225, John Boyle of Napanee is at 226, Mark Shushack of Thunder Bay has 229. At 230 are Paul Blanclair of Oakville, Jeff Howard of Trenton and Eric Hansen of Toronto.

Streit Stretches

WINNIPEG (RP) — Marlene Streit's 16-year-old course record fell Friday in the third round of the Canadian women's amateur golf championship. But the Fonthill, Ont., veteran still increased her lead in the tournament.

Mrs. Streit, seeking her 10th national title, matched her Niakwa Country Club women's course record of three-under par 72, set in the 1956 Canadian classic, for a 54-hole total of 223.

That gave her a three-shot advantage going into today's final 18 holes over Carol Semple of Sewickley, Pa., one of two golfers who bettered the old record.

Mrs. Streit, held a two-stroke edge over Gayle Borthwick of Mississauga, Ont., after 36 holes, but Mrs. Borthwick shot a 78 Friday and slipped eight strokes off the pace at 231.

Playing on the sun-baked course, Miss Semple, 22, slapped in an eagle on the 12th hole en route to her four-under-par 71, the same score registered by Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C.

Rookie Good at Pretending

"Just pretend it's one on the mound," Atlanta's Eddie Mathews told Jim Breazeale, "and pull your normal stunt."

So the rookie pinch-hitter did just that. Employing what has become virtually his trademark this season, Breazeale jumped on Clay Carroll's first pitch for a three-run homer.

That triggered a five-run eighth inning which powered the Braves to a 7-5 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat St. Louis Cardinals 19-5, Houston Astros defeated San Francisco Giants 6-3, Montreal Expos stopped Philadelphia Phillies 4-1, Chicago Cubs drubbed New York Mets 7-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers slipped past San Diego Padres 2-1 in 10 innings.

The homer was Breazeale's third of the season. All of them have been in a punch-hitter's role and all of them have tied games in late innings.

The Reds were leading 3-2 but Felix Millan walked and Marty Perez singled to start the eighth inning, chasing Ed Sprague.

"When the Reds were making the pitching change," Braves scale recalled, "I went back to the dugout for some water and asked around about what kind of stuff Carroll threw.

"Mathews told me: 'Go up and pull your normal stunt. Don't think—just try to hit the ball.' So I went up for the first pitch."

Mathews, the Braves' manager, pitches batting practice on occasion and, after making his "friend" suggestion, said: "That shot he hit looked like something he's hit off me."

The homer only tied the game. But the Braves weren't finished with Carroll. Ralph Garr singled, Hank Aaron walked, Earl Williams singled for the go-ahead run, then Dusty Baker hit a run-scoring single.

Richie Hebner of the Pirates batted in the cleanup position in place of Willie Stargell, who sat out the game against the Cardinals due to a recent tooth extraction. And Hebner picked up where Stargell left off, slugging a pair of homers.

The Pirates widened their lead in the East in 9½ games over the Mets. Gene Clines knocked in three runs with a pair of singles to join Hebner in pacing the 16-hit attack against six St. Louis pitchers.

Houston scored five runs in the second inning en route to trimming Cincinnati's lead in the West to 3½ games.

Mike Torrez yielded just three Philadelphia hits, one of them Don Money's home run, and triggered a three-run rally in the eighth inning with a tie-breaking single that paved the way to his 11th victory of the year.

Milt Pappas scattered five New York hits and led Chicago's attack by driving in five runs with a homer, a double and a single to draw the Cubs within a game of the second-place Mets.

Wes Parker, who scored the Dodgers' first run, drove in the winner with a two-out single in the 10th inning that sent the Padres down to their fifth defeat in six games.

Ticats Freeze At 27

Edmonton (CP) — Coach Jerry Williams threw a bottle into a corner of the dressing-room of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, bewildered victims of an unbelievable Edmonton Eskimos comeback.

A 10-point Hamilton lead had been shattered in a penalty-studded fourth-quarter in which Edmonton rallied for a 30-27 victory in a rain-drenched Canadian Football League interlocking game Friday night.

"If I say what I think of the officiating, I'll get fined," Williams said in reference to two pass interference calls which kept alive a drive that produced the Eskimos' winning touchdown with 31 seconds left to play.

Williams wasn't the only one displeased with the officials. One Ticat pursued the official along the sidelines at the final gun but refrained from physical violence.

The Eskimo comeback was sparked by quarterback Bruce Lemmerman, whose touchdown on the first quarter had given Edmonton a short-lived lead.

Lemmerman didn't fare too well during the next 35 minutes and Edmonton coach Jim Trimble thought about replacing him in the third quarter. But, he decided against it because "some guys were just dropping passes."

Lemmerman later threw touchdown passes to George McGowan and Bobby Taylor and scored the winning points himself on a three-yard sneak.

Dave Cutler kicked four converts and the Eskimos got two points on the final play of the third quarter when Hamilton's Ian Sunter dropped back to punt, bobbled the snap and was downed in the end zone for a safety by Edmonton's Ed Walker.

Bad snaps on punts created problems in the second half for the Tiger-Cats, leading to a couple of short kicks that left Edmonton in good field position.

"We'll have to put someone on the team just for snaps," Williams said.

The Hamilton coach was happy with Chuck Ealey, his scrambling quarterback who threw three touchdown passes and ran for another as the Tigcats built up a 27-7 lead during the first half.

Ealey threw touchdown passes to Dave Buchanan, Garney Henley and Tommy-Joe Coffey in the second quarter.

Sunter, Hamilton's 18-year-old place-kicking specialist, kicked three converts but hit the crossbar on a third-quarter field goal try.

The Eskimos' second victory in as many starts pushed them into first place in the Western Conference, their best season-opening effort since 1967.

Hamilton missed a chance to grab a share of first place with Canadian Rough Riders in the Eastern Confere.

Coffey's touchdown catch was one of two passes he caught as he mowed closer to the professional football career record of 651 established by Raymond Berry in the National Football League. Coffey now has caught 630 and needs just 22 yards to become the first player in the CFL to gain 10,000 yards on pass receptions.

Former Footballers Keeping in Touch

TORONTO (CP) — While Tucker and Jay Roberts are still catching passes in Ottawa, Ron Arends is still intercepting them in Toronto.

The two former Rough Rider receivers and the retired Argonaut defensive back are among a growing number of ex-Canadian Football League players who are keeping up their association with the game through the 120-club Canadian Touch Football Association.

It began informally in the early 1960s, possibly as a spinoff from the well-publicized scrimmages of the Kennedy clan in Massachusetts, as a weight-reducing exercise for paunchy ex-athletes. Now Gord Savoye is talking in terms of something resembling a Grey Cup game with out shoulder pads.

Savoye moved to Toronto last year after coaching Montreal West Lake Warriors to two consecutive victories against Toronto teams in what was billed as the Canadian touch football championship.

Now Savoye and Ken Calloway, a former tight end with Montreal Alouettes, are recruiting a powerhouse lineup for Toronto Tops, aiming at victory in their eight-team league and an upset of the Montreal team in the "national" final.

Not all touch footballers are nostalgic veterans recapturing their youthful enthusiasm. Jim Walter played two years with the Warriors, caught the eye of a Saskatchewan scout and moved on to steady employment in the Roughriders' defensive backfield.

His experience provides Savoye with a selling point in trying to recruit Bob Storey and Tom Chown, both cut from the Argonaut backfield this season for the Tops' lineup.

Even without them, the Tops look formidable. They have Peter Raham, a late cut from British Columbia Lions this year, and his brother Mike, onetime most-valuable player for the University of Toronto Blues Vic Alboini, a four-year starting quarterback with the Blues former Hamilton Tiger-Cat Walt Sehr and halfback Tom Johnson from the senior Bramalea Satellites.

Apart from the absence of requirement that points after touchdowns be scored by running or passing, touch football rules resemble those of the CFL. The seven-man starting lineup consists of centre, quarterback, halfback and four men who may be deployed as ends, flankers or guards. All are eligible receivers.

Passing is a good 90 per cent of the game," said Savoye."

Each of the eight Toronto teams pays a $250 entry fee and another $250 to fit its 20-man roster with sweaters, sweat pants and cleats.

Savoye has set up an exhibition game against the U. of T. Blues in late August and hopes eventually for an annual pre-season game with the Argonauts.

Golfers Stop At 1,000 Holes

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — John Seligman and Gary Kaplan turned in golf scores in the neighborhood of 1,000 Friday—not bad after 70 nonstop hours of play and a golf marathon record of 1,002 holes.

Their goal had been 1,200 holes but they decided to settle for the records and some sleep.

Seligman, an 18-year-old University of South Florida sophomore, shot an 86 for the final 18 holes with Kaplan, a 17-year-old University of Florida freshman, recorded an 80.

Team Canada's Sinden Planning Simple Camp

TORONTO (CP) — Nothing elaborate is planned for Team Canada's preparations for the series with Russia in September, says the man who will guide the Canadian fortunes in the long-awaited hockey series.

In fact, Harry Sinden said Friday in an interview from his Rochester, N.Y., home that the extensive plans for the Team Canada training camp that opens here Monday at Maple Leaf Gardens have been structured to keep everything simple.

"With time so short, it's the only approach to take," said the general manager-coach. "The camp will really be basic in most ways because we don't have the time for innovation."

He said it takes players two to three days to accept any new trends and Team Canada "just can't afford two or three days."

"So we'll stick to drills most players know."

Sinden has no doubts that the team will be prepared for the series opener in Montreal Sept. 2. He'll use the time to level the group of outstanding National Hockey League stars into a team.

HARRY SINDEN

Left wing—Paul Henderson (Toronto), Dennis Hull (Chicago), Jean-Paul Parise (Minnesota North Stars), Rick Martin (Buffalo) and Peter Mahovlich (Montreal).

Right wing—Ron Ellis (Toronto), Mickey Redmond (Detroit), Wayne Cashman (Boston), Bill Goldsworthy (Minnesota North Stars).

Also taking part in the workouts will be assistant-coach John Ferguson who, says Sinden, is hoping to make the team.

Another top prospect for Team Canada is Boston defenceman Bobby Orr. The outstanding player in the Stanley Cup final last season is recovering from knee surgery and not expected to play the early part of the eight-game series in Canada.

With the initial game of the Canadian portion of the series in Montreal, the next three games are schedule for Toronto (Sept. 4), Winnipeg (Sept. 6) and Vancouver (Sept. 8).

The Russian end of the series, with all games in Moscow, will be played Sept. 22, 24, 25 and 28.

Sinden said he doesn't anticipate any of the players having any difficulty getting used to one another.

"I think some of the players will be amazed to find they know each other better than they think," Sinden said. "Take Mahovlich and Mikita.

"I'm not in Frank's mind he knows exactly how Stan plays the game, and so they'll learn to work together very quickly."

'Spies' Begin Hockey Mission

TORONTO (CP) — Spies for the Russia-Canada hockey series in September are preparing to embark on their assignments within a few days.

John McLellan, coach, and Bob Davidson, chief scout for the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, will leave early next week for Moscow.

Two Russian hockey experts are expected to arrive in Toronto Tuesday to assess Canada's training camp opening Monday.

McLelland and Davidson, designated by Team Canada, will scout the final games of a three-game series in the Red Army team, which includes 14 members of Russia's national team. Then they'll study two Russian players in their regular training camp.

Hockey Briefs

Hadfield Taking Five

NEW YORK (AP) — Left winger Vic Hadfield, the only 50-goal scorer in New York Rangers' history, has signed a five-year $1-million contract with the National Hockey League club, it was confirmed Friday.

"Vic is very pleased with the contract," said his business manager, Nick Nicolosi, in confirming a report published in Toronto.

Nicolosi said the contract was negotiated Monday by Hadfield lawyer Bob Woolf and Emile Francia, the Rangers' general manager and coach.

Hadfield, who collected 50 goals last season in his final year as Rangers' captain, recently rejected an offer from Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association.

The Rangers refused to comment on the players contract status.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Islanders of the National Hockey League announced Friday they have obtained a restraining order in New York Supreme Court in Nassau County, preventing centre Garry Peters from playing with any other pro hockey team.

The Islanders had selected Peters in the NHL's expansion draft last June. But Peters voted the Most Valuable Player in the American Hockey League last season with Boston Braves, recently signed with New York Raiders of the World Hockey Association.

The Islanders said the order for a preliminary injunction to continue the restraining order is returnable on Aug. 18.

Peters previously has played in the NHL with Montreal, Philadelphia, Boston and New York Rangers.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Islanders of the National Hockey League announced today the signing of five players, including goaltender Denis Dejordy, left wing Germain Gagnon, centre Brian Marchinko and defencemen Gerry Hart and Bill Makelson.

The islanders, who will make their NHL debut this year, said the players signed multi-year agreements, but they did not disclose further details.

Sharpe Dulled

HAMILTON (CP) — The last Canadian in the men's singles of the Ontario Open tennis tournament was eliminated Friday when John Sharpe of Toronto was defeated by John Fort of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-2, 6-4.

Victory by Fort qualified him for a berth in the Canadian Open championships, which start Monday in Toronto.

"I couldn't break his serve, he was hitting the ball too sharp," said the No. 1 seeded Canadian.

In other singles matches, Rez Reid of Greenville, N.C., defeated Jasjit Singh of India, 6-1, 6-2; F. D. Robbins of Salt Lake City, Utah, defeated Armistead Neely of Tampa, Fla., 6-1, 7-6; and Jean Rougon of France defeated Jerry Van Linge of Santa Monica, 8-3, 6-4.

Janice Tindle of Vancouver was leading Vicki Berner of Vancouver 4-3 in the women's singles, when Miss Berner injured her knee and was forced to retire. Susan Stove of Vancouver beat Benita I. an of Toronto, 6-2, 6-3.

SHAWANO NUGGETS

A HEAP O' GOOD LIVIN'

by SOURDOUGH SAM

When you find a good place to hang your hat, why go shopping for a new saddle. Up in Shawano country, it's dangled easy to enjoy a heap o' good livin'. Nothin' fancy mind you. Things like clean air, forest wildlife and some huntin' and fishin' when you need to.

Talkin' with folks who've moved into Shawano, it seems as if that's what they want. Just hankerin' after a bit of peace and quiet.

Mind you, being city folks they ain't used to nothin' it. No totin' creek water, building an ice-house or choppin' tens o'cords of hardwood. They want electricity, indoor biffys and a his hair down.

Can't say as how I blame them, though I'm too long in the tooth for such new-fangled stuff.

Shawano is the 1,200-acre, four-season vacationland in the beautiful Highlands of Hastings, 75 miles northeast of Peterborough. Get your free colored brochure from Bowes & Cocks Ltd., Realtor, 175 North Front St., Belleville, 968-4571.

One feller was tellin' as how he feels a different person when he's in his cottage up here. He spends a lot of time roamin' the woods with a pair of field-glasses and a camera.

Another feller said he never gets tired of explorin' the shoreline and fishing the four lakes — Dickey, Perch, Lost and Lake o' Islands. Guess some city folks ain't much different from their country cousins after all.

Of course, a lot of folks think I'm just a hill-billy. What they don't know is that my pappy once took me on a lake steamer to a big exhibition. Ain't never forgot it. But we sure were glad to get back to the old place.

Don't mind tellin' you, I was pretty sore when I first heard about people movin' your free colored brochure from Bowes & Cocks Ltd., Realtor, 175 North Front St., Belleville, 968-4571.

Scripts for Black Lack Truth

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When it comes to black and white—racially speaking—the era of color TV hasn't seen many attitude changes, say two of the media's most successful black women stars.

Diahann Carroll, who broke new ground five years ago as the first black woman star on a TV series, Julia, says she's not doing another series yet because she's found no truthful scripts about blacks.

"I've had an awful lot of meetings about it," says Miss Carroll said Thursday, "but the thinking is still pretty stereotyped because we live in a segregated world."

Melba Moore, a newcomer to home screens as Carol Burnett's summer replacement, said she had to fight constantly to project a truthful image of herself and co-star Clifton Davis.

"The thing about it is that we're both niggers, man," says Miss Moore. "That's why we're funny. We take things out of our backgrounds."

Miss Carroll, who had just finished taping a guest spot on the Bill Cosby show, says she looks back at Julia as a milestone, although "in today's market I no longer consider it a valid statement for television to make."

In the situation comedy she portrayed a widowed black nurse with a small son and white neighbors.

"Julia presented shows" with black people playing in primarily white situations," she says, "and I think, while the scripts were terribly light and made no contribution to our enlightenment about each other, it was important for the industry to know that people were turning on their televisions to watch a black family."

The series lasted three years, and Miss Carroll believes it would still be running had the scripts caught up with the revolution in black attitudes.

"We should have come out of fantasy and into 'reality' more," she says.

Bold Ones All Medical

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's a medical television series going to do. In order to best out the opposition? The answer for The Bold Ones is to seek bolder subjects for cure.

When The Bold Ones returns to NBC programming this fall, it will be doing a single. Long gone are The Senator and The Protectors segments of the rotating series. Last season gave the demise of The Lawyers alternate of the MCA-Universal package.

Only The Doctors remain.

Curtis Wins Custody Of Daughters

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Tony Curtis has won temporary custody of two daughters, Alexandra, 8, and Allegra, 6, from their mother, German actress Christine Kaufman.

Curtis said in a complaint that the children were shuttled back and forth from country to country and were left with an assortment of governesses while in their mother's custody.

Judge Edward Brand on Wednesday set a custody hearing for Oct. 9 and issued a restraining order preventing Miss Kaufman from taking the children out of the country.

Curtis was married to Miss Kaufman from 1963 to 1968. Earlier, he was married to actress Janet Leigh.

Paul Anka Faces $10 Million Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Joey Heatherton is suing Ottawa-born singer Paul Anka for $10.25 million.

The suit, filed Wednesday in Superior Court, contends Anka forced a Las Vegas hotel to break a contract with Miss Heatherton. She said Anka told the management at Caesars Palace he would not perform if she was on the bill with him, despite an earlier contract. The suit claims that the hotel then cancelled its contract with Miss Heatherton but offered her a booking for next winter.

The suit asks $120,000 in actual damages and $10 million "for damages to the plaintiff's reputation and good will."

Pope on Dope Record Banned

CARACAS, Venezuela (Reuter) — Police have impounded 600 copies of the long-playing record The Pope Smokes Dope, on the grounds that it is disrespectful to the Roman Catholic Church.

The record produced by former Beatle John Lennon includes such phrases as "The Pope smokes weed while saying mass." "Priests get drunk while the Pope says mass."

starring E. G. Marshall and David Hartman.

The main overseeing the surgular Bold Ones is producer David Levinson, who is well qualified for the job. He is the son of a doctor.

"My father always wanted me to go into medicine," he remarks. "I made it."

Levinson's other qualification is that he produced the eight Senator segments of The Bold Ones. It may well be the freest, most remembered television series, winning Emmy recognition after its demise.

"There was a little bitterness the night we won," the producer admitted. "I still don't know why the series died. We tried to make it as entertaining as possible, while avoiding melodrama."

The Doctors competes with ABC's Marcus Welby, M.D. and CBS's Medical Center. How?

"One thing we try to do is portray doctors a little more like they really are," the producer said. "Since my father was a doctor, most of his friends were doctors, too, and I grew up around them.

Deborah Kerr Back on Stage

LONDON (AP) — Deborah Kerr, Scots-born star of many Hollywood movies, is returning to the London stage after an absence of 17 years, it was announced Wednesday.

Miss Kerr, 50, will open at the Lyric Theatre on Oct. 4 in a new play by Frank Harvey called The Day After the Fair.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, Aug. 13.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Plans may have to be sidetracked while you tend needs of somebody near you. It's a lively Sunday with much activity.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Take things as they are, including horse and daily living habits of those around you. Visitors provide much stimulus.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Premature action is about par for the course. Remember that you may be hearing incomplete news, another side to almost any issue.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Now you have a chance to tip some delicate balance toward constructive solutions of complex problems, family conditions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Use your Sunday to pick up the pieces, rescue what you can of the past. Make peace where you can to clear the path for a fresh start tomorrow.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Mental, intellectual expression comes easier with the completion you encounter this Sunday. Unfinished chores need your attention.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Concentrate on your social contacts and get something done about long-standing questions. Resolve to abide by whatever bones of it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stick with what is fundamental; disregarding local deviations from general practice. Then rough pursuit of problems brings results.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let others lead the community today. There are many things you can do for your interests beside public involvements.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get an early start, be patient with added turns of circumstances, delays, extra rounds of amenities, while you wait to hear the main news.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Find a moderate course, a little of everything, not much of any one special interest. You have figures to check somewhere.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): See what you can do to make this a quiet Sunday, with time for prayer and thanksgiving for what you have and expect to get soon.

MONDAY, AUGUST 14

Aries (March 21-April 19): Push your own ideas, bring old friends and associates to participate and to call the bluff of anyone talking stronger than he will deliver.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Mind your business; let others mind theirs. Family affairs come in momentary stress, offer opportunity for sharing dissident views.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Opportunism gets you nowhere, spoils your chances of being recognized on your own merits —learn to depend on your own resources.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Personal affairs, emotional concerns push material interests to the side. An early start helps dispose of necessary chores.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22): If you pitch in vigorously, decisions almost make themselves as you go. Putting ideas into coherent order comes easier

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Today's experience is like a train ure hunt, with all the different hidden details you must dig out to make sense of what you've heard.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can make progress, express your real self more effective. Travel is favored, but make the arrangements yourself. Friends break up for you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your courtesy now lays subtle balances for your benefit. An important decision may come to crisis. Choose and go on home.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Business interests should thrive, particularly where you are willing to take a chance. Fresh information is important —your sources have to be protected from disclosure. Persuasive powers are at a good level.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): For once you have to proceed on theory and extension of incomplete knowledge. Move boldly, in contact with long-range goals.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your opinion is strongly influenced by intuition, unconscious processes; so that you cannot justify it to skeptics. Act on it.

More Complaining About Crab Lice

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How about crabs? Is there a new way to get rid of crab lice? I discovered quite by accident that I had them. Where are they picked up? I have not had sexual relations so my only thought would be a public restroom, although I have always been very careful when using such restrooms, and always been particular about keeping myself clean. Miss R.

I hadn't intended to keep harping on the topic of crab lice (and other types of lice) but letters keep coming in, asking about them. A few years ago I hardly ever heard about them. Now I get a lot do.

The fact is that crab lice are very much more prevalent now. Many times more. The difference between a crab louse and any other kind of body louse is that it prefers to inhabit the human genital region. It can migrate to other parts of the body, though.

Anyway, crab lice are often transmitted by sexual intercourse, but that isn't the only way. The bugs can get into the seams of clothing, and the casual handling and borrowing of clothes can spread the pests. They also can hide in small creases of bed linens, or in blankets, or such. There are, in a word, plenty of ways for the pests to move from one person to another. I doubt that public restrooms are a very important element in the problem.

As for getting rid of crabs, just ridding yourself of the crabs leaves you open to a fresh problem. But here's the catch, they lay eggs which are attached to the shafts by a very sticky, strong adhesive, and it is extremely difficult to get rid of all the eggs. So presently a new batch appears.

Best medication, in the experience of physicians, is a prescription medication (lotion or shampoo form) -called Kwell, which gets rid of both the bugs and the eggs. There are other prescription remedies -available only from doctors. How well they work, I cannot say.

I've been told that some people have had very good results with them, so I don't intend to downgrade them. I do, however, stick to my belief that Kwell has been the most effective treatment in my experience.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why is hair black, brown or red? If you can a black-haired man have a red-haired child? C.R.

Well, it's a difference in the pigment, or coloring matter, but exactly why and how it works, aside from the usual workings of heredity, I cannot explain.

So I can't explain why a man can have black hair and a red beard. But I've known it to happen. In the most vivid example that I happened to know of the man had jet black curly hair. A most definitely red mustache, and very light complexion which redheads often have. Not freckled, though, but redhead. He had two sons. Both had brown hair and whiskers, and really surprising tans in the sun.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any scientific evidence for the claim that cholesterol can be prevented from being deposited in the arteries by using only fresh foods and avoiding certain processed foods and that the arteries will tend to clear themselves by continued use of the fresh food diet? — S.P.

No. No evidence of that. However, it's a wise to eat only sparingly of saturated fats—which means fats that are solid at room temperature. The visible fat in meat, for example, shortening that is in solid form, butter, etc.

Substituting vegetable oils, that are liquid at room temperature, for the saturated fats is helpful in reducing the cholesterol level.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

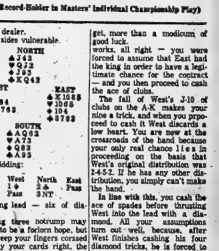
South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	NORTH ♠ 2 4 3 ♥ Q J 3 ♦ A 9 5 ♣ K Q 4 2
WEST ♠ 8 9 7 ♥ K 10 8 4 ♦ A K 10 9 2 ♣ J 10		EAST ♠ K 10 5 3 ♥ A 10 9 7 6 ♦ 10 4 ♣ 8 7 6 3
	SOUTH ♠ A Q J ♥ 5 2 ♦ A J 8 3 ♣ Q 9 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	2 ♦	Pass	2 NT
3 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — six of diamonds.



Making three notrump may appear to be a before hope, but if you keep your fingers crossed and play your cards right, the contract comes marching home (even if you don't have the advantage of seeing the East-West cards).

Let's say you win East's ten of diamonds with the queen and lead a club to the king, continuing with a low spade from dummy to your queen. The finesse — all as a result of top-notch card reading and, let's be fair, a lot of luck — has worked.

Now you lead a club to dummy's ace, and East discards a heart. Next comes a heart to the king and ace, and East discards another heart. Then you lead the nine of clubs, and East plays low. Do you finesse or play for the drop?

Obviously, at this point, consists of the doubleton Q-J of hearts and the queen of clubs, while your last three cards are the A-3 of hearts.

The forced heart return permits you to score the remaining tricks, and so you come by a pretty interesting hoave with the contract

CP News Briefs

Milk Quotas To Be Raised

TORONTO (CP) — All milk producers in Ontario will receive a general increase in their industrial milk quotas Sept. 1, the Ontario Milk Marketing Board said Friday.

An official of the board said in an interview that the precise amount of the increase has not been determined but it would be more than five per cent.

The board also announced penalty charges for quotas covering milk production in eastern Ontario areas, where cattle feed crops are affected by poor weather, will be waived until next year.

Effective immediately, the quota penalty clauses as they apply to fluid and industrial milk pools will be waived in the counties of Russell, Dundas, Prescott, Stormont and Glengarry, in the townships of Gloucester, Osgoode and North Gower in Carleton County and in the townships of Sarsfield, Cumberland, Edwardsburgh and Oxford in Grenville County.

In these areas the penalty clause for fluid milk pool quotas will be waived from June 1, 1972, and industrial milk quotas will be waived until the end of the 1972-73 dairy year.

The spokesman said, similar consideration will be given on an individual basis to other milk producers in the province who have experienced severe weather conditions.

The board has also asked the Canadian Dairy Commission in Ottawa to consider the waiving of its penalty clause as it applies to federal dairy subsidy eligibility quotas.

Under the fluid milk program, when a producer's daily average production for each of two consecutive months is below 90 per cent of his allotted quota, the quota is reduced by the amount that his daily average production is below this figure.

The industrial milk quota penalty comes into effect when a producer marketes less than 75 per cent of his quota in any dairy year. When this happens, the board reduces his quota for the following dairy year by the difference between his ship-ments and 75 per cent of his quota.

The same penalty applies to federal subsidy eligibility quotas, the board said.

Lougheed Explains Statement

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed says his recent remarks on supporting Quebec in constitutional matters have been misunderstood.

Earlier this week, on returning from the premier's conference at Halifax, Mr. Lougheed said Alberta would stand with Quebec so that "French Canada is never again isolated."

Opposition Leader Harry Strom and Grant Notley, Alberta New Democratic party leader, said Thursday Mr. Lougheed's statement was "ridiculous" and startling."

Mr. Lougheed said in a statement Friday:

"The Alberta government would obviously not support any position by Quebec or any other government that was not in the best interests of Alberta or of Canada as a whole.

The premier said Quebec now is striving to remain within confederation and "attempting to offset the pressures of separatism."

"It is undesirable for Quebec to be isolated—if it is all possible to avoid it—on a matter of provincial rights rather than federal government control.

Mail Protested

WHITBY (CP) — Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote will receive a presentation from the town of Whitby protesting an alleged deterioration in mail delivery. Town officials say began when mail-sorting services were moved across the town line into Oshawa in April. The town is asking residents for their comments, to be included in the official submission.

Not So Tiny

TORONTO (CP) — Grant Macleod really has a big problem.

When he stuffs Tina the elephant, he has a lot more than that to do with it.

Tina, a four-year old elephant who was shot in Sudbury last week after it trampled a trainer, is Mr. Macleod's greatest challenge.

"It's a big job," he said, "but it's harder to stuff a hummingbird."

Mr. Macleod said it would take a year to finish the job.

Jet Found

OWEN SOUND (CP)— A Canadian Armed Forces CF-100 jet fighter, missing from its North Bay base since Aug. 2, 1956, has been found by a commercial fisherman from the Bruce Peninsula 12 miles northeast of Tobermory, Ont. A spokesman said Friday technical investigators have positively identified 400 pounds of wreckage, Next of kin of Flying Officer G. A. Hughes, pilot, and Flying Officer K. G. Hatcher, navigator, have been notified.

Welfare Down

TORONTO (CP) — The number of persons on welfare in Metro Toronto fell in July, for the sixth straight month, to 29,302. The total is down 666 from June. The peak figure was 60,999 in March, 1971. The number of people on welfare who are able to work rose, however, from 15,341 in June to 15,430 last month.

Charter Deal Said Closer

OTTAWA (CP) — An international air charter conference ended here Friday with optimism that a new transatlantic air charter policy will soon be worked out.

Government officials representing the United States, Canada and 21 other nations of the European Civil Aviation Conference issued a statement that there will be further discussion on a replacement for the controversial affinity charter rule.

The next round of discussions will be in Paris in September. The working group of government officials are then expected to present a final proposal to senior civil aviation authorities for approval in October.

If it is accepted, the new policy should go into effect also in October.

The affinity charter rule, which requires membership in a club to obtain low charter rates, has troubled civil aviation authorities on both sides of the Atlantic. Government regulatory officials in Britain, Canada and the U.S. have said it is almost impossible to enforce.

Observers here say that an international agreement is needed on a new charter rule. Should discussions break down, it is expected that the U.S., Britain and Canada will agree on a replacement for the affinity rule.

The U.S., Canada and Britain have all proposed variations on a charter scheme which would allow acts on a charter flight to be sold individually about three months before the flight leaves.

Travel agents could submit a list of passengers which could be checked by glancing at passports before flight departure.

Government sources say this would appear easier to enforce than the affinity rule.

Under the affinity rule, an organization whose main purpose is not travel can charter a flight at cheaper rates than ordinary scheduled flights provided it receives approval from the regulatory authority in Canada, the regulatory authority is the Canadian transport commission.

Individuals in the charter group must have been members in good standing for at least six months before the departure date of the flight.

Ivor Happy

MOSCOW (AP) — Little Ivor, a baby musk ox from Edmonton, has smashed contentedly at a pile of oak leaves Friday as Canadian embassy officials presented him to the Moscow zoo on behalf of the children of Canada. The year-old musk ox was born in a small colony of the rare animal farm near Edmonton. The children of the city collected to make him a gift to Russian children after Soviet premier Alexei Kosygin visited Canada. Ivor was originally named for Edmonton Mayor Ivor Dent, arrived in Russia May 9.

Radio Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has created a commission to study continued government financing for Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty. Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president emeritus of Johns Hopkins University and brother of the late president, was appointed to head the commission announced by the White House Thursday.

Balloon Busting Art Revived

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The First World War art of balloon busting—shooting down observation balloons—was revived this week over the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

A weather balloon was observed drifting at 33,000 feet in the area; in which the 100-foot-wide craft was regarded as a hazard to air traffic.

It was tracked by a T-33 plane from the 414 Black Knights Squadron based here. Then an Argus swept the gulf area to make sure all was clear beneath it.

Finally two CF-5s from 433 Squadron at Bagotville, Que., were launched under the control of the 22nd NORAD Region here and they shot down the balloon Thursday evening. It went out of radar contact at 22,000 feet and presumably plunged into the gulf south of Sept-Iles, Que.

OTTAWA (CP) — Convictions under the Narcotic Control Act were down 36 per cent during the second quarter of 1972 compared with the same period in 1971. The quarterly report of convictions published by the federal health department forecast narcotic convictions for April to June totalled 2,610. A year earlier the report showed 4,080 convictions.

Policeman Fined

Commercial Ships Next In Anti-pollution War

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Environment Minister James Auld said Friday the next big problem facing the Great Lakes is enforcement of laws on holding tanks in commercial vessels.

The minister was referring to those tanks which hold human excrement and other wastes held and dumped by freighters into the lakes.

Mr. Auld was speaking at a news conference called by the Interstate Legislative Committee, a United States organization drawn from states bordering Lake Erie.

"Some people have been dragging their feet," he said. "We need more and better laws."

Mr. Auld added that one of the best ways to police the situation is to check vessels while they are in the St. Lawrence seaway.

"We (Ontario) can't be sending submarines and scuba divers out to see what they are doing," he said. "It's better checking in the seaway and that's under federal law."

He noted that all governments pay more concern to the problem and that pump-out stations be required throughout the Great Lakes.

"This is as much an international problem as it is local," he said, suggesting that holding tanks should be compulsory on all world water ships.

State representatives said Ontario was years more advanced with more stringent laws because their holding tank treatment was holding back funds and there was no uniform rule.

Glen Harris, a New York state representative said:

"I'll tell you where we are as far as Lake Erie is concerned. New York and Michigan have set tough laws on holding-tank control, not only with private vessels but commercial.

"The problem is that the other two states on Lake Erie—Ohio and Pennsylvania—have no laws at all on this subject."

Mr. Harris said phosphorus and mercury control had been established in the lake and several representatives added that fish populations were increasing.

An Ohio delegate objected when a reporter quoted a study saying coho salmon, planted on the American side of the lake, were coming to Canada to find clean water.

"We've got great coho hanks on our side," she said. "I don't believe that."

She also denied a suggestion that coho salmon cannot spawn after they are transplanted in the Great Lakes.

Michigan Senator Gordon Rockwell said the committee has goals but no money.

Shriver's Comments 'Political Fantasy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary William P. Rogers denounced Friday as "political fantasy" an assertion by Democratic vice-presidential nominee Sargent Shriver that President Nixon "blew" an historic chance to end the Vietnam war.

Rogers told a news conference that he has been checking statements made by Shriver in writing and to associates at the time Shriver resigned as ambassador to Paris early in the Nixon administration.

"He (Shriver) never suggested anything like this either in writing or orally," Rogers said.

"If there was such an historic opportunity to say Mr Shriver was miraculously quiet about it" Rogers continued, saying:

"It's not really a fabrication. It is political fantasy."

Waste Fight

OTTAWA (CP) — The environment department has awarded contracts totalling $497,470 in its continuing program for research into pollution abatement in the pulp and paper industry, Environment Minister Jack Davis said in a news release Friday the latest grants bring to $1,362,000 the total since the $5.5-million program began in 1970. The federal awards are contingent upon the pulp and paper industry spending an equal amount on research.

Envoy Booed

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-five anti-Communist demonstrators waved flags and placards and shouted protest slogans Friday as Yao Kuang, ambassador to Canada from the People's Republic of China, made a courtesy call at Toronto city hall. Mr. Yao was met by acting mayor David Rotenberg who told the ambassador through an interpreter that Toronto's citizens of Chinese origin have made great contributions to the city's cultural, business and social life.

Perkins, 37, ranking non-commissioned officer in the intelligence unit at this northwest Florida base, was accused of three separate counts stemming from an attempt to smuggle vital defence secrets to Soviet agents in Mexico City.

Mines Shatter Ulster Lull

BELFAST (CP) — Suspected Irish Republican Army guerrillas using home-made land mine traps killed two British soldiers today in an explosive reply to army claims of a "dramatic reduction" in Northern Ireland violence.

The soldiers died in the Roman Catholic Andersontown district of Belfast while on foot patrol. Army sources said they were killed when a land mine was detonated by a trip wire.

Four soldiers were hurt Sunday night in a similar land mine/ambush in Andersontown.

The death of two soldiers brought the Northern Ireland death toll in three years of communal violence to 508. The soldiers were the 67th and 68th to die this year.

Shortly before the land mine attack today, the British army said "explosions were down to half and shooting incidents less than a quarter" in the two weeks since it smashed into IRA-held areas in Belfast and Londonderry.

The army said it also had uncovered scores of rifles and pistols, thousands of rounds of ammunition and more than 13,000 pounds of explosives inside the IRA strongholds, once called "no-go" areas for British troops.

During the weekend troops even found a fully-equipped field hospital inside a deserted house in Andersontown. It was stocked with bandages, field dressings, disposable sheets and surgical equipment.

The army's increased mobility as a result of the operation resulted Sunday in the capture of another top commander of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing in Belfast.

Soldiers caught prison escapee Terence Clarke, 21, who broke out of the capital's Crumlin Road jail last year in a mass escape by IRA suspects.

'How'd you spell IRA?'

Protesters Are Moved

MIAMI BEACH (AP) Police moved into Flamingo Park before dawn today and ordered about 50 protesters to desert a makeshift campsite erected only hours before in anticipation of next week's Republican national convention.

The protesters had arrived in the park earlier Sunday without a camping permit from city council.

Girl's Father One of Slain

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A 17-year-old Angus youth was charged Sunday night with two counts of non-capital murder after his father and another man were shot dead and a 15-year-old girl abducted in her night clothes Sunday morning.

Police said Barry Blackier was arrested, and the girl rescued, about 1:30 p.m. near Toronto. Blackier is to be taken to Barrie to appear in court today.

Dead are Wilfred Barry Blackier, 46, and Robert George Knight, 36, father of the abducted girl, Gwendolyn Knight.

Mr. Blackier was killed as he sat on a couch in his Angus farmhouse. A short time later Mr. Knight was killed by three shots as his daughter was dragged protesting into a car.

Mr. Knight fell into a drainage ditch he had been digging for a new septic tank for his home in Angus.

Eleven hours after the shootings, police stopped a car on Highway 400 and rescued the girl.

After the shooting, neighbors said the Knight girl was taken by an armed youth into a car.

Garfield Jones, a neighbor, said he heard the youth threaten the girl when she protested against going with him, and later heard a shot.

"By the time I reached the kitchen from the living room, I heard another shot," said Mr. Jones, "and then there was a third."

As soon as the car pulled away, the Jones family ran outside and found Mr. Knight in the drainage ditch.

Sadie McGuiean, a friend of Gwendolyn, said the Knight girl told her of breaking up with a boyfriend to whom her parents objected, and going home about midnight.

When reports of the shooting reached provincial police, a private aircraft was used in a search of area back roads.

Wants Bombing

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The New York Times says South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has raised doubts that the United States will continue intensive bombing of North Vietnam for the six or seven more months necessary for his country to survive.

Lewis Renews Attack on Firms

HARROW, Ont. (CP) — David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, ended a three-day tour of southern Ontario Sunday with a promise to make an election issue of "the way the Canadian people have been rooked by governments and corporations in unison."

His trip, which included Windsor, Toronto, Brantford, St. Catharines and this tiny town of 2,000 near Windsor, was sprinkled with attacks against six "corporate welfare bums" he said have been paying a declining share of taxes while reaping huge government grants.

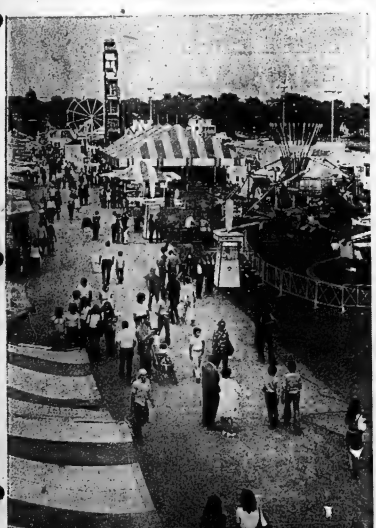
The six companies, the beginning of a list of 100 being studied through public financial statistics, were National Sea Products Ltd., Consumers Glass Co., Shell Oil of Canada, Falconbridge Mines, Denison Mines and Davie Shipbuilding Ltd.

Big Powers Are Warned They Cannot Run World

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — In his first broad policy statement since becoming secretary-general of the United Nations, Kurt Waldheim warns the big powers against trying to run the world without the world organization and asserts his own responsibility to speak out on life-or-death issues.

The 53-year-old Austrian, in office since Jan. 1, took his stand in the introduction to his first annual report on the work of the organization, issued by UN headquarters Sunday while Waldheim was visiting China.

It amounted to the secretary-general's position toward President Nixon's talks in Peking and Moscow and to Nixon's recent blast at him for saying he had unofficial word from Hanoi that U.S. bombing had damaged North Vietnamese dikes and threatened "enormous human suffering."



"No matter what criticisms or setbacks may arise," Waldheim said, "the unwritten moral responsibility which every secretary-general bears does not allow him to turn a blindeye when innocent civilian lives are placed in jeopardy on a large scale."

He said a "new and positive relationship" of the big powers is encouraging because it affords the possibility that at last the UN Security Council will work as it was supposed to work—with "the unanimity of the permanent members in matters affecting peace and security."

But he cautioned: "The idea of maintaining peace and security in the world through a concert of great powers — would seem to belong to the 19th rather than to the 20th century, where the process of technological advance and democratization is producing a new form of world society."

Today's Chuckle

Why do children have more energy after a hard day of playing than they do after a good night's sleep?

Midway Finale

Sunday was the final day of this year's Quinte Exhibition and thousands turned out to say farewell. More than 60,000 people took in the fair's 151st rendition, with the midway again among the top attractions. Highlight yesterday was a Country and Western Show in front of the grandstand.

Having A Ball at Fair

Chris Drentih, 10, and his Shriner host, the president of the Quinte Exhibition, Jack Bush, toured the fair Friday, along with 19 other crippled children. Carnival employees got into the spirit of the children's tour by refusing money for ice cream cones and giving away stuffed animals. Ten members of the local Shrine Club were on hand to escort the children about the fair.

Police Have A Bad Day

As they searched for persons involved in the kidnapping of 17-year-old Marlene Hashman, a bizarre event was unfolding beside a downtown alley.

Five young men piled out of a car in front of a drug store and started to pull on blue cover-alls. When they picked up rifles and sten guns and headed for the back door of a bank, a druggist called police.

About 10 police cars responded to the call and surrounded a multi-level parkigg structure where the armed men were believed to be hiding.

One police car drove up the ramp and stopped five feet from the men.

"What's going on here?" demanded the officer.

"We're making a movie," said one. So they were. The five, all high school students, hadn't told police that they'd be shooting a scene downtown; using real but disabled weapons.

Quebec Youth Groups Unite To Get Aid for Drug Users

SOREL, Que. (CP) — A newly formed common front of youth organizations from three Quebec communities plans to meet here today to discuss what action they can take about police treatment of drug offenders in their towns.

Organizers of groups from Sorel, Ste. Hyacinthe and Ste. Therese say the need for immediate action is shown by the deaths of four young people recently in connection with drug cases.

Most recent was the July 28 shooting death of 18-year-old Andre Vassart of Ste. Therese, Que., whom police wanted to question about drug trafficking.

Constable Andre Goulet of the Ste. Therese police force is to stand trial Friday on charges of criminal negligence in connection with the shooting.

Michel Carmier of the Sorel drug clinic and drop-in centre told a weekend meeting of the three groups that drug problems are virtually ignored by police, city administrators and townspeople.

"The problem is what the police don't do," he said. "We must force the authorities to do something."

Jean Carette of the Ste. Hyacinthe drop-in drug centre told the weekend meeting its suspected drug offenders should be watched while in custody, and that help be sought from doctors and local drug centres.

The Ste. Hyacinthe group said a coroner's inquest showed that Denis Archambault of Ste. Hyacinthe, found dead in his cell less than two hours after his arrest Feb. 10, was left alone even though his mental condition was known to be abnormal because of drug use.

Spokesmen for the Sorel group said they were particularly concerned about the deaths of 19-year-old Serge Mandeville of Sorel, found hanging in his cell last November, and Alain Gagne, also 19 and from Sorel, who died Aug. 7 in a hospital where he had been in coma since April 20 when he tried to hang himself in a police cell.

Sorel is 55 miles northeast of Montreal.

Public Parks Image Is Changing With Population, Convention Told

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Diverse demands of a society in which leisure time is constantly increasing is transforming the whole concept of public parks usage.

And agencies responsible for parkland planning and programming must respond to such change, the Ontario Parks Association was told Saturday night.

The advice came from Harold Brain, Sault Ste. Marie parks and recreation commissioner, elected OPA president for the coming year as the organization wound up its 20th annual conference at the Four Seasons Hotel.

In effect, what Mr. Brain emphasized was this:

Traditionally, public parkland meant a cultivated park symbolized by trees, trim grass, benches, maybe a beach.

Today, what makes a park is not so easily defined. It includes many concepts — reflecting the altered demands of a changed society — from historic facilities to hiking and biking trails.

Recognizing such concerns is increasingly important in an era "with leisure time becoming more accessible to all of a continually increasing pace."

"This association has a responsibility to study these new leisure trends to help orientate itself to changing needs," he told delegates from municipalities making up the OPA.

All social age groups — from youth to senior citizens — are involved in the demand for diversity, Mr. Brain said afterward, and OPA activities are becoming "more and more important in an era of leisure."

Among current concerns which the OPA will tackle are changes in provincial legislation. It has asked that it be specific since government reorganization has been undergoing major reorganization.

"But we're concerned with some of the changes they've made in parks legislation. We're not criticizing, because we appreciate their problems. But I think the OPA will have to make its thoughts known to the province," said Mr. Brain.

However, development of parks' facilities and grant structures would be among problems to be reviewed, he indicated.

Local development funds derived from property taxes "can only develop so much," said Mr. Brain.

Provincial funds are derived mainly from income tax as compared to the property tax source of municipalities.

"I think the province is going to have to re-examine the money they are giving up from their source, namely income tax, as against our property tax base, said Mr. Brain.

The OPA elected as directors Grant Strutures with provincial authorities.

"I can't be specific, because it's a big subject. But we want to work with them."

Break-in Nets Cash, Records

Cash and record albums valued at $250 were stolen during a break-in at Dennis Flesch, 10 Patterson Street, Saturday evening.

Mr. Flesch said his door unlocked when he went out at 5 p.m. and discovered the items missing upon his return at 2:30 a.m.

All Through for '72 Planning Now for '73

It's all over for another year.

Quinte Exhibition closed its gates Sunday night about 11, leaving fair officials to clean up, tote up and plan for next year.

Over-all attendance for the four days and one night event stood at 63,342. Paid attendance increased this year by 1,207, official report.

The fair ran on Sunday for the first time this year, but the exhibition was shortened by almost a day because it opened for the evening only on Wednesday.

Sunday was dubbed Family Day, but it turned into a country and western day with special entertainment in the grandstand during the evening.

Officials report crowds that filled the grandstand in the afternoon for horse judging events stayed on for the evening performances.

Under study for next year's a country and western day and a Bavarian beer garden. Permission was obtained for the beer garden this year, but officials decided to wait until a survey of fair goers could be completed to give an indication of public reaction.

About 1,000 visitors were interviewed at random on their reaction to the fair. Results are now being tabulated.

Mohawks Plan Weekly Dances

TYENDINAGA RESERVE—Dances will be held regularly at the Mohawk Quinte Mohawks new community centre — to raise funds for building's completion.

Dances will be held twice each month, the first Aug. 26, with the Mohawk Minstrels, reserve jubilaires now touring in the United States providing the music, says Alan Ioaf, chairman of the committee raising funds for the centre's rebuilding since its loss by fire last year.

Knife Incident

Grant Patrick Quick, 24, of no fixed abode, has been charged with concealing a weapon and attempted robbery following an incident on George St. Sunday. He faces similar charges in Windsor.

A tenant in the 100 George St. called the police after he was confronted on the stairs of his apartment building by a young man holding a knife.

Echo is New Campers' Voice

The newly formed wing of the Ontario Campers Association — known as the East-ern Ontario Hikers Association (Echo) — held its inaugural meet at Lavallee recently. One hundred and fifty families from the eastern portion of the province attended the meet.

Ray Wormell, one of the local campers' club, the Moira Gypsies and Keith Brunette of Oliawa's Golden Trails, were in charge of the three-day campaign.

The highlight of each day's activity was the evening campfire, with 300 campers singing and trading comments on camping.

Bruce Hyland, of Scarborough, vice chairman of ECHO, said, "If it is going to happen, let it happen at Lavallee."

A singing group composed of Peterborough campers, received a standing ovation from the Sunday morning crowd when they entertained at the weekend camp.

Called Fourth Way, they became over the weekend, the official music group at the weekend camp.

ECHO was formed because of the need for involvement among the eastern clubs, says Mr. Worrell.

The provincial body generally plans its major camp-out in southern Ontario.

ECHO will fill in this gap while remaining a member of the Ontario Association of the National Campers and Hikers Association.

Accident Level Sets New Record

Belleville's accident rate in July was the highest on record for one month.

A total of 68 persons were injured in city accidents — one fatality.

More surprising, notes Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, is the fact that 25.8 per cent of the accidents involved bicycles and 25.8 per cent of the victims were under the age of 14.

"I think it's a case where parents should be made aware of their responsibility in instructing children to ride bicycles," he said.

He went on to give some pointers:

"Always obey traffic laws as if you were driving."

"Pick a safe bicycle and maintain it in safe condition."

He stressed the need to use proper turn signals and keep to the right side of the road. All bikes should be equipped with clean reflectors for the rider's safety at night, he added.

Chamber Repaid For Info Booth

TWEED (Special) — The North Frontenac Chamber of Commerce has received a cheque for $4,000.86 from the Ontario government as reimbursement for an information booth at Shabot Lake. The booth provided short term employment under the winter works program.

In a letter to A. E. Cranston, secretary-manager of the Land O'Lakes Regional Tourist Council, a spokesman for the ministry of industry and tourism also congratulated the travel council and community representatives on the quality of information dispensed at the centre.

The program was jointly sponsored by the federal and provincial governments as a tourism development project.

Health Unit Must Approve Changes

TWEED (Special) — A recent by-law amendment in Hungerford Township will mean more work for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Permits for erecting or altering buildings "will be granted only if the health unit has given its approval."

As a result, work permits for dwellings and cottages will be withheld unless location, lot size and soil conditions are adequate for a satisfactory septic tank and weeping bed. Farm buildings used to house livestock must also receive the health unit's approval.

Quinte Planning Board Examined Its Hope and Future on the Line

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Four months have elapsed since Trenton, Brighton, Murray and Brighton township announced intention to withdraw from the Quinte Planning Board.

Tonight representatives of the Quinte Planning Board municipalities are facing the breakaway four — will meet privately at the Sidney Township Offices in a bid to resolve some of the current difficulties.

Few civic leaders here, in Belleville or in the remaining municipalities feel provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough was unreasonable in advising the four to stay for the present.

As Trenton councillor Ted Parker put it, "The decision to get out was never investigated thoroughly enough. Perhaps the municipalities felt by their withdrawal announcement, they were invoking enough review of the case by Ontario government authorities.

In any case, that is what is happening. McKeough has told the four to stay in until the situation can be analyzed properly.

Tonight's gathering in Sidney will be part of the analysis. Mayor Duncan McDonald of Trenton says he will ask the meeting to call on the minister to clarify the government's position on regional water and sewer programs for Quinte.

On planning itself, however, Trenton, Brighton and the townships know Mr. McKeough's feelings, expressed at the Lake Ontario Regional Development Conference in Peterborough in June: —

"Really, the most efficient unit should be the large one. However, if residents in the area wish to operate the less efficient planning unit, then they should have the option to live with their choice," the minister said.

And the choice is a very important one — one that may substantially affect the character of the region.

Mr. McKeough two weeks ago said he will be announcing plans for government restructuring east of Metropolitan Toronto in the coming months that will have implications on this area.

According to Ed Cornies of the ministry's municipal services branch, detailed proposals restructuring Central Ontawa area should be ready by October. This will be followed within five years with regionalization proposals for the area through to Cornwall.

There are other matters to be considered:

Implementation or modifications of plans for the Toronto region are purposely meant to affect this area. (The Toronto region includes Rice Lake, Port Hope and Cobourg).

The province is committed to shifting growth into central and Eastern Ontario.

Quinte Planning director Bert Kenny sums up Mr. Keough's position: "Let's not affect the status quo until we see what we are doing."

Most of what will take place in the area between Toronto and the Quinte area is an unknown quantity. However, the task force is working on plans for "a very significant peripheral urban centre in the Port Hope - Cobourg vicinity after 1980."

The Toronto region report even calls for "a port attached to the centre proposed for the vicinity of Port Hope - Cobourg. . . " And then there is the new Brickering airport scheme as another factor.

Ministry official Cornies says "the minister has to be satisfied a planning area is logical as far as its economic base and social exchange are concerned . . . but the ideals of what these units should be are sometimes constrained by politics."

"This is a personal impression," said Cornies. "I think Quinte Planning Board should be given a fair chance . . . there hasn't been a settling period."

Cornies states "I can prove a joint planning board saves money in the long run." He says ensuring identity of municipalities is often a problem with regional groupings but "those involved are rational men."

Trenton Mayor Duncan McDonald cites the desire to cut costs and a realization that Trenton's growth is going to be into Murray Township as reasons why the town wants out of QPB.

However, Sidney Reeve Bush says a lot of Trenton's growth will be into Sidney township to the north as noted above CFB Trenton.

Trenton is now on the verge of a developmental crisis. Both mayor and council concede the town is fast running out of both residential and industrial land.

Mr. Kenny says there are problems inherent in planning solely for a municipality. "Growth takes place in an area," he says.

Mr. Kenny said municipal planning is confused by regional development — that an industry may come to one municipality but its employees may choose to live in another town, township or city.

He says it is situations such as this that make population projections for single municipalities less reliable than those for regions. He says "we would be more accurate for the whole area" if it hadn't been for the split. "Fortunately, people — particularly Argyle Larry (Trenton clerk-controller O. W. Larry) have been most helpful," he says.

The planner says he feels the Quinte area municipalities should work together. "I cannot see a Berlin wall being put up between them."

Quinte Planning Board staff are now developing a conceptual plan for the Quinte region and have temporary staff currently working in Trenton. The conceptual study will deal with land use and population needs until the year 2000.

Kenny points out that Trenton's still - unapproved official plan only deals with the town itself and then only for the next 10 years. "Why Trenton will be full by that time," he says.

Mr. Kenny says he can understand conflicting views. He explains there could be problems defining what is regional and what isn't. Clearly, says Mr. Kenny "if somebody wants to build a shopping centre in north Belleville it is regional question."

Apartment Sewage Flow Is Stopped

FRANKFORD (Special) — Raw sewage flowing from an apartment building into the Trent River here has been stopped.

Frankford Reeve William Rose made this statement, following an inspection by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Investigators put dye into toilets in the apartment, owned by Mr. Harmen Heijgers, to prove there was a leakage problem. Since then, a proper septic tank has been installed.

The health unit had threatened Mr. Heijgers with legal action unless the sewage flow was halted.

Welfare of Animals

It is unfortunate that the Quinte branch of the Ontario Humane Society, along with others across the province, is finding it necessary to make cutbacks in its operation, especially the abandonment of the farm operation here which has been such an asset for the young people who came to see the animals.

Lack of staff and funds however have militated against its maintenance and so it has to go. Fortunately, the animals involved are being moved to the farm of superintendent Harry Brown who devoted a great deal of his time to the operation and now is returning to full time inspection work.

Cutbacks have been necessitated generally to offset the Society's deficit of $200,000 in 1971. Yet the work of the Society must go on and if there is more than it can adequately handle at times then the public must accept some of the responsibility and try and play its part in the care of animals. There was criticism of late in Council implying that the Society here was not doing an adequate job. Well none of us are perfect and if it comes to that, the public, as we have suggested, can do better also.

Car drivers might slow down a little and give stray animals a chance. On our way to work the other day we saw within a short distance of each other a dead skunk and a dead dog. Consider also the animals kept as pets but neglected in one way or another. Either they are allowed to run at large or they are denied the attention and love that animals as well as humans require if they are to feel any degree of wellbeing. Too many owners obey the letter of the law, leaving their pets tied up for hours on end — sometimes in bitter winter weather — and never exercise them.

The OHS needs our support, for without it the lot of the animal population would be a great deal worse than it is. At the same time we need to play our part also in ensuring that animals are properly care for.

A Perverse World

What colossal waste, criminal neglect and what a reflection of the perversity of man are being manifested by the dockers' strike in Britain. In a world where millions have too little to eat we have the spectacle of vast quantities of perishable being destroyed because there is no one to unload the ships.

Of course, we have witnessed the same confrontations here, where instead of food subsistence and health care — as in the recent strike of hospital workers in Quebec. In a so-called civilized world we seem instead to be slipping back into a climate of total irresponsibility and primitive intolerance.

Both management and labor must accept the blame for this failure to achieve working and economic harmony. But it is a situation too which attests the forces of subversion and elements which take advantage of unrest to strike at the roots of established order, and where there were even happy relations there may erupt resentment for no good reason at all. Our modern world is like that and we suspect things will not change too much in our time. It is an unhappy prospect, but one that the events of the day bear out.

Chain Reactions

Recently the wife of a wealthy citizen of Minneapolis was kidnapped for ransom of $1 million. Then just the other day came word that the 17-year-old daughter of a Calgary man was similarly kidnapped, this time for a mere half-million dollars.

There is a certain reaction with nefarious activities such as this. It has been the same with hijackings of commercial jets to Havana and Algeria. Then again, some unbalanced individual sets off a film — like Doomsday Flight, the one in which a bomb will explode aboard a plane when it drops below a certain height — and calls an airline to find out what happens to one of its aircraft. This happened, as we recall, to a British jet not so long ago and as was the case in the make-believe film, it landed safely at Denver because the airport there is a high altitude field.

Now we see that a film called Skyjacked, currently showing in Belleville, has been banned in Australia because of the risk that someone might get ideas. And so it goes. It is one of the hazards of our time that the perverse, the vacuous and the unstable among us get their kicks, their raison d'etre by taking their cue from others who themselves are perverse, vacuous and unstable.

Santa Monica Encounter

How Spassky Drew Fischer Out of His Shell in '66

The following article by Chess Master Viktor Kheshin appeared in the January issue of Soviet Union Today. It tells of an earlier encounter between world champion Boris Spassky and Bobby Fischer of the United States who is now challenging Spassky for the world title in Iceland. It is also eloquent of the contrasting personalities of the two grand masters of chess.

This story was told me by Boris Spassky himself.

A big international chess tournament for the prize of the famed critik Praviteln was under way in Santa Monica, Calif., in the summer of 1966. Among the 10 top-flight grandmasters participating in it were the world champion at the time Tigran Petrosyan, Boris Spassky, Robert Fischer and Beni Larsen.

U.S. champion Robert Fischer started off with lack of confidence. His chances for a high place were dropping catastrophically. The emotional American was gloomy and reticent. He moved into the most remote spot in the hotel and spent all his free time in solitude.

In the meanwhile, Spassky was leading the field. A sociable and responsive chap, he felt deep sympathy for the young American, grandmaster for his depressed state, but he couldn't make up his mind as how to approach him. After all, Fischer was a rival. What if he suddenly misconstrues a friendly gesture?

Finally, one day, Spassky knocked at Fischer's door.

"Come in," a displeased voice responded.

Fischer was sprawled in bed with his clothes on. In his hand was his inseparable transistor, and a low jazz melody dolefully filled the stuffy room. Illustrated magazines were strewn over the floor mixed with cheatsmen, which seemed to have been deliberately swept off the table. All this testified to the young man's complete indifference to his surroundings.

Fischer did not move a muscle. He continued lying on the bed, looking through Spassky with an absent gaze. An embarrassing silence set in. Something had to be done about it. Spassky's intuition suggested the solution.

"Bobby!" Spassky exclaimed all of a sudden, to his own surprise. "What the devil are you doing lolling in this disgusting room! Take a look at the street: the sun is shining, flowers, girls... I give you an hour to get ready. I shall wait for you at the pool!"

And without giving Fischer a chance to reply, he left the room.

An hour later Spassky and Fischer were swimming in the pool, merrily calling to each other. After that they were frequently seen together.

Fischer managed to improve his tournament standing. Winning several games in the home stretch, he placed second, letting only Spassky beat him.

During the latter concentrancy of the tournament Fischer came up to Spassky and uttered a phrase that was unusually long for him:

"Thanks, Boris. But bear in mind that in the match for the world title our friendship won't be taken into account!"

"But what if I'm not going to do with it?" Spassky smiled. "After all, Petrosyan is still world champion."

"Soon you'll see that," the young American objected quite seriously.

Five years have passed since then. Much has changed on the chess Olympus. In 1969 Tigran Petrosyan was dethroned. As Bobby had predicted, the chess crown passed to Boris Spassky. And Fischer himself had become mature and strongest. His skill increased immeasurably, bringing him numerous top prizes in contests on the highest level.

The imprecise victories scored by Fischer in his duels with Mark Taimanov, Bent Larsen and Tigran Petrosyan are still fresh in the minds of chess lovers. In the series of 1971 he shall be witnesses of a great battle of 24 games between the top two chess players of our times: Boris Spassky and Robert Fischer.

I asked Boris Spassky whether he is apprehensive about his encounter with Fischer.

"No," Spassky replied, "I'm not afraid. I shall win from Fischer."

And after a brief pause added:

"I shall win this match. But three years later, in the next cycle of the struggle for the world championship, I think he will be invincible."

War on Corruption in New York Hits Obstacles

NEW YORK (CP) The nearly eight million residents of this glittering city tend to put crime in the same category as taxes—inevitable.

For several years they have been learning more and more about corruption within the 32,000-man police force through publicity given various "rotten apple" cases. Two years ago, Mayor John Lindsay appointed a commission of inquiry headed by lawyer Whitman Knapp. The commission, after investigations by a small staff and public hearings, this week presented its first official report.

The Knapp commission said bribery and graft have indeed polluted the police force and took note also of accusations of corruption among prosecutors, lawyers and judges.

The Knapp commission said bribery and graft have indeed polluted the police force and took note also of accusations of corruption among prosecutors, lawyers and judges.

The commission's chief recommendation was that civilian Nelson Rockefeller appoint a special deputy attorney general to wage a five year "war on corruption" throughout the city's judicial and police system. The state governor was reported giving the proposal sympathetic consideration.

There were screams of outrage from the district attorneys of the city's five boroughs at the suggestion there be such a state overseer. One described as a "damnable lie" the opinion given by Knapp that district attorneys hesitate to prosecute policemen because of the intimate relationship developed between them in the crime-fighting process.

There is little doubt that supervision will be tightened and some heads roll. But will there be a permanent cure in a city so long condemned to the idea that a certain amount of corruption and bribery is inevitable? Past history is hardly reassuring.

The Knapp commission noted in its report that scandal, reform, and fresh scandal appear to run in 20-year cycles here.

Trouble started as soon as the police department was organized in its present form in 1844. There were major revelations of corruption in 1872, 1891, 1913, 1930 and 1949.

The investigation ordered by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1930 produced two years of hearings. One of the juicier revelations was that six innocent women were in jail because they refused to pay the bribes to policemen who had threatened to charge them with prostitution. The women were freed; magistrate's courts were reformed.

In 1949—Harry Gross' a Brooklyn bookmaker, was revealed to be paying $1 million a year for protection. That led to 150 policemen being indicted, retiring or committing suicide.

Side by side with this day's-bonded Knapp investigation, federal civil state inquiries have been proceeding along various matters. Already an assistant district attorney has been fired for not carrying out a prosecution and another has been indicted on charges of receiving a $15,000 bribe.

In Toronto recently a reporter took a car with a pre-arranged problem to 13 repair shops and only four diagnosed the ailment correctly — a loose wire-which all four fixed for nothing.

Most auto repair businesses try to do an honest and competent job, but there are too many that seem to slip things through with the knowledge that the innocent driver doesn't know a carburetor from a gasket. We are not greatly in favor of governments setting up controls on private enterprise, but with labor rates from $8 to $12 an hour some move by the Ontario government to put the fear of the Lord into repair bandits seems fair game.

Dalton Bales Surmounts Another Hurdle

By DON O'HEARN
Quee's Park Barrau

With long jaw, deep-set eyes under bushy grey eyebrows and dressed in blacks, blues and conservative grays, Attorney-General Dalton Bales looks more like the typical church man than a lawyer.

Even his carriage has an unbalanced stoop you could associate with a life-time spent passing collection plate.

Churchmen reflect honesty and integrity.

Dalton Bales reflects honesty and integrity.

Everybody, yes everybody, has always thought Dalton Bales was an honest man.

Everybody still thinks he is an honest man.

And not because of a coffee can taker sleep.

In the many ways in which a man can indicate his consequence Dalton Bales would create a person of strong character. As a minister he has been fair and mature, always recognizing two sides to a question and giving rounded explanations.

He has had a hard heart for pettiness. When a justice of the peace made a racial remark from the bench the attorney general quickly gave him his come uppance.

And he has demonstrated he is a man of quick sympathy.

Yet his main trait of integrity has been in the centre of more trouble here recently than anyone in a long, long time.

There was an inquiry into practices of the Workmen's Compensation Board. Bales was the minister (of labor) at the relevant time.

The public accounts committee uncovered a bad situation in purchasing in the municipal affairs department and again he had been the minister.

And now it has been shown that he has been in a land deal near the site of the new Toronto airport. A deal which on the facts is quite above-board but which nevertheless has enough incidental circumstances to put him in a cloud of suspicion.

It is a remarkable testimony to Mr. Bales that everybody still does believe in him. The worst anyone thinks is that he has had a horrible run of luck.

But there are two points of comment.

1. The public discomfiture this man has suffered highlights forcefully the hazards of public life and the need for stern rules so that men who volunteer for politics can't even be subject to implication.

2. A few months ago Premier Davis shuffled cabinet jobs on his supporters for possible conflicts of interest.

Holidays: Relief From Toil—Or Rat-Race?

Ottawa Journal

Holidays are a time to rest: a legacy of the great majority of workingmen for relief from their backbreaking toil, or mind-numbing machines. Time to sit a while.

But the grindstone today works on the mind behind the desk or at the counter in the office.

Does that explain the frenzy of modern holidays which so often seem a mad effort to exhaust the body to the level of the mind?

Can the highway, crowded with campers and trailers and tour-buses offer relief from the crowded freeway or the downtown Ottawa streets the modern man must navigate daily?

Can a car or a tent or a cottage full of youngsters with their incessant demands of "Daddy this!" and "Daddy that!" offer relief from the client or the customer or the boss to "Do this!" or "Do that!"?

Apparently it can!

What else explains the passion cottagers — the farmers call them "city people from the city" — have to dig and hammer and saw away at a temporary home when they are too busy or too tired to fix the place they live in?

What else explains the willingness of a man to step out of the mental heat and physical cool of a modern office, pack up, dog and then-wife into the station wagon and drive to Regina and back in three weeks?

The sociologist would likely see in it a teeming like response of the modern man who, does not recognize why else he is doing it or suggest it is a throw back to some primeval savage.

The psychiatrist may even force folk wisdom and say that a change of pace is a "good test" because change it is if it isn't rest or just say we're all crazy.

Maybe they are both right — wrong.

Our own guess is that the one sure thing about a holiday is that a fellow should do what he wants to do: work, play, play, fiddle, dream, read, not read, watch TV, not watch TV, think about his good luck or his bad luck, or not think at all.

All we can tell him when he returns to those of us minding the shop is that he not tell us he had a lousy holiday.

Focus on Car Repair Jobs

Ottawa Journal

Dissatisfied Ontario motorists can now take their complaints to either the Department of Financial and Commercial Affairs or the Motor Vehicles Branch. But the province also keeps a live clout.

In Toronto recently a reporter took a car with a pre-arranged problem to 13 repair shops and only four diagnosed the ailment correctly — a loose wire-which all four fixed for nothing.

Most auto repair businesses try to do an honest and competent job, but there are too many that seem to slip things through with the knowledge that the innocent driver doesn't know a carburetor from a gasket. We are not greatly in favor of governments setting up controls on private enterprise, but with labor rates from $8 to $12 an hour some move by the Ontario government to put the fear of the Lord into repair bandits seems fair game.

Mrs. Nind Admires Gift from Queen Elizabeth

From Egyptian Tomb To Local Museum

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON — Wellington museum this summer has added a hint of Hitchcock with a new exhibit called "The Mummified Hand."

The hand, lodged in a glass showcase, was loaned to the museum this year by Arthur Garratt Dorland, a Wellington resident whose father originally won this curious object as a token of esteem.

John Trumpour Dorland Jr., who was born in Wellington village in 1860 and travelled widely as a young man.

The mummified hand was presented to him in 1890 by his Egyptian guide who was eager to show his regard for the Prince Edward County man.

The authenticity could not be removed from Egypt today because traffic in items taken from the ancient tombs has been prohibited by the Egyptian government.

John Dorland died in 1913 and the hand eventually became the property of his son Arthur, who displayed it at his Wellington home. Fair Acre, until this year.

The hand is dyed brown in color and many bony fragments appear visible through preservative wrappings.

This unusual display is among a complete of items which make Wellington museum a stopping off place for dozens of tourists and local residents each week.

Curator Elizabeth Nind said this summer the museum has logged its largest number of visitors since an official opening in 1967.

An artistic and inventive woman who is nationally recognized for her work in applecraft, Mrs. Nind has created several "sets" in the museum which was once a Quaker meeting house.

The country store, furnished with the supplies of a bygone era, is a popular new exhibit this season.

An antique cash register, scrub scales, a coffee grinder and a tobacco cutter were donated by Wellington grocer Frank Brimley Sr., who is now in his nineties.

These colorful items dominate the tiny store which is equipped with lanterns, the latest in gay nineties swimsuits, wooden skates, high button shoes and even candy tantalizingly displayed in huge glass jars.

Mrs. Nind has a rare bottle of maple syrup in stock on her shelves and proudly points it out to visitors.

The syrup contained in a whiskey bottle with a corn cob stopper, was bottled in 1900 by the late James Clayton Hyatt of West Lake.

His daughter, Mrs. Garfield Mayne loaned it to the museum.

The syrup still appears liquid and heavy through the glass and has not crystallized since its bottling more than half a century ago.

Mrs. Nind, who with her husband, Walter, is responsible for the attractive display of museum items has posted an old fashioned price list in the country store to illustrate the ever changing value of the dollar.

In 1830 a yoke and oxen sold for $90 but in 1860 the price rocketed to $120. Whiskey was a plentiful commodity, selling for 40 cents a gallon in 1830 and later increasing in cost to $1.40 for the same quantity.

A uniform of the 49th Hitchcock's, worn by George Hyde, MP Prince Edward County, is exhibited with a note marking the sound stage on the left sleeve.

Mrs. Nind is particularly proud of a few special pieces resting on a blue velvet drape in the museum.

The goblet is the only piece of glass Prince Edward County ever had sent to him by Queen Elizabeth in appreciation of a gift presented to the Royal Family.

Mrs. Nind pointed the verse following the death of King George the Sixth and mailed it to Buckingham Palace.

Visitors from many foreign countries have called at the museum this year and in the guest book names such as Russia, New Zealand, Austria The Netherlands and Luxembourg are recorded.

The museum is open daily from 1 to 5 p.m. and also on Saturday and Sunday evenings from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Although most of the museum exhibits are only gentle reminders of the past, one item at least is closely related to one of the most controversial topics in the country today.

Manpower Notes

To those companies anticipating training staff, we would like to point out that in order to avail themselves of federal financial assistance under the Training-In-Industry Program, the training contacts must be set up and approved by the federal and provincial governments prior to commencement of the training.

What the program actually is, for those not familiar with it, is to train unemployed or underemployed people to fill your forseeable needs. Training should be provided in an organized instructional setting which is normally separate from the regular work place. The goods produced on training cannot be made part of the regular production and employers must assume indirect costs such as depreciation and administration but they will be reimbursed for the direct training costs such as instructors and 50 percent of the trainees wages.

So if you take new employees on and train them you can be sure of a new staff member that fits directly into your production procedure or if you are upgrading the skills of your present employees to meet advanced technology, again, you will not lose a valued employee and provide the person with advanced skills.

If anyone would like more information concerning this program, please don't hesitate to contact us at the Canada Manpower Centre, 123 Dundas St. E., Belleville. Telephone number 962-9681.

Art Student Designs Fashionable Mannequins

LONDON (CP) — There was no doubt in the mind of onetime art student Ken Beecham that London was the pacesetting fashion capital of the world. But th estore window mannequins displaying the clothes seemed to belong to another age.

That gave Beecham an idea for a blikeness of his own that he hopes this year will top £500,000 (about $1.2 million) in turnover.

Beecham knew from experience that it was possible to produce mannequins which kept pace with rapidly changing fashions and in 1971 he set up his own business in North London to produce his ideas of window display dollies.

For the first eight months he concentrated on selling wigs, makeup and providing a renovation and respraying service for mannequins, before bringing out his first range of mannequins for sale. Turnover the first year was £90,000.

Exports account at present for about 25 per cent of his business and he estimates on the basis of current trends that in 1973 they will represent about 60 per cent. At present he employs 25 people but this figure will have risen to 80 by the end of this year.

Similarly, his mannequins are fitted with wigs that follow the latest hair styles.

He has produced mannequins with Japanese features for a recent promotion of Japanese haute couture in a London department store. He thinks that Oriental styles are going to become popular in the next few months and sees a big future for his Japanese mannequins. He is also planning to produce an Indian mannequin.

He has already manufactured a Puerto Rican male mannequin for a New York company and a range of Negro mannequins. He has male mannequins with beards and moustaches and hair on their chests, a number of individual child mannequins and even a baby which we defecately made with a grumpy expression because after all, babies don't think it all the time, do they?

Mr. Beecham began his career as an art student. His first job was in advertising and then he worked for 14 years doing window displays for several London shops. In this way he learned all about mannequins from the user's point of view.

In 1964 he joined Hindsich is probably the largest manufacturer of mannequins in the world, and took over their sales and promotion in Britain. Thus he found out about the design side and the processes involved.

He persuaded the company to think about mannequins in terms of fashion, for these were the days when dolly girls and boys with long hair were beginning to be fashionable in London. Hindsgaul, on his advice, began making mannequins which looked like the trendy young people to be seen in London's King's Road and Carnaby Street.

When he set up his own business, Beecham was joined by Douglas Bruce, who had begun his career as hairdresser and had gone on from there to making wigs for mannequins. They both knew their market and decided it was important for their market to know them too. So they took a large stand at the annual exhibition in January of the British National Display Equipment Association in London.

They now have agents for Austria, West Germany and Scandinavia and one for the United States and Canada who is currently negotiating to present their products in New York in June.

Ann Landers

Interracial Adoption Arouses Many Readers

Dear Ann Landers: About that white Iowa couple who were adopting the baby girl of an interracial union, they may be God's own, as you say, but I question their judgment.

Americans are still a race-conscious people. These parents did do well to consider the problems the child will face. Will she be looked down on by both blacks and whites What will the attitude of the neighbors be? Are they well enough integrated so that she will have access to both black and white friends?

Parents who want to adopt "any child" should realize that children aren't poodles. There's more to it than providing "a good home." A child must grow into adulthood prepared to live in the real world. — Mrs. E.

Dear Mrs. E.: The questions you raise are provocative and there are no easy answers. Since that letter appeared I have been bombarded with expressions of love, hate, praise, condemnation and concern. Some it, and I've had it. Here are some samples of what the mail has been like lately:

From Ohio: God bless that couple with the courage to adopt an interracial child. The folks down South won't be so happy about this prediction, but within 150 years America will be predominantly brown.

From Indiana: You suggested a 21-gun salute for that Iowa couple. I suggest you save the salute for the kid. If he survives, it's a rough world out there and whether you like it or not, Archie Bunker is the new American hero and people love him.

From Edmonton: I am a 12-year-old girl. I just read a book about a couple who took twelve children of mixed parentage into their home and they're happy as can be. Anyone who thinks brown skin or difficult shaped eyes makes a person inferior needs educating.

From Washington, D.C.: How much experience with interracial children have you had, Ann Landers? We adopted a Vietnamese child five years ago and she has put us through hell. The girl has been in a mental hospital for over a year and is still very sick. Our own children are normal and healthy and we rue the day we opened our heart and our home to this foreign girl.

From Minnesota: Four years ago we adopted a Korean boy. He has brought us a world of joy and happiness, taught us two sons kindness and unselfishness, and we thank God daily for him.

From Alabama: You Northerners have a lot to say about brotherly love and racial equality. God made people different colors for a reason. Birds of a feather belong together. If your granddaughter marries a black you deserve it.

From Hartford, Conn.: A spokesman for The Greater Hartford Association of Black Social Workers says, "Black children should be placed with black families. White families cannot provide the experience that will enable a black child to survive in what they call a 'racist society.' Children face enormous burdens during their growing-up years even under normal conditions. This special situation is an added burden to the child and the parents." I read this in the Hartford Courant two days after your column appeared. It sounds reasonable to me.

So dear readers, there you have it. In my opinion, the overall results of what happens to biracial, and black- and brown-skinned children who are adopted by white families will not be known for at least 15 years. I'm betting there will be many triumphs and many disasters. Those who try it need unusual courage, emotional stability and an infinite capacity to love. If they succeed, the rewards are tremendous.

Successful Living

Do You Plan Honeymoons?

By DORIS CLARK

You who are bending all your efforts to providing the comforts of home for families — are you setting aside time to stay in love? Your courting days were wonderful, romantic, satisfying.

What's wrong with taking a weekend together, say every three months, just to be together?

What's wrong with a yearly anniversary when you re-read the marriage ceremony? Couples who do this express to me the wonderful feeling of oneness it gives them.

If it was worth spending time on falling in love in the first place, time spent to stay in love is worth a great deal more.

Dear Doris: Send me any information you have about agoraphobia ("The House-bound Housewife Syndrome") I am in the menopause and have been suffering from this.

I would like to be able to help others, as I am much better and could tell them that in time they can conquer this. It is just dreadful to pull through but one does improve with time and patience and courage. — Through the Worst

Dear Through: It seems that for an agoraphobic there's just no way to walk calmly down the street and do the shopping. If they manage at all it is with trembling knees, nausea, blurred vision. Once back inside their own doors they settle in a chair exhausted — not from physical but from emotional efforts.

It is a real, frightening phobia.

You have fought your way through it and can begin to see the light. Even this much will encourage the panicky ones. This is one of the things which comes out at a meeting of "Support" — an offshoot of the Canadian Mental Health Association, where meetings happen regularly in about four Canadian cities now.

Since your letter comes from none of them, why not write to the headquarters at 330 Edmonton Street, Winnipeg [illegible] to get something started where you live.

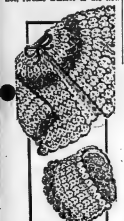
Dear Doris: I would suggest to the lady who found the obscene literature in her 13-year-old son's room that she bring it out when he and she are alone and quietly explain the facts of life to him.



When my oldest son was nine he came to me with a vulgar story he had been told by an older boy. I sat down and explained it all to him, adding that sex was a sacred thing because we had the gift of producing another human being, with an immortal soul. I also explained that refined people didn't make jests about such private things. He and the boys at school talked of nothing else.

I furnished him with a new bat and ball and suggested that he say, "Mother told me all about that stuff. Let's play ball and have some fun." That took the kick out of it; it was no more a thing of mystery.

I found that a bit of good-natured ridicule helped the children to steer clear of trashy literature. My boys are adult, have had a wonderful relationship and although I am in the 50s, we love to get together and laugh and talk. — Great-Grandma

Dear Great-Grandma: Congratulations! Not only "A Concerned Mother" but many another will appreciate the way you handled this touchy subject.

What's troubling you? Putting it on paper to Doris is the first step towards solving your problem.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is a grumpy father bad influence?

NOT always. Indeed, if a father who is sour and always complaining would shift the focus away from himself, he might be pleasantly surprised—enough so, perhaps, to make him less grumpy. Children of such a father are unusually empathetic toward him. The trouble can come, however, if Pop doesn't respond. His children, failing in attempts to "get to him," may then blame themselves for Dad's sour nature.

Are sports just aggressive outlets?

NO. Although sports frequently do provide athletes and fans with healthy ways to release aggressions, there are many occasions in sports when both buffs and players can enjoy psychological benefits that have nothing to do with aggression. In pitching a no-hitter, for example, a player may exult in the sheer mastery of his skill. His control of the ball, the opposition—and the moment —can be a therapeutic boost to his self-esteem.

Can love build self-confidence?

NOW, that is one of the more delightful fringe benefits of being in love. Say it has all been on the down side for a girl. Her looks, her attitude, her outlook—you name it, she lacks it, especially self-confidence. Just let love enter her life, though (and it will sometime when it does come!), she's a different person entirely. She feels good just being alive. From then on the rest is easy, and she has the confidence that tells her that is so.

Time Aids Bandits

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (Reuter) — With a deadline of midnight on tonight for lodging armed robbery charges under the state 10-year statute of limitations, time is running in favor of the crafty criminals who staged the fabulous $1,551,227 mail truck robbery here the night of Aug. 14, 1962.

Investigators aren't offering much hope of an 11th-hour solution of the greatest caper of the kind in the history of U.S. crime despite spending more money than was taken by the robbers in attempts to catch them.

The $1,218,211 hold-up of the Brinks counting room in Boston, Jan. 17, 1950, was "cracked," with the conviction of eight men when an informant turned state's evidence only a short time before the statue of limitations was to have been reached for that crime.

Record federal rewards totalling $250,000 were offered for information leading to the conviction of the Plymouth crooks, but to any public knowledge not a single dollar of the loot has ever been recovered and it is not definitely know how many were in the gang.

The small, red, white and blue mail truck was travelling from Cape Cod banks to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston when it was halted by two men, one dressed as a policeman, the other in civilian clothes, flashing a light in front of two cars blocking the roadway.

About four miles back on Route 3 north, meantime, other members of the hold-up gang stopped all traffic with flashing red and yellow signal lights stolen from state highway public works garages. Cars were detoured up a side road that emerged beyond the place where the truck was stopped.

The driver and guard, freeing themselves from their bonds, found the truck parked to the side of the road at a highway intersection in Stoughton, Mass., about 15 miles from the ambush site.

Later at night, a 13-state police alert was out, and by morning U.S. coast guard planes and boats were searching the entire Cape Cod coastline, U.S., Canadian and Mexican border stations were placed on special watch, and all 50 states and many foreign countries began tracing part in the most complicated criminal chase on record to that time.

Though most or all of the money stolen is believed to have been unmarked, the robbers could still be charged with the possession of stolen money, and possibly tax evasion, after the expiration of the 10-year statute of limitations for robbery.

Campbell Gives WHA Less Than Year to Live

TOROTO (CP) — Clarence Campbell says the World Hockey Association has inflated National Hockey League salaries but he gives the fledgling WHA less than a year before it folds.

"This is an economic battle, and we are being wounded very seriously," the NHL president said in a telephone interview from his Montreal home when asked to explain why league owners forbid the use of WHA players on the Team Canada roster.

Team Canada, a group of NHL players, moved into Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday for medical check-ups and was to begin a twice-a-day training camp today in preparation for an eight-game exhibition series against Russia in September.

"Why should we supply a showcase for our opposition's best feature?" Campbell said, referring to winger Bobby Hull who jumped from the NHL's Chicago Black Hawks to join Winnipeg Jets of the WHA.

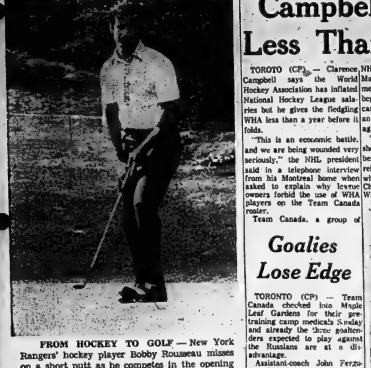
NHL owners agreed several months ago to avoid a bidding war with the WHA but salaries offered by the new league, which begins in September, were so high that the NHL was forced to accelerate its spending program on players.

Bill Harris, a talented rookie, was signed by New York Islanders of the NHL to a two-year part estimated at $250,000 due largely to another offer from the WHA's Philadelphia Blazers.

Veterans Brad Park and Vic Hadfield entered into 1-million five-year contracts with New York Rangers after considering offers from the WHA.

Campbell, however, believes he could have been far worse had the WHA not proposed starting this year.

"Another year of talking before they got rolling would have been more expensive," Campbell said. "And if this is an economic confrontation, the surest way for them to fail is to get started."



"My personal opinion is that the WHA won't last a year. But we can't afford to proceed on that assumption."

Whatever happens in any future legal actions involving the two leagues, Campbell says the NHL will continue to feel the effect of players' salaries that have increased 30 per cent this year.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, estimates the bidding war between the two leagues has vaulted NHL player salaries up $5 million this year.

"It may be higher than 30 per cent. Salaries for the past season equal between 24 and 28 per cent of the gross receipts. Now, 40 to 45 per cent of gross receipts will be player expenses. ..."

"Conservatively, the WHA in conjunction with the regular inflation, has made a difference of $5 million and maybe more to NHL player salaries for the upcoming season."

Goalies Lose Edge

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada checked into Maple Leaf Gardens for their pre-training camp meeting Sunday and already the three goaltenders expected to play against the Russians are at a disadvantage.

Assistant-coach John Ferguson disclosed goal creases for the forthcoming series of hockey exhibitions with the Russian national team will be curved—familiar to minor and international players but not to the three veteran National Hockey League goalies.

Ken Dryden, Tony Esposito and Ed Johnston have been playing in rectangular goal creases that extend four feet and six inches from the goal mouths. The curved goal crease has a radius of 4½ feet.

"This is one thing we didn't negotiate and it can make a big difference for goaltenders," Ferguson explained.

NHL goaltenders use the square corners of the rectangle to cut off shooting angles by opposing players.

JACQUES LAPERRIERE

Laperriere Lost To Canadians

TOROTO (CP) — Defenceman Jacques Laperriere of Montreal Canadiens will be missing from the Team Canada lineup for the exhibition hockey series against Russia in September, general manager-coach Harry Sinden said Sunday.

A spokesman for Team Canada said illness in the Laperriere family has forced the lanky Montreal rearguard to pass up the eight-game series that starts in Montreal on Sept. 2.

Also absent from Sunday's Team Canada training camp at Maple Leaf Gardens for their pre-training camp workouts prior to starting three weeks of twice-a-day practice sessions today.

Sinden Picks Four Captains

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Sinden, general manager-coach of Team Canada that will play Russian national team in a long-awaited exhibition hockey series in September, named his team captains Sunday.

Four players were selected to wear the C on their sweaters after the members checked into Maple Leaf Gardens for their pre-training camp workouts prior to starting three weeks of twice-a-day practice sessions today.

The four included centres Jean Ratelle, New York Rangers; Phil Esposito, Boston Bruins; Stan Mikita, Chicago Black Hawks; and wingers Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens.

Sinden said John Von Boschmeer, a defenceman with Guelph CCs of the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League who has signed with Montreal, would be added to the training roster.

No goaltender was expected to be named to replace John Davidson in training camp which was to begin two-a-day practice sessions today.

Nicklaus Flirting With Money Mark

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — The glory dream of golf's Grand Slam is gone, at least for this season, but Jack Nicklaus is flirting now with a new goal—$300,000 in winnings for a single season.

"It would be great to win $300,000," Nicklaus said after pushing his winnings to $240,000 for the year with his victory in the rich Westchester Golf Classic. "But I just don't know if I'll be able to play enough to do it."

"You always want to try better yourself," said Nicklaus, who won a record $244,090 last year, "and I'd particularly like to do it this season for our reason: I feel that I'm a better golfer this year than I ever have been before in my life."

The record would back him up. In only 15 starts on the American tour this year, Nicklaus has won five—the Masters, U.S. Open, Bing Crosby Pro-am and Doral Eastern prior to the Westchester, lost in a playoff for the title in the Tournament of Champions, failed by a stroke in the Jackie Gleason and tied for second at New Orleans.

And, of course, he lost by a single stroke in the British Open.

He's averaging $16,828 a start on the United States.

His record of $244,000 seems a certain to go. But $300,000 could be difficult.

"I'd have to win at least one more, maybe two, to do it," Nicklaus said. "It's like to, but I honestly don't know if I'll play enough."

Nicklaus won the Westchester with almost casual ease, forging a beautifully - played four-under - par 68 in the final round on the Westchester Country Club course. The 18-under-par total of 270 was the best on the tour this season.

He was never headed in the hot and muggy final round and won by three strokes over Jim Colbert, who had a hole-in-one and an eagle three en route to a 65 and 272.

No Canadians survived the halfway cut.

Arnold Palmer, who scored his last individual triumph in this one a year ago, didn't qualify for the final two rounds. British Open champ Lee Trevino didn't compete.

Champion Wants Match

WINNIPEG (CP) Playing in a tournament she described as "one day too long", Marlene Streit of Foothill, Ont., won her 10th Canadian women's amateur golf championship Saturday by seven strokes.

The 39-year-old veteran shotmaker, playing with steady precision throughout the four-day tournament, fired a final-round three-under-par 72 for a 72-hole score of 295, five under par for the 6,363-yard Niakwa Country Club route.

Second was Carole Semple of Sewickley, Pa., who finished the final 18 holes with a one-over-par 76 for a total score of 302. Three strokes behind her was Lacey Smith of Williamsville, N.Y., followed by Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver at 307 and Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C., and Pam Miller of Oshawa, Ont., tied at 308.

Despite her victory, the first since the medal-play format was introduced in 1970, Mrs. Streit said all amateur golf should be match-play, in which each competitor play one another hole-by-hole.

"Medal play is a business. Playing 72 holes in four days is just too long for the girls who don't play all the time, and most of the girls don't. I was tired out there today, the tournament is one day too long."

Roxburgh Right On

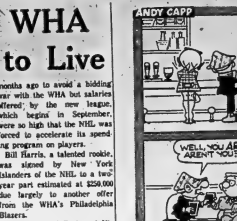
CALGARY (CP) — Doug Roxburgh has produced solid evidence that he is one of the best golfers in Canada.

The 20-year-old Vancouver student won the Canadian amateur golf championship by four strokes Sunday and was a member of the British Columbia team that captained the Hillingdon Cup a few days before.

On his way to the amateur title, Roxburgh set a course record at Earl Grey Golf Club and finished the 72 holes with an eight-under-par 276.

He played the final round with Dick Siderowf of Kaslon, Conn., the man who beat him in a playoff for the title last year, and the deposed champion had nothing but praise for Roxburgh.

"He never seen a guy hit a ball like Doug Roxburgh did today. . . . He has a classic golf swing.



"He just never missed a shot that was important. . . ."

Siderowf, who was tied with Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., three strokes back of the leader going into the final round, finished third at 281. Barr was second at 280.

Miss Evert Came Back

CHRIS EVERT

BEATS ITALIAN'S MARK

MOSCOW (AP) — Lyudmila Bragina of Krasnodar set a world record of 8:33.0 in the 3,000-metre event Saturday at a Soviet track and field meet in Moscow, Tass announced. The Soviet News Agency said the 29-year-old Miss Bragina lettered by 18.2 seconds the previous world mark established by Paola Pigni of Italy.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Teen-ager Chris Evert overcame a 5-0 deficit in the first set Sunday, winning 12 of the next five games and beat Evonne Goolagong of Australia 7-6, 6-1 for the women's singles title in the $60,000 United States clay court tennis tournament.

The top-seeded Miss Goolagong, 21, appeared unstoppable at the start of the first set, easily winning the first five games.

Miss Evert, 17, the No. 2 seed from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., broke service on the sixth game and won five more in a row before Miss Goolagong could win the 12th game and send the set into a best-of-nine-point tie-breaker. Miss Evert took the first four points, dropped the next two, then won the fifth point and took the set 7-6.

Miss Evert, still an amateur, could not accept the $5,000 first-place prize. The money will be retained for future tournaments. Miss Goolagong collected the $2,500 runner-up prize.

Big Names Pass Us Up

TORONTO (CP) — There are some big names missing but players competing in the Canadian Open tennis championship which started today brought impressive credentials to the courts.

Volatile Ilie Nastase of Romania and Evonne Goolagong of Australia, who won the women's singles at Wimbledon last year, are the top seeds. Both were finalists at Wimbledon this year.

But among the missing are defending champion John Newcombe of Australia, who also won at Wimbledon last year, and Francoise Durr of France who beat Miss Goolagong in the 1971 Canadian Open final.

Newcombe couldn't compete because of a tournament conflict with Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis troupe.

Teen-age sensation Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., also passed up the Open to prepare for the U.S. championships at Forest Hills.

Knuckleballer Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox is shown in action against the California Angels Wednesday night in Anaheim, Calif., as he became the season's winningest pitcher. Tigers Temporarily Stop Skid

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Billy Martin, hoping to wake his slumping team, went with a pot-luck batting order Sunday dictated by a hat drawing.

The names came out spelling success for Detroit Tigers as they opened a four-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over Cleveland Indians in the first game of an American League doubleheader.

"It served the purpose. It was supposed to relax the guys—and it worked," said the Detroit manager, who went back to his regular batting order in the second game and lost 9-3.

Ed Brinkman, a .205 batter at game time who usually hits in the eighth spot, opened in the cleanup position and came up with a crucial hit as the Tigers scored twice in the sixth inning to win the opener.

Second baseman Tony Taylor and left fielder Willie Horton were two other batters who helped while hitting somewhere other than their normal positions.

Taylor, usually a leadoff batter, hit a single, batted fifth and singled home Brinkman with the winning run. Horton, who has been batting sixth this year, was No. 3 and came through with a homer, triple and single that started the winning rally.

The split dropped the Tigers into third place in the American League East Division race. They are one percentage point behind New York Yankees who moved into second after sweeping a doubleheader from Milwaukee Brewers 5-3 and 3-4.

Baltimore Orioles held first place in the East by 1½ games by crushing Boston Rex Sox 8-2.

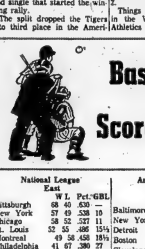
In other pre-season results Pittsburgh Steelers routed the New York Jets 22-3, Philadelphia Eagles downed New England Patriots 20-20; Cincinnati Bengals whipped Detroit Lions 28-20; Minnesota Vikings took San Diego Chargers 24-13; Green Bay Packers shaded Miami Dolphins 14-13; and Buffalo Bills defeated New Orleans Saints 24-21 and Kansas City Chiefs initiated their new 79,000 seat stadium with a 24-14 win over St. Louis Cardinals.



In a Pacific Coast League doubleheader, Ray Penas Graig Nettles drove in four runs apiece as the Indians took the second game.

In New York, the Yankees took the first game with the help of Sparky Lyle's fancy relief work and the second on home run power.

Lyle, who has appeared in seven games during the last eight days to help New York rise to second place, said he thought he deserved a rest.

"I won't pick up a ball until Tuesday," said Lyle.

After Lyle picked up his 28th save in the opener, the Yankees wiped out a 3-2 Milwaukee lead in the second game on a two-run pinch-hit homer by Ron Blomberg.

Pirates Like Carlton

Steve Carlton was once again all but untouchable—and it's getting to look same for Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carlton, Philadelphia's veteran left-hander who has been baffling the rest of the National League for the last 5½ months, did it again Sunday, stopping Montreal on just three hits for his 19th victory of the baseball season and 11th in a row as the Phillies won the opener of their doubleheader 2-1. The Expos rebounded to take the second game 8-3.

The Pirates, meanwhile, clenched by St. Louis' Rick Wise 3-0 in their opener, got back in the groove in the nightcap by beating the Cardinals 7-5 to widen their East Division lead to 16 games.

"I didn't have good stuff and I couldn't get the slider over," Carlton said after raising his record to 19-4, best in the league, and fanned eight Expos to raise his strikeout total to 246, best in the majors. "I was lucky to get away with it.

"I'm not thinking about records or strikeouts," he added when reminded that he's but five victories short of Rube Marquard's 19 straight triumphs set in 1912 with the old New York Giants.

"I want the win," Carlton said. "Those other things take care of themselves."

The Phils took care of him coming on Willie Montanez's double and Greg Luzinski's single. Carlton lost his no-hit and shutout bid in the fourth on Bob Bailey's home run.

Montreal pushed across four runs in the fourth inning and three more in the ninth to gain the split, saddling Billy Champion with his 10th straight defeat. Balor Moore and reliever Mike Marshall teamed for a four-hitter for the Expos.

Weiss Was Yankee Builder

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — George Weiss, the man who helped bind the scenes for New York Yankees during many of their championship years, died early Sunday in a Greenwich nursing home.

Weiss, who also was the first president of New York Mets and a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, had been in ill health for some time.

Weiss played a major role in bringing to the Yankees such players as Joe DiMaggio, Lefty Gomez, Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle, Tommy Henrich, Charley Keller and Whitey Ford. He also hired Casey Stengel to manage the Yankees in 1949.

Staubach Scrambled Too Often

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Star quarterback Roger Staubach will be out of action for a period of two to three months, a blow that could cost Dallas Cowboys a second straight Super Bowl championship in pro football.

Staubach suffered a separation in his right shoulder in the second quarter of the Cowboys' 27-13 National Football League exhibition victory over the Los Angeles Rams Saturday night and underwent surgery in Dallas Sunday.

Staubach, the most valuable player in the NFL last year, was injured when tackled by linebacker Marlin McKeever of the Rams as the quarterback scrambled for a nine-yard gain to the Ram three in the second quarter.

The former Navy Heisman Trophy winner had a reputation of scrambling with the football and had gained 34 yards in four carries against the Rams before the injury.

In other pre-season results Pittsburgh Steelers routed the New York Jets 22-3, Philadelphia Eagles downed New England Patriots 20-20; Cincinnati Bengals whipped Detroit Lions 28-20; Minnesota Vikings took San Diego Chargers 24-13; Green Bay Packers shaded Miami Dolphins 14-13; and Buffalo Bills defeated New Orleans Saints 24-21 and Kansas City Chiefs initiated their new 79,000 seat stadium with a 24-14 win over St. Louis Cardinals.

In New York, the Yankees took the first game with the help of Sparky Lyle's fancy relief work and the second on home run power.

Lyle, who has appeared in seven games during the last eight days to help New York rise to second place, said he thought he deserved a rest.

"I won't pick up a ball until Tuesday," said Lyle.

After Lyle picked up his 28th save in the opener, the Yankees wiped out a 3-2 Milwaukee lead in the second game on a two-run pinch-hit homer by Ron Blomberg.

A's Re-hire Williams

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley, owner of Oakland Athletics of the American League Saturday night said he has rehired manager Dick Williams for another two years on a "substantial increase in salary." Williams now is in the second year of a two year contract. Williams, 43, was named Manager-of-the-Year in the American League last year, an honor he had won in 1967 when he led Boston Red Sox to the league pennant.

The Chiefs were led by Larry Marshall, who returned a punt 75 yards for a touchdown and Jim Marsalis who intercepted a pass and ran 28 yards for a TD. Both scores came within a 26-second span of the second quarter.

Clint Jones took the opening kickoff and raced 99 yards for a touchdown to get the Vikings off on the right foot against the Cardinals. Fran Tarkenton passed for two other scores on his return to the Vikings after four years with New York Giants.

The Steelers kept Joe Namath bottled up in their locker over the Jets. The star quarterback completed only three of 15 passes and had one intercepted. Roy Gerela booted five field goals to pace the Pittsburgh scoring.

Scott Hunter tossed touchdown passes of 79 and 10 yards to Dave Davis to lead the Packers over the Dolphins. Miami missed a chance for a tie when the packers smothered Garo Yepremian's extra-point attempt after Hubert Ginn's TD in the last two minutes.

Rookie quarterback John Reaves directed three second-period touchdown drives in leading the Eagles over the Patriots. A 58-yard punt return by Tommy Casanova set up the winning touchdown for the Bengals over the Lions.

NFL Could 'Kill' CFL

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, said Saturday he is not aware of any plans that the National Football League may have for expansion in Canada.

He was commenting on a Washington report in which Edward Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said NFL players feared that the NFL would award franchises in Canada.

Gaudaur said he has been in touch with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle and has had no indication of such a plan.

"There's no doubt that NFL expansion would kill the Canadian league," said Gaudaur. "But I think there are some pretty good reasons for it not happening.

"If the league was killed I'm sure there would be some serious anti-trust ramifications. The CFL is the only alternative for the college boy who wants to play professional football."

Mr. Gaudaur said there was no doubt the NFL could find suitable areas—Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

"Any one of those could start a chain reaction which would trigger the demise of the league," he said.

Speedy Crown Sets Records

TORONTO (CP) — New York-owned Speedy Crown captured the $60,600 Maple Leaf Trotting Classic at Greenwood Raceway Saturday in a race that sent records tumbling right and left.

Howard Beissinger drove the four-year-old stallion to a victory by a head over Flower Child while the French ace, The de Mai, finished third. Fresh Yankee, the "million-dollar" trotter owned by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., ran out of steam after leading most of the way.

Speedy Crown set a track record of 2:00 3-5 and the attendance of 18,389 was a record for the track. The day's handle of $956,000 was a Greenwood record, and so was the wagering of $137,685 on the Maple Leaf.

Speedy Crown paid $4.80, $2.80 and $2.10 Flower Child, $3.50 and $2.10, and Une de Mai, $2.10.

"I can't find my racquet, but I probably still can beat you using this old snowshoe!"

Ethier Rare: Likeable Ump

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

It is the unfortunate, yet nearly inevitable fate of sport officials to be universally unpopular.

For merely doing their job on the playing field — upholding the rules of the game to the best of their human ability — athletic arbiters are often the loneliest people in sport.

'SHUD' ETHIER

South American soccer officials have been shot for unpopular offside calls, and hockey referees had ash limbs cracked over their skulls for disallowing goals.

At no level — professional or amateur, major league or sandlot — is the referee, umpire, linesman, or backfield judge exempt from the wrath of the almighty holder of a paid admission.

Frustrations of a losing team and the bias of partisan spectators — usually end up as bitter catcalls aimed at the men in black, striped, or whatever other mortlal color with which their respective sports have seen fit to brand them.

"Unpopular" is not really the word for sport officials; they're basically ignored by winners and sometimes detested by losers. The emotions they can arouse by their decisions run a lengthy gantlet.

Gerald A. Ethier, who will be buried Wednesday, may have irked a few fans in his 20 years of city softball umpiring, but no-one could ever accuse the affable, deep-thonted "Shud" of being ignored or unpopular.

The grooving "Strike" and "Batter's Ownwwt" that became his trademark were developed after some 20 years playing the third-base spot in local softball circles before another 20 years' officiating.

"He was the best," recalls long-time teammate and officiating associate Harold Bowden, noting Shud's participation on the 1936 all-Ontario intermediate champion Percivals as one of the highlights of a playing career began in 1930 and continued for two decades.

I have seen a player laugh in spite of himself when, after questioning an Ethier behind the plate call, time was called and Shud proceeded to give the embarrassed plain stiff some batting instruction.

And I have seen that same gruff exterior melt into teary when presenting a hockey trophy in the name of his son Gerald "Bucky" Jr., whose promising athletic achievements were cut short at the age of 24, six years ago.

Another accomplished athletic son, Bob, paid a fitting last tribute to his father with a 15-strikeout 3-0 OASA shutout over Peterborough Saturday.

Less than 24 hours later his father was dead, leaving Bob the sole holder of the "Shud" legacy.

Scout Scours

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

He may not be anybody's big brother but Jim Frail is making like an Orwellian plot by keeping his eye on hundreds of Ontario ball players.

Frail is chief Ontario scout for the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and Sunday was in Belleville for an instructional and evaluation clinic. He has been criss-crossing the province all summer, keeping tabs on previous players who have attended his camps and always on the lookout for a good prospect.

"The main objectives of our camps are to contract players for the Pirates, give instruction and evaluation, keep in contact with players who will be eligible in the future, offer scholarships and to promote baseball in general," stated Frail at the Park Dale workout Sunday.

Only a teenager 17 hopefuls turned out to the camp but they were in the age bracket that Frail is most eager to see. "We should be able to see any natural raw talent when they are around 15. If they have it then we can always work and develop other skills by the time they're eligible to sign a contract at 18."

Frail had the Belleville clinic participants, who also included Oshawa and Port Hope boys, running, throwing, fielding and hitting in his quest for that raw talent.

"We're looking for pretty basic things at these camps, finesse can come later. In the outfield we want a good, strong, accurate arm. Danny Murtagh has said that if they can't throw Maury Wills out at home from 250 feet they don't have a major league arm. And infielder needs good range, left and right, and a quick release of the ball. Hitters should have a fast bat or that quick flick of the wrists when they swing. Finally we look for that natural hard fastball in a pitcher, plus ability to throw the curves with the same motion."

It's a lot to keep track of but Frail has evaluation sheets for all participants and is continuously grading each player on a 1 to 30 scale. "Usually a boy can do one thing well but needs work on the others."

It appears that Canadians have been working on these other skills for Frail has noticed a distinct improvement over the past couple of years. "I've probably seen some of the best players this year that I have ever seen in Ontario.

Fish Fry Coming Up

Three fishermen trolling brought in a total of 75 pounds of maskinonge. David Lucas of Belleville holds the granddaddy of lot, a 25-pound fish he caught with a home made plug on 40-test line. Second largest fish weighed in at about 22 pounds. Other members of the party were Dave Morrows and Arnold Stoner.

Something's Fishy

Something's fishy about Charles Miller's trips above the border into Canada. The Rochester native landed a 41-pound muskie from the Bay of Quinte near Glen Island Saturday to more than match his last week's catch of a 22-pounder. Daphne Hunter of Guelph lent a hand to bring in the 56-inch muskie.

Frail Fielding

Pittsburgh Pirates' chief Ontario scout Jim Frail gives some fielding hints to an Oshawa hopeful who was on hand for Sunday's instructional and evaluation Clinic at Park Dalem The Pirate scout was optimistic about the improvement of the calibre of play in Canada and planned on keeping an eye on three or four of the players who survived the day-long Belleville workout.

City Softballers Pump Peterborough

Belleville's OASA entries found themselves in an assortment of positions after weekend play with one team wrapping up their first series, two others on the verge of winning, one forced into a deciding game and one with their backs to the wall.

Peterborough supplied the opposition for three of Belleville's teams and also supplied them with three wins.

The SACO yeewees eliminated their opponents in two straight games with a 13-12 victory in Belleville Saturday while the Shell Combine Bantams captured their first win of OASA action with a 14-2 decision and Howard and Robert took a one-game lead in their Intermediate AA series on the strength of a 3-0 victory.

The Ellis Juniors dropped a 9-1 contest to Cobourg Saturday forcing a third and deciding game this week in Belleville and Quinte Hotel fell 10-4 to Kemptville in their opening game of the Intermediates A playoffs.

Bob Ehlker paced Howard and Robert to their 3-0 win over Peterborough's Guy's Sports Unlimited (with 15 strikeouts in the nine-inning contest.

Belleville picked up runs in the fifth and ninth innings to grab the opening game win. John Campbell, Ken Gerow, eaux and Dwight Rathwell each had two hits for the local crew. Second game of the series will be Saturday night at the Alexdale in an 8 p.m. contest.

The SACO peewees outslugged Peterborough to sweep their series. Kevin Ward smashed a homer, triple, double and single to lead the winners at the plate. John Blanchard had two doubles and Brad Rose four singles in support of winning pitcher Danny Vance.

Belleville now goes against Oshawa in the second round of the playdowns. First game of that series will be in Belleville Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Shell Combine bantams stormed Peterborough to take the initial meeting in their best-of-three series 16-2. Mark Lowery had a triple and single, Ross Lawrenson three singles, Pat Scatter two triples, Bill Forbes a triple and double and Eric Powell two doubles to lead Belleville to their convincing win. Robert Chase fired two ball over seven innings to record the win. He fanned seven and walked three. Paul Wilson went the final three frames.

Second game in the series will be Saturday at the Alexdale in a 4 p.m. contest.

The Ellis Juniors ran into a different story this time around with the Cobourg Dairy Queen Juniors dropping a 9-1 decision. The local nine were 16-3 winners the first game but could only manage four hits Saturday as Cobourg evened the series at one game apiece.

Terry Meagher had a double and single to pace the Ellis Printers while Glenn Carleton and Ron Hill added singles. Bill took the loss on the Belleville mound. The third and deciding game will be played in Belleville Thursday at 8:15.

Quinte Hotel had too much to handle in the Kemptville intermediates who trounced the locals 10-4. Scot Reid started for Quinte before giving way to Eldon Grey and Rod Bennett. Hugo Brennan homered in a losing cause.

Willard Follows Starr to Win

Earl Willard scored a first at the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway Saturday night harness races, in fact it was first anywhere for the rookie driver.

The Stella, Ontario native picked up his first win in the sulky Saturday night when he paced Preston Star to a 2:14 victory in the first race.

"Boy it feels good to get that first one," beamed an elated Willard after his first and Preston's second win on the dirt track ovals. "I know one thing: it's sure not as dirty out there when you're up front."

Willard, who just earned his driving licence last year, has been racing at Frontenac Downs in Kingston but could not crack the winner's circle until his first appearance in Belleville. "We've been trying to get in here for quite awhile but we just couldn't find room until now. I'm glad we finally got here though and not just because of the obvious reasons. They're real horsemen here and a great bunch of people."

Willard is no stranger to the harness world, acting as a trainer for many years. "I've been working with horses all my life but with Preston I just changed it. I trained him and got to know how he runs so why should I give someone else the glory."

He had to share the glory with no-one Saturday with an easy victory over the rest of the field as Preston set a new personal record.

Fastest time of the night went to Lorre Gratton who paced to victory in RACE 4 in 2:06.3.

Pay-offs were higher than normal Saturday with Petron Maynard and Belfton returning $101.10 for the daily double, Tiger Jim and Pontiac Quills $51.60 for the fourth-race quinella, and Tamalac and Northwood Grant $262.10 in the ninth-race exacta.

Ernie Brown returned to the Belleville line-up after a month's absence and quickly resumed his goal - scoring knack with a pair of tallies. Tony Gonsalves, John O'Neill and new - comer Andy Pipe added single goals.

Koch Saves Tennis Blackout

Belleville's Quinte Skating and Tennis Club have had uncanny bad luck in their annual home - and - home tennis series with Kingston for the Doug Grant Trophy, but yesterday it turned into phenomenal bad luck.

The Belleville club has managed only three wins in the 12 years the competition has been waged and there is no sign of a change from this year after they earned only one win in 18 matches played at the Kingston club Sunday.

John Koch was the only Belleville player to break the losing jinx by winning one of 12 single matches scheduled.

The local players have a chance to make some personality this Sunday when the second half of the event turns to the Belleville courts. Action gets underway at 10 a.m.

Theatre Guild Selects 1972-73 Season Plays

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Theatre Guild, in their choice of plays for the coming season, have proven they are not afraid to try anything.

The program, announced yesterday, is not studded with old standards, but rather, is made up of difficult, and publicized and widely diverse works.

A play by Arthur Price, of Death of a Salesman fame, will herald the 1972 season. The Price will open Wednesday, Oct. 18, running until Saturday, Oct. 21. It will also continue during the week of Oct. 23-28.

The second production of the season, beginning Wednesday, Dec. 6, will be an evening of three one-act plays.

These are The Tiger by Murray Schisgal (who also wrote a past local theatre production Love), Mill Hill by John Mortimer and the Resounding Tinkle, the tale of selling a pair elephants.

The evening is titled Comedy Bizarre.

Mother Courage and Her Children, by Bertold Brecht will begin Wednesday, Feb. 21.

The closing play of the season will be Treasure of the August Moon by John Patrick.

A spokesman for the guild said, "this group of plays has been selected for its scope, variety of style and range of audience appeal."

Auditions for The Price will be held in the theatre, Monday, August 21. Workshop auditions for the next three productions will be held Wednesday, Sept. 13 in the theatre at 7:30 p.m.

Guild Subscriptions Available Soon

Subscriptions for the Belleville Theatre Guild's coming season will be available at the Guild's Monday, Sept. 11, open house.

Subscriptions will be sold for $7.50 for adults and $3.50 for students.

With a subscription, theatre patrons can attend all the productions with seats pre-arranged one week in advance of the opening. Also, they will be able to attend any workshops sponsored by the Guild.

Further information on subscriptions is available from the playhouse at 967-1412.

Local Playhouse Needs People

People are needed by the Belleville Theatre Guild to handle production, set design, stage and business management, for the coming season, a spokesman announced today.

This is a first for the guild which until now has left most of these responsibilities for the artistic director.

Anyone interested in working in any of these capacities is invited to contact Guild president, Ted Bainton at the Playhouse or by calling 967-1412.

CJBQ's Ted Snider

Ted Snider Will Be Joint MC At CNE's Scottish Festival

TRENTON (Staff)—A local media representative with a wide musical background, Ted Snider, CJBQ radio's Trenton manager, has been selected as one of two announcers for the Scottish World Festival at this year's Canadian National Exhibition.

Opening this Thursday and running until Saturday, the festival will draw pipers and dancers from Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia, United States and many parts of Canada.

Chiefs of the great clans, including the Duke of Argyll (of the Campbells), Lord MacDonald and Gen. Sir Gordon MacMillan, will be flying over from their highland houses for the four day gathering of the clans.

Ted Snider will be alternating commentary with another master of ceremonies throughout the festival. Snider, a reputed musician, is currently bandleader of the Trenton Citizens' Band.

Educational Television Available

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government's educational television channel will make its programming available free to cable companies throughout the province, the Ontario Educational Communications Authority announced Wednesday.

The authority, which operates CICA-TV here, Canada's first all-time educational television station, will offer 10 hours of educational programming a day to the cable companies starting in October.

The service will involve video taping of most of the CICA programming in Toronto and shipping the tapes to cable companies for feeds through their local systems.

OECA director Peter Bowers said in an interview the Toronto agency has budgeted $100,000 for the program in its first year of operation. He anticipated 15 to 30 cable operators would take advantage of the offer.

The plan evolved from an experiment last year, which provided the educational programming to cable subscribers in northwestern Ontario.

Residents of Thunder Bay, Atikokan, Dryden and Parry Sound were able to view some programs CICA broadcast to a 50-mile radius around Toronto. This service will soon be extended to Sault Ste. Marie and Kenora.

OECA Chairman T. Ronald Ide said the supplying of tapes represents a major expansion of educational broadcasting but is not the perfect answer.

"There are still thousands of Ontario residents who do not enjoy the benefits of such television but this new cable service will allow us to reach many more people at a time when financial restrictions prohibit us from using other methods to reach the public."

Mr. Ide said OECA's long term plan is to establish a network of transmitters across the province so those in isolated communities not serviced by cable television would get the programming.

The new service will be offered to all cable companies inside the channel's broadcast radius on a first - come, first-served basis.

Family Wants Clean World

EDMONTON (CP) — Jack Wighton and his family are committed to a cleaner, more efficient world.

Mr. Wighton, an administrator at the University of Alberta genetics department, is an ardent and enthusiastic who believes in practising what he preaches. His wife and 10-year-old daughter are just as devoted to the cause.

"You really can't blame the government or the population alone when you can criticize it for offering the wrong incentives—the whole lot rather than refuse to, or to adopt. They should encourage people to stay single rather than marry.

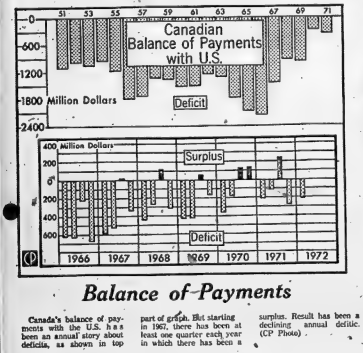
"We have one daughter and both my wife and I were only children, not because of genetics, but through choice.

"As for air pollution, 60 per cent of the health problem, as far as Edmonton is concerned, is the result of the car."

He owns a small fuel-injected sedan but uses it rarely, preferring to bicycle to work seven months of the year and use the bus the rest of the time.

However, Canadian home doesn't escape criticism.

"Houses here are not designed for the energy crisis. They're designed to last the length of the mortgage. The heap.



"The psychological stress of trying not to contribute to environmental problems is very great," he says. "It's much easier to be a happy polluter."

Tweed

TWEED — Mrs. Carmel Hinch, of Toronto, is visiting with her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Murphy of Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Bowers, of Sommerside, Prince Edward Island, visited the past week with his mother, Mrs. Charles Bowers, Tweed, and with his two sisters and their immediate families, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gunning, RR 1, Tweed, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fisher, Tweed. Mrs. Bowers visited with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John Parker, of Trenton. The Bowers left Monday morning on their journey eastward to their home in P.E.I.

Greetings are extended to Mr. Gilbert Thompson, of RR 2, Tudor, who celebrated his 93th birthday on Sunday, August 6. A family picnic was enjoyed at his home.

Balance of Payments

Canada's balance of payments with the U.S. has been an annual story about deficits, as shown in top part of graph. But starting in 1967, there has been at least one quarter each year in which there has been a surplus. Result has been a declining annual deficit. (CP Photo).

'Spy' at Large In Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's super-secret Defence Intelligence Agency has been penetrated by an agent who roamed through guarded offices, stole secret documents, planted electronic listening devices and even assisted the agency's major computers.

Concrete Cracking?

Pennant - winning Plane's Concrete are beginning to crack under the play-off pressure in the South Hastings Baseball League, dropping their second game in a row to Read Sunday.

The 9-2 loss gave the third-place Rubbers from Read a two games to none lead with one tie. Next game in the best-of-seven series will be Tuesday night in Read.

Frank Farrell picked up the win for Read, allowing four hits and fanning eight. Gerry Brennan and Bert Sherry had two hits apiece and Carm Miller began a double to the winners' eight-hit attack. Steve White, Pat Hanley and Pat O'Connor had singles.

Bernie Coughlan struck out 13 in taking the loss for Planes. Bob Robb had a double for the only extra base hit off Farrell. Jim Calden, Ken Abrams and Coughlan had safeties in defeat.

Farmers Trim Barber Crew

Belleville's Morton Barber Shop had their moment of glory when they met the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League Pennant. But the Junior Canada made sure it was their only such moment.

The third - place Farmers pooped the Barber Shop 9-4 Sunday to take the best - of - five semi-final series 3-1.

Clarke Alexander hurled the win, allowing 10 hits and fanning John Jones. He got four hits for the winners with Pete Pettingill and Dennis Gale adding two apiece.

Rick Goulah took the loss for the second time between Belleville. He allowed all nine runs on 12 hits, before giving way to Bruce Sutherland in the final frame. Sutherland's three-run homer over the fence in the seventh frame was the losers' only offensive thrust.

The Farmers now meet Consecon in the best - of - seven finals beginning Tuesday at Ameliasburg. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, AUG. 15

Aries (March 21-April 19): There is no magic answer for today's questions; only solutions to be worked out through discussion and thrifty habits.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It changes must be made, let somebody else take responsibility. Don't let differences of opinion bother you permanently.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Knowing where to stop brings success in competition. Remember that many around you lack your depth of experience and skill.

White's District

Misses Cynthia, Wendy and Kathy Jones, of Toronto, visited recently with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson spent the holiday weekend visiting in the Carleton Place area.

Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Bowers and family of Huntsville, spent the holiday weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowers.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Being sensible about spending runs counter to your social impulses. Find the time to improve your public image. Do routine chores.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Get a technical opinion. Keep in contact with friends, at distant points, but deal with medical questions promptly now is a good time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Many secrets come to public knowledge, including some of your own. Emotions mirror deep feelings, perhaps unexpectedly.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 21): Gathering of material resources proceeds well enough—the issue today is scattering, spending. Entertainment turns out to be costly.

Scorpio (Oct. 22-Nov. 21): Bring nothing to a final stage today until you are sure you know the whole story. Keep plans secret for now.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Issues requiring contracts, documents are not favored for settlement. Today's potentials include a fresh start for romantic adventure.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Find others to create some bundena, and stay long enough to make sure all goes well. Travel takes time and energy.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Criticism is of great value, a chance to learn what you are about. Help others by helping them make their own pathway.

To Your Good Health

Blood Pressure And Alcohol Use

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is alcohol harmful when a person has high blood pressure, high cholesterol and hardening of the arteries?

My husband, who goes to the doctor regularly, faces his blood pressure stays the same whether he drinks or not. Of course he takes medicine to keep his pressure down, and also controls his weight pretty well.—Mrs. J.O.

Well, alcohol is a sedative, and in moderate amounts it tends to calm a person. But, as you have found, it has no particular effect on blood pressure.

For heavy drinkers who have a weight problem, the story is different. The alcohol contributes to the weight problem, and the extra pounds decidedly can have a harmful effect. The emotional consequences of heavy alcohol drinking have an effect, depending. Hangovers, feelings of guilt, a struggle to catch up on duties that were shirked in favor of alcohol, can bother some individuals to the point of creating nervous tension that can send blood pressure up.

Not that I've stressed "moderation." Most people, I think, will consider this factor reasonably. There will be others who will write to me taking me to task for not condemning alcohol totally. I'll read their letters but won't agree with them. And there will be others, at the opposite extreme, who won't write but will drink excessively and then argue that "Dr. Thosteson said it was all right." I won't agree with them either.

I would judge, Mrs. O., that your husband probably is a moderate drinker—at any rate, he has watched his pressure both with and without alcohol, and he keeps his weight under control.

But alcohol must always be treated with respect. You never is watch out for the prevalent risk of getting into the habit of having two instead of one, and then three instead of two.

Further, alcohol if not limited to moderate amounts has been shown to have an unfavorable effect on the heart in some individuals by altering the force of the heartbeat and causing extra beats or irregularity in rhythm.

Since the sedative effect of alcohol also reinforces the tranquilizing effect of many medications used for high blood pressure, I think your husband would be wise to discuss this aspect with his doctor, along with a frank statement of how much he drinks.

It may be that the doctor will see no reason to change but if there is reason to limit drinking, he'll say so.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 20 and have had a case of herpes simplex or "cold sores" since I was 12. I think your book have ries of smallpox vaccinations can help reduce the unsightly sores. Is this true? Several doctors have said these vaccinations don't help. What do you have to say on the subject?—T.W.

Only that the results are unpredictable. Some patients have had a series of such vaccinations and had years of relief from the sores. Others haven't seen any improvement. Provided, probably, that there are differences in the causes of this condition.

When other methods have not helped, I think the smallpox vaccine is worth a try, but I can't guarantee that it will work in any given case.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way to make your nose smaller without surgery. Anything you could do at home?—N.B.

Sorry, no, you have fixed bone and cartilage that give it shape. This can be altered by surgery.

McGovern Says Nixon Launches Smear Drive

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator George McGovern has accused President Nixon of launching a smear campaign against former attorney-general Ramsey Clark and McGovern's vice-presidential running mate, Sargent Shriver.

The Democratic presidential candidate charged Nixon with reviving his "favorite technique of questioning the loyalty and Americanism of those who disagree with him."

Replying to criticism from the Nixon administration of Clark's anti-war remarks on Hanoi radio and Shriver's accusation that Nixon "blew" a chance to end the war, McGovern said on a television interview program:

"I am accusing the president of taking the low road by remote control by implying that there is something treasonous, something un-American about a person reacting with indignation against the slaughter and the killing and destruction now going on in Vietnam."

McGover said Nixon had practised using the political smear throughout his political life.

In backing Shriver's position on North Vietnamese peace initiatives, McGovern said: "A national security memorandum prepared at the beginning of this administration and published in the congressional record some time ago, shows very clearly that the administration was aware that North Vietnam had withdrawn a substantial number of its divisions in the fall of 1969.

"They were in fact giving us a signal that they were willing to ease off militarily and they were expecting us to respond then with generous offers of negotiations.

"Instead of that, the bombing was accelerated, the military attack was increased and we blew an opportunity for a negotiated settlement several years ago."

Britain Seeks Aid for Asians

LONDON (CP) — Britain is intensifying its search for some form of international arrangement to deal with the threatened expulsion from Uganda of more than 50,000 Asians in the wake of an unsuccessful bid for a bilateral settlement.

Geoffrey Rippon, minister in the British cabinet, is expected to return to London Tuesday after a three-day visit to East Africa Uganda President Idi Amin and the leaders of Kenya and Tanzania so far have declined to meet Rippon because of prior commitments. Many observers consider this a direct diplomatic snub.

Foreign office spokesmen denied today published reports that the Conservative government has decided to take the whole expulsion question to the United Nations. But they say it is one of the possibilities for international action now being considered.

Meanwhile, several leading British newspapers today repeat their demands for greater pressure on Canada and Australia to help absorb the Asians who face deportation in 90 days.

British officials already have begun laying tentative plans for using holiday camps and army barracks to help cope with the influx of Asians if no settlement can be reached with Amin.

Rippon told reporters in Uganda he had left a personal letter for Amin in which he stressed the importance of holding talks in the near future.

"Given that a government has a policy which it is determined to pursue, it has to be pursued in a humane and orderly manner," wrote Rippon, who handled the monumental task last year of negotiating terms for Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

He also drew attention to reports that some Asians have had their personal papers torn up by Ugandi officials when they applied for entry vouchers to Britain.

He reiterated Britain's responsibility for the Asians, most of whom hold British passports, but he said Uganda must make arrangements for them to sell their property and transfer assets.

Speculation is mounting in Uganda that the $7,250 in sterling which departing residents can take with them will be cut.

The newspaper, The Scotsman, says that "against Uganda itself nothing much can be done but the Commonwealth governments could make it clear that any aid for or co-operation with Amin would depend on his compensating properly those he had expelled."

Strong Defence Plank Is Expected of GOP

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Support for a strong national defence plank rejecting Democratic proposals to slash the Pentagon budget and pull two divisions out of Europe is expected to emerge as Republican platform hearings begin today.

State Secretary William Rogers is the platform committee's main witness.

Representative John Rhodes of Arizona, platform chairman, told reporters Sunday the budget-cutting plank of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is "an isolationist document" that would leave Israel in peril and endanger American interests in other troubled areas.

"It is no isolationist that, if it ever came to pass, we had better withdraw our forces from Europe entirely because we could never maintain our responsibilities," Rhodes said.

Rhodes said the $30 million cut in defence spending proposed by McGovern would reduce the United States to a second-class power.

The Republican national convention opens next Monday and the completed platform will be presented to the convention the following day.

Sharp Making Visit to China

PEKING (Reuter) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp arrives in China Tuesday for a 10-day visit during which he will hold talks with Chinese leaders and open a massive Canadian trade exhibition in Peking.

The minister, who will be accompanied by an official party of about 15 and 34 journalists, will arrive in the southern city of Canton by train from Hong Kong. He will spend a day sightseeing there before flying to the capital Wednesday night.

Sharp is due to spend five full days in Peking and will stay in a recently-converted government guest house in the city's old legation quarter which was the United States embassy in pre-Communist China. As well as opening the trade exhibition Aug. 21, Sharp is due to hold four rounds of talks with Chinese leaders including Premier Chou En-lai, foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei and Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua.

Canadian sources here said the discussions are expected to include Indochina particularly in view of Canada's membership of the International Control Commission, the reunification of Korea and other international subjects such as environment, arms control, nuclear testing and UN matters.

Sharp is expected to press for more people-to-people exchanges between the two countries, notably in education and sports.

It is thought unlikely that he will discuss trade matters as an official Chinese trade mission led by External Trade Minister Pai Hsiang-kuo will be visiting Canada at the same time Sharp is here.

Seek Way to Oust Thieu

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Recent developments at the Paris meetings between U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiators have left United States officials seeking a means by which Hanoi could be arrested of the resignation of South Vietnamese President Nguyen van Thieu, Time magazine reports.

The magazine says in this week's issue that at the meetings between Kissinger and Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, Hanoi had embarked upon "a sort of flirtation," according to an unnamed U.S. official.

Time says this apparently meant the North was indicating interest in President Nixon's proposals for "a ceasefire and a compromise settlement."

Chief Would Aid Finders

TORONTO (CP) — The chief of police in the borough of York has offered to help two young Toronto men arrange a bond so they can recover $7,200 they found three months ago.

Chief Bruce Crawford also offered to pay the cost of the bond, about $115, if the two men cannot afford it.

Paul Dickinson, 24, and Clare Robinson, 19, found the money in the back of their truck when they were taking garbage to a dump April 25. They turned the money in to police and were to collect it 90 days later.

The borough's lawyer, however, recommended that they be required to post a bond for a year so that the police force would be covered if a claim is made later and a civil action results.

The young men had trouble raising money to post the bond and Mr. Dickinson said Sunday night they would accept the chief's offer.

"We appreciate his co-operation."

Ballard Is Guilty Of Fraud, Theft

Harry Mulhall

Sentence Date To Be Sept. 7

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, today was found guilty on 47 counts of fraud and theft and not guilty on two counts.

The 122-page written verdict was released by Judge Harry Deyman of Peterborough, who presided over the six-week Ontario Supreme Court trial that ended July 14.

In a brief court appearance Ballard was remanded to Sept. 7 when his lawyer, J. J. Robinette, will call character witnesses.

The 67-year-old sports figure had been charged in connection with amounts totalling $205,000 alleged to have been taken from the Gardens, home of the National Hockey League Maple Leafs and Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

The Crown alleged that Ballard and Stafford Smythe, son of Gardens founder Conn Smythe, put into private bank accounts cheques intended for the Gardens. Smythe, who died last Oct. 13, was a former Gardens president.

The two counts on which Ballard was acquitted involved less than $200.

In one it was alleged that $11.95 charged to Gardens repairs actually was used for repairs to a TV antenna at Ballard's home.

The other involved $184.80 charged for upholstering directors' chairs at the sports arena but which the Crown alleged was used for improvements to the Ballard home.

The verdict culminated four years of investigation and legal action against Ballard by federal tax investigators, special prosecutors of the Ontario attorney-general's department and Metropolitan Toronto police.

During the six-week trial, the court heard testimony that:

1. Invoices and records of a construction company had been changed on orders of the Gardens so work at Ballard's home in suburban Etobicoke could be said for by the Gardens.

2. Small contractors had been ordered by Gardens employees to send bill to the Gardens for miscellaneous work done at the home.

3. Bills for two motorcycles for Ballard's sons were paid for with corporate cheques from the Gardens.

4. A bill to Ballard for limousine service for a daughter's wedding was paid with a Gardens cheque.

These and other alleged frauds totalled $82,000 for goods and services received by Ballard and his family but paid for by the Gardens.

The $123,000 in theft charges included the allegation that Ballard and Smythe in 1961 sold the Marlboros amateur hockey team to the Gardens but deposited in a private bank account cheques intended for the team.

Witnesses testified that about $123,000 was deposited in the account from the NHL for player draft payment and playoff gate money from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Ontario Hockey Association.

Death Toll Is Record

KEONIGS WUSTERHAUSEN (Reuter) — The debris of disaster-fragments of personal luggage and passports mixed up with bits of wood and aluminum — may give a clue today to what caused an East German airliner to explode in flight Monday sending 156 people to their deaths.

East German experts sifted through the wreckage of the Soviet-built Tyushin-62, jet blasted over a wide area near this East German town in the worst civil air disaster involving a single plane.

The only higher death toll—in The Ilyushin-62, a rear-engined long-haul jet belonging to the East German state airline Interflug, crashed minutes after taking off from East Berlin's Schoenefeld Airport.

Seasonal Jobless Rate Up Despite More Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment picked up last month in the service, transportation, communications and public utilities fields, cutting unemployment to an estimated 543,000 from 568,000 in June.

But unemployment remained higher than it was a year ago, when the July figure was 514,000, Statistics Canada reported today.

Reporting a drop in the unemployment rate to 5.8 per cent of the labor force from 6.2 in June, the statistics bureau said there was a marked improvement in employment of students. There were 863,000 of them employed in July this year, compared with 588,000 in June and 813,000 in July last year.

The improvement in the overall employment picture, however, was only marginal. The usual July pick-up in the manufacturing industry failed to develop, and employment in agriculture did not rise as much as it usually does in July.

While marginal, the gain in employment last month was somewhat better than usual, apparently due principally to the increase in student employment.

The total labor force grew by 219,000 to more than 9.3 million, and the number with jobs rose 244,000 to more than 8.8 million.

The unemployment rate—the number of unemployed as a percentage of the total labor force—declined to 5.8 in July from 6.2 in June. It was 5.7 per cent of the labor force in July last year.

However, the underlying total for unemployment was still up. Statistics Canada reported that the seasonally - adjusted unemployment rate, computed mathematically to show the underlying trend, showed a small increase to 6.3 last month, after resting at 6.3 for two months, May and June.

Music to Make Your Eyes Pop

Even the eyes had it for enthusiasm as 12-year-old Lynn McIntyre launched into music practice on his cornet — an enthusiasm shared by many youngsters in the Belleville area recently. They were students at the Salvation Army's music camp on Roblin's Lake, a project that yearly combines fun with serious study. For details, see Page 3.

Bicycling Boom Uses All Plates

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Bellevillians are biking it as never before.

So much so, city hall must order more bicycle plates, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says.

This year's sales were estimated to be 4,000 plates. To be on the safe side, the chief ordered 6,000. Now they're sold out already and another 1,000 are on order, he told the city's traffic committee yesterday.

Sales boom on the $1 plates seem due to the "fantastic" upsurge in bicycling as a popular recreation and exercise, says the chief.

Government to 'Contract-out' Research to Private Industries

TORONTO (CP) — In announcing the federal government's new "contracting-out policy," which means more research and development projects will be turned over to private industry, Science Minister Alastair Gillespie said federal departments and agencies will continue to play an important role.

"The government recognizes that there are important and legitimate reasons for direct government involvement in research," he said.

He also promised in the news release announcing the policy there would be no layoffs or firings of those involved in research and development work.

But the criteria spelled out for departmental projects to dictate there will need to be some changes in approach in several departments.

Mentioned in the news releases as likely to be affected were: energy and mines and resources, environment, communications, national defence and agriculture departments and the National Research Council.

A breakdown of the total costs of research and development by department or agency show the National Research Council spent $50 million of a total $118 million on intradepartmental research and gave only $9 million to industry.

The environment department spent $33 million within the department compared with $1 million paid to industry.

Agriculture spent $68 million with none of the funds earmarked for agricultural research spent through the private sector.

Remaining funds went to research through universities or other non-industrial areas.

Conversely, the department of industry, trade and commerce spent only $2 million of a total $86 million earmarked for R and D and $83 million of its funds were spent through the private sector.

Examples of the kinds of research and development projects:

—Situations where security prohibits industrial involvement.

—Projects inappropriate to industry or where no suitable industrial capability exists and it would not benefit the country to create one.

—Research and development associated with narcotic control, protection of the public against unsafe drugs and air traffic safety research.

—Maintenance of national and international standards, such as weight, length and time.

—Projects to enable the department to assess current developments and direct the department in its contacts with industry.

—Central testing facilities necessary to industry as a whole.

In a news release announcing details of a new policy to direct a greater percentage of federal funds to industry, Mr. Gillespie said "emphasis will be on new or additional mission oriented research."

"Clearly the onus now is on government departments to search that will continue to be carried out by departments include:

—Projects which can be carried out more effectively by industry.

—Projects which can be carried out more economically by industry.

Belleville Bus Terminal to Go

A new bus terminal is planned for Belleville, Voyageur Colonial Ltd. says replacement of its time-worn Dundas St. facility with a new development on the same site, the city's traffic committee was told yesterday.

Traffic and parking plans for the project were shown the committee by city engineer Wilbur Purcell and Police Chief Douglas Cripple, who said the bus company was "anxious to get on with a new building," which means demolishing the present terminal.

While the building is under construction, the company plans to install a trailer as a temporary terminal.

City councillors applauded the move to replace a facility which has served main provincial east-west bus routes for years.

Said Alderman Arthur Keegan: "Citizens of Belleville at large will be happy they're making some effort to do something about that dilapidated old place."

OHC Wants to Develop Land East of Plaza

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Housing Corporation hopes to turn Belleville architect Paul Wiegand's award-winning housing design into a reality on a site in the city's east end.

But before construction can begin, the land — located south of the Unemployment Insurance Commission — and east of Belleville Plaza — must be given a special zoning category. The four acre parcel is currently zoned for high rise apartments.

OHC is negotiating the land purchase from Loyalist Developments, whose principals are Lee Grills, Jack Ellis and William Wills.

The project — as outlined Monday by Mr. Wiegand to the city's advisory planning and advisory committees — calls for 40 preconstructed homes to be assembled on two acres of the site. If this stage proves successful, 60 more units will be erected on the remaining two acres. If unsuccessful, OHC could build a unit such as a senior citizens' home.

Mr. Wiegand, who was substituting at the meeting for William Gibson, OHC's development and research director, may have his scheme presented to city council within the next two weeks. Referring to the rezoning application, he was assured by committee chairman Alderman Arnold Orr: "we're not going to voice any local objection."

At the moment, no zoning category exists for the 7 to 9 rise, high density complex envisioned by Mr. Wiegand.

He showed a sketch which revealed "interchangeable modular components" resulting in both sides but with individual green areas and driveways. He described his design as a "house between apartment and single-family dwellings."

Mr. Wiegand is one of five Canadian architects whose work will be put into operation by OHC.

Planning Board Together Again, Calls for Provincial Assistance

By KEN SMITH
Staff Reporter

Quinte Planning Board members are taking Darcy McKeough on on his offer to provide them with consultants from his departmental staff and QPB municipal representatives decided last night what they want to talk about — money.

Board chairman Jack Bush today has started to organize a meeting with officials of the department of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs. When Mr. McKeough formed Trenton, Brighton, Murray and Brighton township two weeks ago they should stay in QPB for the time being. Its municipal officials would be willing to work with the municipalities in setting problems.

"We are looking for help," says Bush, "and if we get that, there will not be much change."

The QPB community leaders were in accord at their private gathering in the Sidney Township office last night, that double levies must be dealt with as a matter of municipalities in QPB, except Trenton and Belleville, are paying both for county planning and Quinte planning. (In Sidney, for example 60 cents per capita goes to the county, $2.25 per capita to QPB).

"We want to get rid of this double levying," said Bush.

"There really isn't too much to say about the meeting . . . we had a good discussion." It lasted approximately two hours

Mayor Duncan McDonald said in an interview today, "we were trying to see if we can't make living better financially — that is the bugbear."

"There were no hard feelings," he added.

The mayor raised the matter of regional services which Trenton, Brighton and the township have balked at because of the expense.

"I think we can satisfy the minister we can service our neighbors without changing to water from the lake," he says. He talks specifically of extending water service from Sidney to a point less than three miles east of QPB Trenton.

He says both Belleville and Trenton now have enough studies on their water supplies that they can present an alternative program to the Lake Ontario pipeline based on existing resources — all alternatives that would defer bring expansion.

This, according to the mayor, would bring limited expansion that would increase the tax base sufficiently to make a pipeline feasible, over a period of time. Or else, he said, existing water plants could be expanded.

Bush says he hopes discussions with department officials can begin within two weeks. He acknowledges costs of servicing and the burden of double levies will be important topics in those talks.

Hees Wants Winter Works Conference

The federal government must immediately call a conference with the provinces to shape works programs to offset increased winter unemployment, George Hees, MP Prince Edward — Hastings, said today.

Job statistics released today show federal budget measures have failed to produce sufficient jobs and indicate more large scale unemployment problems this winter, he warned.

"The federal statistics showed an actual decrease in unemployment from 6.2 per cent in June to 6.8 per cent in July. But, on a seasonally-adjusted basis, the July percentage was 6.3.

This indicates measures introduced in the May budget have not been effective in curbing unemployment, said Mr. Hees.

The move required is a reduction in personal income tax to boost spending, which in turn would stimulate sales, production and jobs.

"Another thing which the government must do immediately is to call a federal-provincial conference to be held within the next month," he said.

"They should discuss a "comprehensive" winter works program to deal with the "high unemployment" which today's statistics "clearly indicate will occur again next winter."

Only by organizing such a scheme before the November session can a program be operational before winter "unemployment again reaches serious proportions".

Music Joy Webb's Way of Life, And She Lives It with A Beat

AMELIASBURG — If the guitar — a badge of modern youth — someday ousts the tambourine as a traditional Salvation Army symbol, the feat could be traced directly to a young Englishwoman. She is Joy Webb.

Photos and Stories By Harry Mulhall Staff Reporter

And Major Webb is as personable as she is talented and creative — significant attributes in reaching youth.

Young Quinte-area Salvationists last week were in close — and personable — contact with her. They responded readily to her presence — an international personality as song writer, recording artist and television performer among instructors at the Army's annual Roblin Lake music camp here.

Music — resonant brass, clashing tambourines, harmonious choirs — is central to the Army's missionary identity. With Major Webb it's gone pop.

Integrating pop and folk music — guitars and all — has been Major Webb's assignment in the Army's musical mosaic.

Not that she sees anything radical about such a departure.

"The Army has always been in the vanguard, hasn't it?" she says. "We just take what can be used effectively to get our message across.

So why not pop and folk rhythms.

"To young people today this is a very great means of expression for them," she says.

The guitar has as much a musical contribution to make as, say, the tambourine which dates from the Victorian era of the Army's inception — and still sounding strong.

Her distinctive career within the Army's musical organization was launched some years ago in Britain where Joy Webb and a handful of cadets had been experimenting with modern rhythm idioms at street meetings.

The group, known as the Joystrings, was integrated into the Army's official music organization as a bow to contemporary music. Its impact was immediate.

The street corner stands were replaced by television shows, records, even night club appearances.

But it wasn't strictly showbusiness. The group also played at prisons and cathedrals, town halls, schools and churches. In 1968 the Joystrings disbanded — but their success fully proved its pioneering point: Contemporary music idioms, performed to professional standards, was relevant to Salvation Army endeavors.

The end of her group launched Major Webb on a wider stage — travelling abroad extensively and promoting modern musicmaking among Salvation Army youth around the world. Her Canadian trip, including the Ameliasburg visit, is part of that latest assignment.

However, the busy schedule hasn't slowed her creativity. A prolific songwriter, she even found time to compose a ballad for her Roblin Lake students, entitled "Sunshine."

Inevitably, much of her composition is inspired by gospel themes.

"I find most of my songs are written around the actual words of Jesus, or His teachings."

For example, the gospel text quoting Jesus as saying: "I am the way, the truth and the life" inspired a song called "Which Way."

With her students, she attempts to infuse a feeling of missionary enthusiasm into their singing.

"I try to tell them they're singing for a very important event. Music is not just enough to give a half-hearted performance when you're trying to preach the gospel. You have to give it all you've got."

Has her contact with youth here shown up any difference in the calibre of musicianship when contrasted with groups in other countries?

Major Webb has a ready answer to that. Her work is dedicated to making music, not comparisons.

"I don't make comparison," she says. "I don't think it's fair to young people."

Sounds of Joy: Guitar-Playing Major Webb Sets New Youth Music Trend

Summer Sound of Music Over for Salvation Army

AMELIASBURG — The sounds of music in the making have faded from the shores of Roblin Lake here for another year.

As the week began, nearly 80 youngsters packed their gear and headed for homes throughout east - central Ontario, ending another Salvation Army summer music camp here.

"It's a beautiful location for such a project," says Capt. Bob Dyck, divisional youth secretary stationed at the Army's mid - Ontario Division headquarters in Belleville.

The lake achieves a two-fold purpose for the army.

Music is a basic factor in the Army's makeup. Assuring its continuity calls for a steady flow of upcoming musicians to fill the ranks of bandsmen and vocalists.

Combining the recreational freedom of a summer camp with the concentrated study of a music school is one way to heighten interest at a young age.

Similar to other camps throughout the county, this is the formula that has been working at Roblin Lake for the past 30 years.

The division covers an area from Whitby to Gananoque and north to Peterborough and the students range in age from nine to 16 years.

For eight days, under veteran musicians and bandmasters drawn from Salvationist corps within the division, they learn the practice and theory of music — sessions augmented by Bible studies and recreation programs.

Ratio of students to instructors is high — about four to one.

In such a locale, where fun is mixed with study the students, musicmakers "really enjoy themselves," says Capt. Dyck.

They're tomorrow's Salvation Army musicians — and some of them are already capable musicians," he adds.

Both the Ayrshire and Hereford divisions offer $650 each in prize money.

Musical entertainment for the Prince Edward County fair this year will be provided by the Singing Post Family of Ameliasburgh and the popular Carlton Show Band. A musical variety show also will be held Sunday afternoon, September 10, on stage at the Curling Club.

The county centre will be filled with floral exhibits, fruit and vegetable displays, hobby displays and photographs.

Ladies' work and cooking will also be exhibited in the curling club and the Crystal Palace.

President of the 1972 fall fair is Charles Culmer of Picton. First vice - president is Tom May and second vice-president is Creighton Carr, both of Picton. Secretary - treasurer is Arthur McCormick, Picton. Directors are Alex Mann, Alec Miller, Tom Heath, Albert Capp, Howard Seeley, Lorne Tetley, Creighton Lockyer, Doris Whiteford and Walter Deville.

North Front Apartment Application Deferred

A 24-unit apartment building is planned for the west side of North Front Street.

But the city's traffic committee wants more information about the project before sanctioning a rezoning request.

Stop-signs To be Switched

Introduction of a one-way traffic system in Belleville's Bayview Heights area has been deferred.

Instead, the city's traffic committee decided to do some stop-sign switching.

A major problem in the Heights has always been the fact that motorists heading uphill in wintertime on First Street, had to halt twice within brief distances — at North and Dundas Streets.

The committee yesterday decided to turn one sign around — making North a stop street and First a through street on the top of the grade at Dundas.

However, if the switch does not work the committee will reconsider the one-way system drafted by Police Chief

Among concerns expressed at a committee meeting yesterday was lack of parking for visitors and grades of driveways which could slow motorists turning into the building lot off the busy North Front traffic artery.

Rezoning is needed since not all the property — near Tracey St. — is zoned for apartment development.

The committee decided to return the application to planning authorities requesting further information.

The application was made in the names of J. Jeffrey and J. Halloran. The developer is Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd.

Peace Park Flags Stolen

TWEED (Staff) — Three provincial flags were destroyed last Tuesday in the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park and the peace park flag was taken after its supporting ropes were cut.

Police are searching for a large truck seen in the park, in connection with the incident.

The New Brunswick representation in the park only came this past week after a mix-up in correspondence between park officials and that province.

Car Tireless

Tony Gustasarri, of 62 Evans Street, isn't driving anywhere for the moment. Someone entered his garage and took two wheels from his car.

The two tires and chrome wheels, stolen sometime between 11.30 p.m. Sunday and 10.30 a.m., Monday were valued by police at approximately $300.

Home study courses aren't flexible!

Most aren't. But the CGA has one that is.

Really? What makes it that way?

Well first of all, you can enter the course any time during the academic year. You don't have to wait for September to roll around.

That's flexible alright.

And the sequence of subjects is flexible too. You can change the order to suit your personal educational requirements.

Hey, that's very accommodating.

And that's not all. You take only subjects you require. If you're already qualified at a post-secondary level, you don't have to take a subject over again.

Fair enough. But how flexible are the employment opportunities for a CGA?

Very. You'll be able to choose from the widest selection of jobs imaginable. Because modern financial management is what business today needs more of.

Sounds good to me. How do I get started?

Easy. Write for the CGA calendar and career plan for the 1972-73 academic year. It starts in September.

'Conflict' Issue

The revelations concerning purchase of land in Markham township by Ontario Attorney General Dalton Bales and the suggestion of a conflict of interest between such an acquisition and his public responsibilities is of interest in relation to the parallel situation involving Mayor Russell Scott here in Belleville.

City Council by an overwhelming majority, 7 votes to 2, rejected a motion by Alderman Donald Soutter calling for a judicial inquiry into what he claimed was a conflict of interest between the Mayor in his position as chief magistrate and land under development in the city's north end owned in part by the Mayor.

The fact that all but two members of Council — Alderman Soutter and Alderman Robin Jeffrey ,seconder of the motion — voted against such an inquiry does not serve to eliminate the charge of conflict of interest contained in the motion, nor does it exercise the suspicion in the public mind, since affirmed by letters to this newspaper, that council backed off from what it perhaps regarded as an unpleasant task.

Mayor Scott himself has been conspicuously silent on the issue and this in itself is discouraging from the public standpoint, particularly when viewed beside the immediate steps taken by Premier Davis to investigate Mr. Bales' land acquisition and since then any similar holdings of other members of the Government.

This is not to say there has been any deliberate impropriety, either on the part of Mayor Scott or of Mr. Bales, for as Premier Davis has expressed his complete confidence in the integrity of Mr. Bales. To the latter's offer to resign he urged him to carry on his present responsibilities, believing it would not be in the public interest for him to step down.

Mr. Bales has since decided to remain in his post and it is clear he is doing so with the full confidence of Premier Davis.

However, the Premier noted also that he was not unmindful of Opposition calls for "more stringent and restrictive requirements for ministers of government in future."

Still it is necessary to keep a proper perspective. We doubt if Council will indulge in any second-guessing of its recent decision but at the same time the challenge to Mayor Scott and the doubts arising from that decision remain unresolved. However there will be an election in December and if nothing transpires in the interim there will certainly be no sidetracking these issues then.

One Sided

The spectacle continues on the American scene of public personalities running off to Hanoi and returning with word that those nice Communists are having a terrible time because of United States air attacks and if only the Americans would desist the war would, tomorrow, prisoners sent home and everything.

The latest in this category is former Attorney-General Ramsay Clark. The one vital matter that the Clarks not to mention the Fondas of the United States fail to mention is that the North Vietnamese have been doing their level best to kill off any South Vietnamese (civilians included) and until the last of them were withdrawn the other day) U.S. soldier in this God-forsaken land, while seeking ultimately to impose their will on the entire country.

When are these people going to suggest that the Communists might cease their belligerent ways too ?

Well Deserved

Richly deserved is the Award of Merit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans bestowed on Belleville's Jack Lundberg at the recent ANAF convention in Montreal. National president of the organization since 1962, Mr. Lundberg served the ANAF for 15 years before that. The award is not only a tribute to Mr. Lundberg and his work for veterans, it also says much for the Duke of Edinburgh unit here to which he belongs and for the community at large.

Ontario Still the Key

Trudeau Man Says PM's Stock in the West Is Rising

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Prime Minister is the issue."

That statement, coming from William Lee, head of the public relations firm of Executive Consultants Limited, sort of makes it official, at least as far as the Liberals are concerned.

For Mr. Lee is chairman of the Prime Minister's campaign committee.

And yes, the same Wing Commander Bill Lee who headed up RCAF public relations and then became executive assistant to Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

Although Paul Hellyer was boss and Bill Lee only his "exec," the assistant rather than the minister is still blamed by many in the Armed Forces as the one most responsible for unification.

The way you still hear it around National Defence Headquarters, it was Paul Hellyer dreamed up the idea, sold it to Paul Hellyer, and then, as assistant, prepared all the ammunition - of - argument the minister fired in neutralizing and even destroying resistance to the three-Services - in - one- Jolly-Green-Jumper.

In the 1968 general election Bill Lee was Prime Minister Trudeau's campaign tour manager.

The time the is running the show, directing the Prime Minister's campaign from his Ottawa office with an assistant assigned to go out and be relied when Mr. Trudeau tours.

"It is a very black and white situation with the PM," says Bill Lee. "Either you like him a lot or you do not like him at all. There are no grey areas."

And he is convinced the campaign will be fought record, and won or lost by the Prime Minister himself.

"The PM has a more positive image than either Robert Stanfield of the Conservatives or David Lewis of the NDP in the sense that he stirs a deeper emotional reaction, sometimes even a passionate one."

What sparks the reaction, Trudeau the man, or Trudeau the leader?

"It is the whole package," says Bill Lee, "personality, style, his aggressiveness; even his determination to do things his way. Some buy it, some do not."

Bill Lee insists he is taking an "entirely realistic view of it," so realistic that he concedes "we were in deep trouble in British Columbia, especially and to a lesser degree in the Atlantic Provinces and Ontario.

The PM, Pelletier and Goyer were turning them off. They did not like some of the things the Prime Minister, the State Secretary and the Solicitor General have been doing."

Things were so grim for the Liberals on the West Coast, according to former Deputy Liberal Prime Minister Paul Hellyer who has joined the Conservatives, that there would be what he called "A government wipe-out" in the election.

"It was bad," admits Bill Lee "but it is starting to turn around again. I was out there some 10 days ago and Senator George Van Roggen, the provincial campaign chairman insisted prospects were beginning to look good.

"Nothing, mind you, like in the '68 campaign when people jammed the hillside in Victoria for the PM's rally, but encouraging."

"The way it begins to look, when the PM goes out to the coast again, he will turn them on enough to come out with some seats in his pocket."

The Marilinns?

"The feeling of resentment by those who do not like the PM is not as deep as on the West," says Bill Lee, "and maybe that is because in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia they relate more to the French language thing.

"We have a four - four split in New Brunswick with the Tories now. My guess is we might edge them this time, five to three."

Things look brightest in Atlantic Canada for the Liberals on Prince Edward Island where Bill Lee is convinced "the PM will nip two of the four Tory seats, David MacDonald's and Melvin McQuaid's."

Newfoundland?

"Don Jamieson will come through," which would leave the Liberals on the losing end of the previous six-one split.

Nova Scotia?

"Stanfield country," says Bill Lee, "but we will hold Allan MacEachen's riding."

But listen to the Prime Minister's campaign chairman on Ontario.

"If we are to get a working majority it will have to be in Ontario — and while I concede we can not hold the Tories to the rock-bottom 17 seats they salvaged last time — we will make it.

But not as big as before. Odd piece of intelligence Bill Lee dropped was the disclosure that the Liberal campaign committee, provincial and federal, are stacked with "Hellyer men."

"Paul is a great guy," says Bill Lee, "and he should be in the mainstream.

"Too bad he did not have been with us — but better with the Tories than with Action Canada."

Dr. Potter Outstanding in A Strong Government

By DON O'HEARN
from The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

What can be called the firm Davis government has been in office six months. On February 2, Premier Davis put together through his mass reorganization which saw only three of 21 ministers stay with their old portfolios.

Before then Mr. Davis had dabbled around with his government in the year since we had taken office. But this was patch-work. He then won his election in fall. And in February named what was the first real Davis government.

And let us say it seems to assess good.

On the experience to date it cannot be said how a half a dozen years or so from now this government will shape up as a regime. Just how, on balance the Davis years will turn out. What new policies and directions they may produce and where and how will his government may lead the province. It is too soon to rate it on policy.

But on the basis of day to day government it has been turning out surprisingly well. In fact, judged on the caliber of the people in it and some of the qualities they have shown, it actually could turn out to be the best government we have had in 25 years.

This opinion is based principally on the performance to date of a half dozen men in the government.

Firstly, there is Health Minister Dick Potter.

Dr. Potter could turn out to be the best health minister we have ever had.

He has shown himself to be a realist and a very practical man. He says what he thinks, is not afraid to admit it if he is wrong, and he has both the energy and the courage to see that what he thinks should be done is done.

In his ministry we have seen convalescent care covered by hospital insurance (years overdue), organization of nursing homes and the beginning of a forthright attack on health costs.

Treasurer D'Arcy McKeough has not made himself popular but he has been doing things. He has boiled through municipal and regional reorganization which has been needed. He has started working towards a tax credit form of taxation and has Ontario leading Canada in this progressive and improved tax concept (it essentially is a form of guaranteed minimum income). And he has shown more imagination and determination than any treasurer in years.

John White has not been as spectacular in Industry and Tourism but he has been revamping the basic approaches of this ministry which is so vital to our economic development and therefore the welfare of the province. He has shifted the emphasis of the seed money the government distributes in loans from big industry to smaller industry for research and export marketing. This is where today it is needed if the economy is to really flower and again he has shown imagination and force.

Eric Winkler, old pro and former federal member has made it evident he will be an aggressive minister in consumer and Commercial Relations James Snow, builder and farmer from Halton, has been refreshingly independent as Minister of Government Services (the old Public Works Department). And Gordon Carton, 81-year-old Toronto lawyer who works out daily at the YMCA and looks it, appears as though he could modernize the ministry of Transportation and Communications (formerly Highways).

This is the cream of the crop at the ministerial level. And six men may not make a government. But there is an old rule of thumb that any provincial government which has even four good ministers is above average. This pretty well still holds. Moreover, these six men are not only above average but they are all spotted in key portfolios. And there has not been an Ontario cabinet since George Drew's government of 1943-48 which has had six men of their apparent calibre.

Looking beyond the individuals to the government as a whole, it is, as noted too early to form sound opinions.

There have been some government policy decisions. The one most talked about by the government itself is the reorganization of the civil service structure it has effected. This, however, is essentially a mechanical matter and doesn't reflect how the government might handle major social and philosophical decisions.

There has been the decision to subsidize the Canadian book publishing industry. Then the introduction of convalescent care that has been promised. The, cities - are - for - people - not- cars position brought out on the Spadina Expressway. The status quo on separate schools.

These have been policy decisions. And to an extent the first three at least broke ground.

But they dealt with isolated matters rather than broad policy.

And the critical test that will face the Davis government will be how it faces very broad policy questions. Two of them in particular.

One of these is employment. At least some realists are beginning to feel that under the standards of today, particularly in hours of work, full employment may not be possible.

Will the government continue to try and meet this by providing make-work jobs as it and all other governments has been doing? Or will it try and lead the way to social change?

The second is that the government take out of the gasoline purse has reached its practical limit. This means that if there is to be good government there priorities and criteria will have to be established. Some taxes will have to be laid for decisions on which things come first. Should welfare rate above roads? Is health more important than education? Where does recreation fit in?

Does the government have the capacity to face and come to decision on such basic questions?

We do not know yet. One special indication is that a policy priorities board, an inner cabinet, has been established. This at least recognizes the need.

Also three policy ministers (three more men who are of above average calibre quality) have been appointed to coordinate the work of ministries and program. This mechanism is still in the development stage but it has shown some promise.

So that there are some grounds for optimism.

However, this government has its share of problems and questions before it than any Ontario government has had to face.

Chief here are to fearsome that one can question any government's capacity to provide broad and wise answers. The best we perhaps can expect is a firm guidance that will keep us off the rocks rather than leadership which will plot us to new destinations.

But this government at least appears as though it intends to try and face the question. And in a year or so from now we may know how it is making out.

S. African Pensioners Feel the Squeeze

Alda Parker in the South
African Financial Gazette

Hottest issues in South Africa today are student unrest, pollution, the drug menace.

Completely lost in all the hue and fury are two inextricably linked problems — problems which if not tackled soon could within a generation drown the taxpayer — and even now are imposing untold hardship on tens of thousands of helpless but otherwise worthy citizens.

First is the increasing burden of the aged on the general community — a burden which, if we maintain our present rigid and outmoded retirement concepts, will by the end of the decade become quite intolerable.

Second is the increasing inability of pensioners (both on State and private sector payments) to survive the merciless income erosion imposed by ceaseless inflation.

Because so many are suffering, let's look first at the human problem. By and large the elderly do not parade their poverty — as well for the South African conscience. For, let's face it, inflationary pressures have for huge numbers made retirement just about the grimmest experience this side of the grave.

In 1960 pensions had leapt to 11,000, total pay-out (at R 1=$1.40) to R46 million. In just on R48-million. In 1971-72 White pensions will rise to R41 a month, total cost to the community in the fiscal year, R54-million.

On surface, particularly for those living with a family, R41 a month may seem reasonably generous — by certain overseas standards, it is generous. But compare it with the average teenager's starting salary of R100-R150 a month and the figure becomes ludicrous. We cannot allow ourselves to the harsh fact that R41 a month today is not enough to live on.

Northern Tank Farm

Alaskan Oil

Environmental Groups Battle Government on Pipeline Issue

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada has an "economic interest"—not just a conservation interest—in seeking to have a pipeline built through Canada to carry Alaska oil to the United States, a lawyer for the oil companies seeking to build a trans-Alaska pipeline said Monday.

Paul Mickey, representing Atyeska Pipeline Service Co., made the statement at a hearing before Judge George Hart of U.S. District Court. The hearing, which continues today, is to determine whether the judge will extend an injunction he granted two years ago halting construction of the controversial 789-mile trans-Alaska pipeline.

Environmental groups from Canada and the United States want the injunction extended. The oil interests do not.

Canada has expressed concern about pollution of its west coast by Alaskan oil. But, at the same time, Mickey said, it is undertaking offshore exploration on both its east and west coasts and expanding refinery capacity in areas near the U.S. border.

Mickey also attacked Canada for a "phoney offer" of interim oil supplies for the United States. He said Canada does not have enough oil for its own needs and is a net importer of oil, mainly for its eastern markets.

Mickey referred to an offer by Canadian Energy Minister Donald Macdonald that Canada could increase its oil supplies to the U.S. if that would allow Interior Secretary Rogers Morton to give more adequate study to the possibility of carrying Alaskan oil by pipeline through Canada.

"That's really a phoney offer and a phoney issue," said Mickey.

Earlier, Edward Berlin, lawyer for both the Canadian Wildlife Federation and David Anderson, British Columbia Liberal leader, said the interior department did not consider all the alternatives before Morton announced in May that he will approve the trans-Alaska pipeline once legal hurdles are cleared.

Berlin said Morton did not seek information from Ottawa about Canadian investigations of pipeline effects and said the idea of a Canadian corridor had not been fully explored.

The lawyer representing U.S. environmentalists, John Dienhelt, said the interior department approved the project put forth by the oil companies "to get the job done for industry as soon as possible" and thus did not conform with the law concerning consideration of alternatives.

Monday's hearing also touched on Alaskan natural gas, which is expected to be transported across Canada by pipeline.

Judge Hart asked conservation lawyers to estimate how long it would take to prepare a comparative study of the trans-Alaska route versus a "common corridor" across Canada for both oil and gas lines. The lawyers hope to have a rough timetable before today's hearing.

Parks Delegates Protest Limiting Pool Grants

Delegates to the Ontario Parks Association convention Saturday voiced concern over abolition of a provincial grant for swimming pools in larger communities.

The conference's closing business session was told that new grant legislation would limit grants for community pools to centres with populations under 25,000.

Lorne Williams Belleville recreation director, said his department already had received notice from the provincial government of the move intended to pass the issue to city council for action.

"But the effect of this remains to be seen," he added.

He pondered affects of the new legislation on school boards with populations estimated on a county base.

"Apparently, it just knocks them out in a hurry," replied Harold Brain, Sault Ste. Marie parks and recreation commissioner, later elected OPA president as the convention ended at the Four Seasons Hotel.

One delegate suggested pending changes in other provincial legislation might balance out the problem and it might be premature to protest "something we know nothing about."

Other delegates wanted a strongly worded resolution of protest passed by the conference.

However, delegates approved a motion that the issue be referred to the OPA executive for consideration during the year.

Stockbrokers Arraigned In Child Kidnapping Case

CALGARY (CP) — Two Calgary stock brokers were remanded without bail to Aug. 21 when they appeared in court Monday on charges of kidnapping the daughter of construction executive Sam Hashman.

Charged are Michael Matheson, 37, and Donald Wayne Matheson, 37, both employees of Merrill Lynch Royal Securities. Matheson was charged Monday when he approached police with lawyer Brian Stevenson.

Matheson was arrested Friday, after Marlene H a s h m a n, 17, was released unharmed after being held for 14 hours. Her father, president of Great West International Equities Ltd., paid $500,000 for her return. The money has been recovered.

Mr. Stevenson asked the court to release Matheson on his own recognizance because he had been in touch with police since Friday and had surrendered voluntarily.

Mike Harredence, acting on behalf of Matheson, also attempted unsuccessfully to have his client released on bail.

Miss Hashman was abducted Thursday morning when two men armed with shotguns broke into the Hashman home. She was bound and gagged and left in the trunk of a car until she was released late that night.

The car was found Sunday in the garage of a townhouse. Clothing believed worn by the kidnappers and strips of bedsheet believed used to tie Miss Hashman were found in a nearby townhouse.

A third man, arrested Monday after he told police his location, was questioned and then released without charge.

China and Japan Moving Toward Better Relations

PEKING (Reuter) — With a change of government in Tokyo, China and Japan appear to be about to move toward some kind of equal relationship for the first time in more than a century.

For years, relations between the two countries have been characterized by threats, humiliations, seizures of territory and plunder, with China usually the victim.

As recently as May, China's official press was accusing the Japanese government — then under Premier Eisaku Sato — of deliberate hostility towards China. There are no official relations between Tokyo and Peking.

China has also several times warned about the dangers of a revival of Japanese militarism.

But on July 5, Sato stepped down and Kakuei Tanaka took over as premier. Two days later, he made the first official overture to Peking, telling a news conference:

"The time is now ripe for normalization of relations between Japan and China."

By coincidence, the day Tanaka announced his cabinet marked the 25th anniversary of the start of the eight-year-long Sino-Japanese war in 1937.

Many consider the war ignited the downfall of Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists on mainland China, where, four years after the war was over, Mao Tse-tung and his Communist followers took command.

In the mid-19th century both China and Japan came under pressure from the West. They responded in different ways.

China, crushed under the weight of its effete Manchu dynasty, clung to its Confucian past. Japan chose to modernize rather than be carved up in the way the imperial powers snatched at bits of China.

Perhaps the worst humiliation for China came in the Sino-Japanese war of 1895. After having been bullied into making extra-territorial concessions to European countries, China lost Taiwan to Japan which held it until after the Second World War.

Tokyo's economic interest on Taiwan remains strong even today, and is an important factor in the current question of Sino-Japanese relations. Peking insists that the island is still part of its territory despite the presence there of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists.

In the 1930s, Japan advanced from Manchuria—which it invaded in 1931—into China. The huge country was ravaged, its manpower resources split between Chiang's Nationalists and Mao Tse-tung's Red Army.

Disease, hunger and Japanese bombers brought suffering to millions of Chinese civilians.

Today, though official relations have not been established with Peking, Japanese do big business in China.

In the future, possibly the only Japanese that the lone People's Liberation Army guard on duty on the Marco Polo Bridge is likely to see is one familiar to the rest of the globe — the smiling, waving Mao, clicking his camera.

$150 Million Monthly For Civil Servants' Payroll

OTTAWA (CP) — About three-quarter of all federal civil servants are employed outside the Ottawa-Hull capital area, but the 25 per cent who are employed here draw about 30 per cent of the federal payroll, Statistics Canada reports.

The bureau reports that the 261,685 people on the federal employment rolls at the end of September last year represented an increase of about one-third in the last 10 years.

The cities of Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver have a combined total of more federal civil servants than the 65,826 who work in the Ottawa-Hull area. The biggest concentration is in Montreal, where 23,388 are employed.

But 83,533 civil servants—more even than are employed in Ottawa—have government jobs in scattered small cities and towns across the country. These include transport depots, coast guard stations, weather stations, customs men at border points, lighthouse keepers, RCMP detachments, and civilian employees of military bases located away from the big cities.

Grain Workers Face Layoffs At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The longshoremen's dispute which has shut down Vancouver's docks may put more than half of the grain workers on the docks out of work by Wednesday, a grain workers union spokesman said Monday.

Henry Kazes said 250 of the 530 grain workers have already been laid off and that the total will reach at least 320 by Wednesday.

Ann Landers

Youth Enlightens Widow

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the letter signed "Black Out" I was reminded of my 36 years of married love in a blue-black bedroom, undressed in the closet, and wondering why my husband had such peculiar ideas about the body. (He has all the rules in our family.)

I was 20 when my husband died. For three years I never looked at a man, although many men looked at me. About eight months ago I decided to say yes to an artist who, I knew, wanted to tell you, was 15 years my junior. (I was he who suggested a dim light in the hallway, with the door left slightly ajar. When he whispered: "You are a beautiful woman," I felt like a 21-year-old bride—and more womanly than at any time during my life.

I am not so stupid as to think I could build a lasting relationship on fun in the bed soon with a lad almost young enough to be my son, so after a few months we parted. But I must confess, Ann, that young man did more for me than 30 years in the closet.

I'm now seeing a man my own age and we will be married soon, but I will always be grateful to that youth who took me out of the darkness. I'm sure this is the way it was meant to be for all womankind.—Frankly Speaking

Dear Frankly: Better to light one dim bulb in the hallway than to curse the darkness. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I was rummaging through some old clippings and found the enclosed, which I think contains some useful advice. If you agree, will you find room for it in your column? It appeared in the Montelio, Wisc. Tribune, and was distributed to every pupil in Watertown, S.D. It goes:

"Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teen-agers: 'What can we do? There can we go?' 'I can't make some suggestions. Go home.

"Remove the storm windows. Paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves. Mow the lawn. Learn to cook. Scrub the floors. Build something. Clean up a park. Read to a blind person. Paint a handicapped child.

"Offer your services to your pastor, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army. Assist the poor. Study your lessons. And when you're through, if you aren't too tired read a good book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. The world does not owe you a living. Your village does not owe you recreational facilities. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy, and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty, or sick or lonely, ever again.

"In plain words: Grow up; quit being a city baby, get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wish bone. Start acting like a man or a woman.

"I'm a parent. I'm tired of nursing, cheerleading, protecting, pleading and begging. making excuses for your laziness and trying to accommodate to your endless demands. I am now growth of shrubbery near my house and also tired of being told what is your fault I'm like this. You drug cloths. Use the light spoiled me. If you don't like the weight, inexpensive plastic yourself, be something be kind.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree that essay makes sense. I thought so several years ago when it first appeared in my youth clinic for treating and column. P.S. Please say hello to counseling drug abusers after a my friends in Watertown. I via survey in the town showed 80 lived there a few years ago and per cent of the citizens said there is a serious drug problem loved it. Their newspaper is one in the community.

Successful Living

Greek Temples Intrigued Doris

By DORIS CLARK

Sicily may be a province of Italy but for my money it is a country all on its own — or you are to judge by the personalities of the people, its ancient and checkered history and its landscape.

Half a dozen cultures — Greek, Roman, Norman, Byzantine, Arabic — have left their mark, over the past 2500 years.

I was particularly intrigued by the remains of Greek temples. There was a place called "The Valley of the Temples", it seems this was once a city with a Temple Jupiter at one end and the temple of vaseboddy else at the other. In between are weather-worn rocks and rubble — the ruins of various homes and other buildings.

I saw a huge open air Greek amphitheatre with the semicircle of seats having been chipped and hammered out of stone. There was the "apses" stage inherited by our own Stratford.

We saw colorful mosaic floors, frescos, murals in gold-en mosaic. A few hardy souls (frickating me) took a ski lift up to nearly the top of Mount Etna, which was busily belching white smoke all the time.

People themselves are a happy carefree lot, anxious to be helpful and sometimes completely bewildered when we could not understand what they were saying in Italian. My Italian-English phrase book helped me when it became vital to express myself.

There were some occasions when the main thing I needed to say was "No!" but it was all refreshing and exciting and a wonderful change conference, sight-seeing, socializing and all.

Dear Doris: Our son married too young and to a very unloving, ungiving, moody girl. Finally, after we had to obtain a divorce, he started going with another girl, a cheery, happy little thing. He wanted to remarry this young fall.

Some of our friends question his leaving the children. Even though so many say that they are more lenient in their siblings towards separation, divorce, etc. — believe you me they are not!

Yet we have not fully accepted the new fiancee. We guess we had thought he would take time to "recover" — or is it for us to recover? When my husband said "Take time for what?" this made the rest of us stop and think.

If she is willing to marry him with his financial obligation, then who are we to wonder?

Now they want us to give them a list of relatives and friends to invite. Do we make a long list, invite one and all? Or do we just invite the close friends who are accepting this situation? — Can't Please Everyone

Dear Can't Please Everyone: Then please your son. If his fiancee has not been married before there is no reason for avoiding a large wedding. Ask her how many you may put on your guest list, ask him whom he wants there.

If people want to talk, let them talk. Your acceptance of this new situation, and your strong hopes for happiness for your son, will get across to the people who matter.

I hope this second try at matrimony will mean a long life and a happy one for him and his cheery new love.

Rare Birds Found

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Two rare peregrine falcons are in the care of the Canadian Wildlife Service in Edmonton, a girl and a boy Peregrine Tapp of Thunder Bay. The birds were flown to Edmonton Monday and will undergo intensive study before being released in the Arctic.

The birds were found near Thunder Bay by three Indian boys who turned them over to the Indian society. The society in turn gave them to Mrs. Tapp who has cared for them in the controlled wild birds so far this year.

Fall 7 Storeys

TORONTO (CP) — Abortion drugs, school aid, welfare reform, pornography and prayer for the mentally retarded will be topics of discussion at the 90th annual meeting of the Knights of Columbus supreme council beginning today. About 2,000 delegates from Canada, the United States and Mexico will be attending the three-day meeting to make policy decisions affecting 1.3 million members of the Roman Catholic men's organization.

One man was able to climb out of the bottom of the shaft, but the other man had to be pulled out. Both were taken to hospital.

IJC Criticized

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (AP) — A university study recommended Monday that the International Joint Commission either be strengthened or abolished in the Great Lakes region. Members of the U.S.-Canadian boundary body were unmoved.

Dr. Leonard Dworsky of Cornell University reported on an 18-month study by specialists from 30 U.S. and Canadian universities to the quarterly meeting of the U.S.-Great Lakes Basin Commission.

Allow Camping

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Beach city council voted 4 to 3 Monday to permit demonstrators to camp in Flamingo Park during the Republican national convention.

Roman Replies

TORONTO (CP) — Federal New Democratic Larry Leeder David Lewis was criticized Monday for his "irresponsible approach in libelling corporations."

Stephen Roman, whose company, Denison Mines Ltd., was attacked in a speech given by Mr. Lewis Saturday, made the remark in a prepared statement read at a news conference.

"Mr. Lewis is obviously talking without attention to fair or, even, to gain political advantage," said Mr. Roman. "Progressive Conservative candidate in the Toronto riding of Rosedale.

In his speech Saturday, Mr. Lewis said Denison Mines did not pay taxes between 1961 and 1970, despite profits of $63,038,288 between 1965 and 1970.

Mr. Roman said Monday the profit between 1965 and 1970 was in fact only $56,728,000 and that taxes paid to federal provincial and municipal authorities totalled more than $8 million between 1961 and 1970.

Bats' Invasion

BELFORT, France (Reuter) — Firemen used welding torches to frighten away hundreds of bats which inexplicably invaded a hospital ward here Sunday, forcing the evacuation of terrified patients. The window of the ward were flung open as Firemen chased the bats out at flame-point, roasting some of the creatures alive.

Poll Planned

EDMONTON (CP) — A national leadership ballot of Action Canada members will determine the party's future, W. J. Brown of Edmonton, Alberta chairman of the organization, said the ballot will ask members what they feel the future of Action Canada should be in light of founder Paul Hellyer's move to the Progressive Conservative party. The ballot probably would determine whether Action Canada would remain as a political party, he said.

CNE Opening

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition, alive and lively, enters its 94th year Wednesday with an international flavor.

The people's Republic of China has spent $45,000 to rent the 6,000 square feet of the Queen Elizabeth building.

And there will be 2,500 pipers on hand for a World Scottish festival which begins with a mammoth parade to the Ex Thursday.

Talks Stop

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between Ontario Hydro and Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, were suspended by an Ontario Government mediator Monday.

The suspension came on the 50th day of a strike against the utility by nearly all of the local's 12,000 members.

A Hydro spokesman said mediator Victor Scott broke off the talks with 170 items outstanding. Since talks were resumed Aug. 1, the spokesman said, agreement was reached on 67 items.

Raids Deplored

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — Former attorney-general Ramsey Clark said Monday upon his return from North Vietnam that the United States is "bombing the hell out of that poor land"—we're hitting hospitals and there is no possible moral justification for it.

Trade a Factor

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said Monday the cattle-fattening hormone DES (Diethylstilbestrol) is being suspended in Canada because of export considerations as well as safety factors.

Speaking to a service club, Mr. Olson said food safety officials have not found "any evidence of damage to anyone's health" as a result of the use of DES in Canada.

"But there are some important reasons in conjunction with our international trading partners in meat products why we have to stay in line with the U.S. decision."

Costs to Rise

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — A Manitoba rancher says the federal government's suspension of the cattle-fattening hormone DES (diethylstilbestrol) is an unnecessary precaution which will increase beef production costs five cents per pound.

Sam Mitcell, who owns 6,000 head of cattle in the community of Douglas 15 miles east of Brandon, said Monday in an interview the retail price of beef will increase accordingly as a result of the ban.

Fares to Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Transit Commission fares will increase, probably before the end of the year, commissioner D. Crawford Smyth said Monday.

"There just doesn't seem to be any alternative," said Mr. Smyth, following a tentative settlement between the TTC and its 5,300 operators.

Tourist Body

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin Monday announced the formation of a new travel industry development program, the formation of a tourism advisory council, and several other developments, as he spread the gospel of tourism to Canadians.

Gunman's Error

NEW YORK (AP) — Two indictment hopefuls were shot to death in an East Side restaurant Friday by an underworld "hit man" who mistook them for two Cosa Nostra mobsters the federal government said on Monday.

Teacher from working.

Under the proposed plan the minister would still control certification, but membership in the federation would also be necessary in order to teach.

In matters of discipline and registry of members the board "would be expected to seek the advice of an advisory council on which the public would be represented, the report says.

The education minister alone now is able to suspend or cancel a teaching certificate. Expulsion from membership is the most drastic action available to the Ontario Teachers' Federation or one of its affiliated teachers' groups, and this cannot prevent a certification

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, painful most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Pilnacaine H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

TREVINO IN TREES — Lee Trevino, surrounded by underbrush, hits his ball out of deep rough on the eighth hole in second day of play in PGA Championship in Birmingham. Trevino got a bogey 5 on the hole but was one-under-par thirty-four on the front side of second round.

Trevino Boosts Our Open

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — There's a quiet but concerted move under way to elevate the Canadian Open to a status considerably higher than that of just another stop on the pro golf tour.

"It's a national championship," said 1970 Open champion Lee Trevino. "Any national championship ought to be something special. I think the Canadian is. I think it's a prestige event.

"But to get better, to make it really one of the top ones,

British Pool

Hopes 'Busted'

LONDON (AP) — Britain's National Swimming Association Monday rejected an appeal by its top Olympic medal hope who was dropped from the British squad following allegations of smoking marijuana.

Ray Terrell, 19, who trained for a year under American coach Don Cambril at Long Beach, Calif., was cut from the squad, together with South African-born Tyrone (Tarzan) Toner and Wetherman Rowland Jones, who has been attending university in Vancouver.

Toner did not appeal the dismissal and was quoted in a newspaper interview as saying: "I was smoking pot."

Terrell told reporters: "I have never smoked pot in my life. I have been wrongfully dismissed from the team for something others have done."

The swimming association refused to disclose the reason behind the action and declined comment after rejecting Terrell's appeal.

The dismissals followed a police raid on the British Olympic training headquarters during which suspected drugs were seized.

the first thing they've got to do is get different dates. You just can't have two major championships back to back. And that's in the words.

The Canadian, which got on the outside a few years ago when the PGA and the tour players were having a long, complicated squabble, has been stuck with less than favorable dates on the schedule for the last few seasons.

In 1969 it was listed as an unofficial event and was played on the same weekend as both the Milwaukee Open and the British Open. The last three have been played the week before the British Open, with many of the game's top players skipping the Canadian championship to get an early start on preparations for the prestige-laden British.

The trend is likely to change.

"We are working on some adjustments in the summer schedule," said Joe Dey, commissioner of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA, the governing body for the tour. "We are not yet ready to announce anything, however.

"The adjustments involve both the Canadian and Western Open. They're two of our oldest, best established tournaments and we feel they're deserving of consideration.

"We don't know anything on an official basis," said Dick Grimm, an official of the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

"But that, of course, is what we're working and hoping for—moving up to really major-tournament status."

Both Trevino and Arnold Palmer have been called in for talks with officials with an eye on how the Canadian could be improved in stature. Trevino is a cult spot for the tournament.

Tanzania, Liberia and Sierra Leone already have said they will boycott the Games, which start Aug. 26. Sudan posed a tentative boycott if the International Olympic Committee, meeting Aug. 19, allows the Rhodesians to take part in the two-week Games.

The Organization of African Unity, a group of 41 countries based in Addis Ababa, has called on all African teams and supporters of Africa to withdraw from the Games if Rhodesia takes part.

The Rhodesians arrived in Munich Monday.

Sinden Puts Canada Lines on Display

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada's lines for the September exhibition hockey series with the Russians were disclosed Monday by general manager-coach Harry Sinden.

Sinden made known the units simply by putting the various National Hockey League players through a shooting workout in the afternoon, then explaining at a later news conference why some were playing out of position.

As expected, the New York Ranger line of Jean Ratelle, between Vic Hadfield and Rod Gilbert, remained intact. Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks was centering Montreal Canadiens' Frank Mahovlich and Bill Harris of New York Islanders but the line was in for some juggling.

Yvan Cournoyer of the Canadiens was expected in camp today after he received Sinden's permission to remain at home Monday for the opening of his summer hockey school near Montreal.

He'll replace rookie Harris at right wing with Mikita and Mahovlich.

Another unit is made up of centre Gil Perreault and Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres with Dale Tallon of Vancouver Canucks while Philadelphia Flyers' centre Bobby Clarke completed Fred Henderson and Ron Ellis of Toronto Maple Leafs at the wings.

Detroit's sensational rookie of last year, Marcel Dionne, centre Gil Goldsworthy of Minnesota North Stars and Chicago Dennis Hull of Black Hawks' team mates Red Berenson and Mickey Redmond will form another line with Montreal's Peter Mahovlich on left wing.

The seventh attack unit has Boston Bruin lieutenants Phil Esposito and Wayne Cashman skating with J.P. Parise of Minnesota.

Cashman, a natural right winger converted to the left side by Sinden several years ago, reverted back to his former position to enable Team Canada's coaches-staff to make the best use of Parise whom they consider one of the best left wingers in the NHL at getting the puck out of the corners.

The defensive pairings include the ever-dependable combination of Pat Stapleton and Bill White. Ranger all-star Brad Park is teamed with Detroit's Gary Bergman and Rod Seiling of New York with Don Awrey of the Bruins.

Montreal's Serge Savard and Leaf's Brian Glennie were another unit, but this is expected to change by Wednesday with the expected arrival of Canadiens' Guy Lapointe.

Glennie then will likely pair off with Jocelyn Guevremont of Vancouver with Montreal rookie John Van Boxmeer becoming the swing man.

Sinden said he remained hopeful the situation concerning the absence of Montreal's Jacques Laperriere could be changed and that the regular defenceman could join the Team Canada training camp. A team spokesman said Sunday illness in the Laperriere family had forced Joe rearguard to pass up the series.

In goal for the opening sessions were Montreal reclumbers Ken Dryden and Michel Larocque along with Chicago's Tony Esposito, Ed Johnston of Boston will join the club Wednesday.

Sinden said none of the three rookies at the training camp—Harris, Vic Boxmeer and Larocque—will play against the Russians but the first-year pros will accompany the team to Sweden and may see action in the Canadian team's two exhibition games there.

STAN MIKITA of Chicago Black Hawks of National Hockey League, leads members of Team Canada through a workout at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto Monday. Team Canada, a select group of NHL players, meets an All-Star Russian team in a series of exhibition games beginning in Montreal on Sept. 2.

Rugged Camp 'Routine'

TORONTO (CP) — Russia is preparing for its exhibition hockey series with Canada in September by culling the best from a Moscow tournament to face the National Hockey League pros.

The tournament in Moscow concludes on Aug. 21 and the team that will meet Team Canada in the eight-game series beginning at Montreal on Sept. 2 will be announced the following day.

Team Canada, meanwhile, regrouped its select personnel Monday after an abbreviated summer of fun and business.

When the afternoon skating drill ended, most of the 41 players on the ice had more than a little difficulty getting to the dressing rooms.

Many veteran observers considered it one of the roughest first-day workouts they had seen. Not so Harry Sinden, Team Canada coach.

"It was a normal practice," said the one-time coach of Bos-NHL.

Stanfield Stays

BOSTON (AP) — Centre Fred Stanfield has agreed to terms with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, his lawyer announced Monday. Stanfield, who had 23 goals and 56 assists last season, was the 12th leading scorer in the NHL.

"You'd have a nice game if you corrected your hook on the course and your slice at the table!"

Bench Sweeps Bases

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Bench swept the bases just for the hell of it, then swept around the bases for real.

Atlanta Braves, who joined the list of baseball clubs adding a bit of Reverston to the game, mainly a shapely young lady who dusts off the bases midway in the game—found they had a new sweeper prior to their Monday night game with Cincinnati Reds.

Before the contest against the Reds, the Braves engaged in a softball game against their wives. And halfway through the two-inning exhibition, most of the outgust, broom in hand, came ... "Johnny the Sweeper!"

His antic delighted the 15,318 Braves fans, who then watched the feminine mystique take its toll in an 8-0 victory over the Atlanta husbands.

But the fans were less than thrilled when the "real" game got under way. Reds, exploding out of a slump that had provoked him into benching for 17 at-bats, manhandled the Braves by driving in five runs with a single, a double and his 20th home run, leading Cincinnati to a 13-2 romp.

In the only other National League game, Houston Astros defeated San Francisco Giants 7-5. In the night's two American League games, Oakland Athletics beat Baltimore Orioles 5-2 and Kansas City Royals silenced New York Yankees 2-0.

Bench kissed off the Braves quickly with his two-run homer in the first inning, then singled to drive in the last of four Reds runs in the second and added a triple in two more in capping a four-run rampage.

And he still wasn't satisfied.

"I had the biggest run-batted-in night of my career two years ago against St. Louis. I should have had eight tonight, but I missed a home run in the fourth inning."

Roger Metzger and Cesar Cedeno drove in two runs each for the Astros, who remained 5½ games back of the first-running Reds in the NL East. But it was Jim Wynn who had the big RBI of the night, a tie-breaking single in a four-run seventh that propelled Houston past the Giants.

Oakland widened its lead in the American League West to 1½ games over idle Chicago White Sox while the Royals' margin over Detroit Tigers in the East was trimmed to one game.

Mike Epstein and Joe Rudi slugged homers for the Athletics and Bert Campaneris, dazzling Baltimore by stealing three bases, scored a pair of runs.

The Yanks, with a golden opportunity to move into second place in the AL East and cut the Orioles to four games behind, fell instead into third and remained 1½ games off the pace.

The Royals' three runs were unearned and Bruce Dal Canton didn't give New York much of a chance to do anything about it.

The Kansas City starter gave up a pair of first-inning singles, then set down 23 consecutive batters before being touched for two more hits in the ninth. But Norm Angelini came out of the bullpen to preserve the shutout.

Stamps Squeak Past Lions

CALGARY (CP) — Flanker Gerry Shaw of Calgary Stampeders said it best: "We were sort of spurting a bit."

It summarized a families-early-season pattern for the Stampeders who hung on Monday night for a 19-14 win over British Columbia Lions in a Western Football Conference game.

The victory moved the Stampeders into a first place tie with Edmonton Eskimos, who are undefeated after two starts. The Stampeders have a 2-1 record.

The Stampeders were inconsistent against the Lions, as in two previous games against Winnipeg Blue Bombers which resulted in a 31-7 victory at home and a 41-14 setback on the road.

The script was altered slightly against the Lions because of a brilliant performance from the Stampeders' defence, headed by their front four of John Boston, Fred James, Dick Suderman and Craig Koinzan.

Throughout the hard-hitting contest before 22,611 fans, the Calgary defence forced B.C. quarterbacks Don Moorhead and Don Bunce, forcing them either to throw erratic passes or lose valuable yardage.

Despite brief offensive flurries, the game was a defensive battle. The Lions lost 16 yards on broken plays and the Stampeders 29 yards.

"We died down for a while, then came back again," said Shaw, who scored the only two touchdowns for the winners, one on a 70 - yard pass-and-run play started by quarterback Jerry Keeling.

"Our offence has been sort of erratic all year," said Shaw, adding that wide receiver Gary Pajon "is the best catch" which got the Stampeders started in the first quarter.

The first time Calgary scrimmaged, Keeling hit Kerr for a 33-yard pass. Three plays later Shaw nabbed a 14-yard toss for a touchdown.

Shaw added his 70-yard touchdown, and four in three games, in the second quarter. Larry Robinson booted a convert and added two field goals for the Stampeders who led 7-3 after the first quarter and 16-6 at the half.

The Lions rallied in the final 15 minutes after a scoreless third quarter when Bunce combined with fullback Jim Evenson for a 25-yard touchdown.

Later in the quarter, however, the Lions gambled on third down deep in their own end and lost possession when Koinzan hit Moorhead for a six-yard loss.

It was enough to prevent the Lions from winning their first league game at Mclahon Stadium since 1965.

Ted Gerela got seven points for the Lions with two field goals, one from 28 yards, and a convert. Punter Eric Guthrie completed B.C.'s scoring with a 64-yard single in the fourth quarter.

Except for Bunce, who took over from Moorhead late in the third quarter before he was replaced by Moorhead again in the game, the Lions didn't look very effectively.

Evenson was their top rusher with 63 yards on nine carries, while Jim Young led in passing receiving with 49 yards on two receptions. Moorhead and Bunce only completed seven of 27 passes for 107 yards.

He has been replaced on the roster by Ron Steiner, who played for six years with the Tiger-Cats and was picked up by the Eskimos recently for a five-day trial.

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, said Monday the series of Canadian Football League games affected, for United States television will terminate tonight.

Balmer Inc. of New York, which holds the rights to CFL games, said earlier the remainder of what was to have been a 20-game series of telecasts have been dropped because it was feared that when the series ended no weekend games it would suffer from National Football League telecasts.

Two Canadians Advance in Open

TORONTO (CP) — Two Canadians had dreamy dukes when they left Toronto Monday when they came off the courts with first-round victories in the $72,000 Canadian Open tennis tournament.

But opening play was a nightmare for third-seeded Andres Gimeno of Spain as he was upset by unseeded Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

Janics Tindle of Vancouver, who says she's become more of a thinker than a hitter, ousted Patti Hogan of La Jolla, Calif., 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 and Ken Binns of Toronto, whose real game is squash, beat Georges Goven of France 8-7, 6-3, 6-2.

The Canadians were lonely when they went into their matches and both decided to let their highly - rated opponents make the mistakes.

"I'm thinking out a match more," said the 23-year-old Miss Tindle who captured the Canadian closed title earlier this month in Winnipeg. "I used to just hit the ball as hard as I could."

The Arizona State graduate stuck close to the baseline and gave Mizz Hogan the net which was fine with her because she was making errors.

Binns became the first Canadian in three years to advance in the open without playing another Canadian or drawing a bye.

"I thought he was going to wipe me off the court but I just tried to stay in the game, hope he'd make errors and he did," said the 37-year-old squash pro who came here from Australia five years ago.

Goven, third-ranked in France and a member of his country's Davis Cup team, was frustrated by Binns' tactics of slobbing into a soft breeze and had his timing upset when the Canadian took the pace off the ball by hitting deep, flat groundstrokes.

Pattison also carried the play to Gimeno as he attacked the Spaniard's second service that set him up for passing shots or volleys at the net.

"I'm not really a defensive player at all," said Pattison. "I win a lot of my points at the net."

Gimeno, who had been playing on clay and was unable to adjust to the faster surface, said Pattison "moved well at the net and I couldn't make my passing shots the way I wanted."

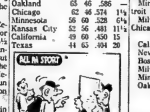
Second-seeded Manuel Orantes, who is Gimeno's Davis Cup team-mate, withdrew from the tournament because of ruled stomach muscles.

Other seeded players made it through their first - round matches with straight-set victories.

Wishbone Breaks

OAKLAND (AP) — Baltimore Colts gave pro football its first taste of the Wishbone Offence, all the rage on U.S. college gridirons, when nothing else seemed to work against Oakland Raiders.

But the Raiders broke the Wishbone and won Monday night's National Football League pre-season game 16-0.



George Blanda kicked field goals of 32, 30 and 23 yards. He also added the extra point after touchdown pass to Fred Biletnikoff in the third period.

Jack Mildren, who mastered the Wishbone as Oklahoma's quarterback, made it go 48 yards in the fourth quarter against Oakland, but an interception ended the drive and the night's Wishbone experiment.

Wife Wants Out

CHICAGO (AP) — Sharon McLain filed a suit seeking separation from her husband, baseball pitcher Denny McLain of Atlantic Braves, in circuit court here Monday. Mrs. McLain, daughter of former major league great Lou Boudreau, who now is a broadcaster for Chicago Cubs, said McLain deserted her and that she was subjected to repeated mental cruelty by her husband. McLain allegedly deserted his wife and four children Aug. 4 and has since refused to support his wife and four children.

"O.K., wise guy. You'll hand me the lineup on a little piece of paper same as the other manager!"

Wills Admits He's 'Shot'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thirteen years ago he was an aging but exuberant major league rookie, emerging after nearly nine years in the minors to spark Los Angeles Dodgers to a pennant.

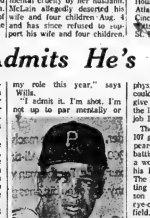
Now Maury Willis is 39. He earns about $100,000 a year, holds the major league record for stolen bases in a season and is considered a good bet for a managerial job and the Hall of Fame once he's through playing.

But this year Wills has sat and suffered on the bench while Bill Russell, who was two years old when Wills entered pro baseball, cavorts with increasing confidence at shortstop.

"I've been humiliated by my role this year," says Wills.

"I admit it. I'm shot. I'm not up to par mentally or physically. I don't think I could be expected to be able to give me four or five days in the lineup and I could do the job I've always done."

The Dodgers have played 107 games, and Wills has appeared in just 49 of them, batting 123 times and hitting a woeful .122, compared with his lifetime average of .281. The 23-year-old Russell is hitting .288, and after early-season unsteadiness is making eye-catching plays in the field.



The Dodgers trail first-place Cincinnati Reds by 4½ games in the National League West as they open a four-game series against Pittsburgh Pirates tonight.

Manager Walter Alston, who has deferred to Wills to lead the Dodgers through a decade of stretch drives, indicates he has no plans to take the veteran off the bench.

"He's not going to play so long as Russell continues to hit and field as well as he has," Alston says.

"You've got to like Russell," says Wills. "He's a great kid and he's becoming an excellent player.

"It's just that I think they gave up on me too soon—that is, if they wanted to win it this year. If they were trying to win it, then I have to feel I could have helped put this club closer to the lead than it is now."

Bennett Surprise Help For Devolin Motors

The top and bottom played to the expected results and Devolin Motors received a somewhat unexpected gift from Quinte Hotel in a rare Commercial Softball League triple-header Monday night.

Fennant - winning Rollins' Construction whipped the last-place Ellis Juniors 7-1 in the opening game of the night while Rod Bennett paced Quinte Hotel to a 3-0 win over Howard and Roberts in his first pitching start of the season in the nightcap. That helped Devolin move into a tie for second spot in the standings with their 4-1 victory over the Globe Hotel in the other contest of the night.

Rollins' jumped on Junior pitcher Dave Horwood for 11 hits and walked to their 22nd victory of the season. Wayne McFaggart blasted a homer over the left field fence for the winners' big shot of the game. Pitcher Ken Demille punched a double and a single in his own cause with Ralph Plaine, Dale Duval and Dave Lail adding a pair of singles each.

The Juniors lost the game but the defeat prolonged their first against the runaway league champions. Back-to-back doubles by Rick Graham and Steve Campbell produced the first earned run off Demille in 11 starts. The Juniors also turned over the first double play on Rollins in the second inning.

Demille finished with a three-hitter and four strikeouts, in recording his tenth win against one loss. Horwood went the distance for the Juniors.

Rod Bennett made his first appearance on Quinte Hotel's behalf a memorable one, firing a four-hit shutout over the second place H a n d R Printers.

Larry Mavety gave Bennett the winning run in the fourth when the big second baseman tripled and scored on Hugh Brennan's single. The Hotelmen added two more in the fifth on three singles from Lyle Shaver, Paul Meraw and Lyle Thompson.

Mavety also ended the only Printer threat in the seventh, knocking down a hard line drive and doubling up Moe Hunter and Ken Genereaux.

Bennett fanned four and walked two in recording his first Commercial League win. He outdueled Bob Swan who gave up eight hits and fanned four.

Moe Hunter had a pair of singles and Larry Potter one for the Printers. Pat Merrow kept his hitting streak alive with a first-inning double. The Howard and Roberts' left-fielder batted four for five, turned three runs and fanned five in two more to earn last week's John Labatt's MVP award.

Eric Maher, Marv Stacey and Tom Macdonald each had a triple and single in the Motors's nine-hit attack. Ron Maracle started for the winners going five innings before letting Jamie Hunter clean up. Maracle allowed three hits and fanned nine. Hunter picked up four killings in his two innings of one-hit ball.

Sid Davies had two singles and Bob McLeod and Bob Clow one each for the only hitting support behind Harrison. Harrison fanned four and did not walk a batter.

Hockey prodigy Wayne Gretzky, 11, of Brantford, is used to being the centre of attention already in his brief hockey career. Gretzky, seen here in his first scrimmage of the Tam-O-Shanter Hockey School at Trenton's Community Gardens, signed 700 goals in novice age group play. He scored three times in Monday night's Trenton scrimmage.

Gretzky Worth Paying to See

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

TRENTON — The organizers of the Tam-O-Shanter Hockey School have missed out on a good bet if they aren't charging admission for Group 6 scrimmages for the next two weeks.

You see, Wayne Gretzky put in his first appearance Monday at the Belleville-based school when Trenton's Community Gardens for the ice instruction portion of its month-long program.

Gretzky is probably the most-talked-about minor hockey player in Ontario since Bobby Orr, which probably h a s something to do with the fact that the 11-year-old Brantford prodigy scored 700 goals before graduating from novice age group ranks.

The shy, slightly - built blonde - locked Gretzky has been on skates only since last week — since last winter, but he made his first appearance Tuesday by scoring three times in Monday night's Group 6 scrimmage.

Wayne, who enters peewee play this season, has only attended one hockey school previously, and that was three years ago in Brant.

Not that he doesn't keep athletically active in the off-hockey season.

He pitched his team to a tyke baseball title in a Windsor tournament last weekend, and is also an enthusiastic lacrosse participant.

"I think the lacrosse will have to go," sighed f a t h e r Walter, in Trenton to watch his son's first scrimmage Monday. "I'm afraid it's just too much for the boy."

Gretzky possibly the most important of the nearly 800 boys who will participate in the four - week Tam-O-Shanter School that completes its four-week run August 26, created a slight problem for school director Larry Hughes.

"I didn't know who to group him with but we put him in Group 6 with some boys a little older — up to 12," Gretzky was told at until January.

"He should be a big drawing card," said Hughes, who noted that Gretzky, one of five children, would be attending the school at a "reduced rate" from the normal $125 fee that entitles a boy to room and board at Belleville's Albert College, some four hours' ice time daily, and a recreational program that includes weightlifting, swimming and karate instruction in self-defence.

Not that Hughes, freshman team coach under Ned Harkness at Cornell University before joining Tam-O-Shanter, thinks that big names are essential for hockey schools.

"We incorporate things like lectures into our program. It's important to communicate with the boys. We believe in a lot of personal attention and instruction. That's why we don't have NHL players anymore. A lot of them would just drink coffee and pick up their cheque."

"Sure, their names would help get kids to enrol in the school, but we want this to be a school, not just a vacation for the boys."

Instructors like Wayne Weller would only be known these days to ardent senior hockey fans. Weller, a high school physical education teacher, has played with Barrie and Woodstock of the Eastern Senior A group in the past several seasons.

Other on-ice instructors include Hank Nowak, an Oshawa Junior grad who played with Richmond of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A team last year; Brian Cropper, for four years Cornell's backup goaltender to Ken Dryden before last year winning an MVP award with Port Huron of the International League; and Wally Kozmylo, a figure skating pro of 22 years' standing who supervises the 1-hour daily power skating sessions.

Head instructor Bill Purce spent the last nine years coaching Toronto York University's varsity squad to a 215-30 won-lost record, after retiring from a 19-year minor pro career.

Albert Collette dean of men Doug Jodoin co-ordinates the physical portions of the program "and sharpens skates", chuckles director Hughes, who adds that a lot of Trenton boys have taken advantage of a $65 per week day-student program that includes everything but dinner and sleeping quarters at Albert.

We'd like to have ice time in Belleville as well as Trenton — we're using about 99 hours a week," adds Hughes, "but we just couldn't work anything out with the Belleville people involved."

The school, outside Toronto for the first group in its 12-year history due to a massive fire at the country club - sports complex last October, is designed primarily for boys in the 11-18 age bracket.

There are exceptions. Two groups (a group consists of about 30 students) have been formed of 19-year-olds, and one pupil was 47-year old Kelvyn Gosbee who, Hughes says, "didn't look out of place with eight-year-olds."

Up until this year, about 85 per cent of the school's enrolment came from outside Canada. This year, Hughes estimates, it's down to 65 per cent, with, two from as far away as the Netherlands, but most of the "foreign" contingent coming from northern parts of the United States.

Haley's Comets Baffle Realtors

Gib Waite Makes shirted in his high gear last night and squealed to a 13-9 victory over United Realty.

The win gave the Motorboys the best-of-three Belleville Minor Softball tyke series in straight games. They now advance against the Kinsmen Hawks in the league finals.

Doug Haley starred in fashioning a seven-hitter for the winners. Rick Graves had a triple and double and Haley a triple and single to lead Waites hitting production.

Kellar Trumps Farmer Lead

The Junior Farmers started off in fine form in Monday night's opening game of the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League finals but it was all downhill after the first inning.

The Farmers scored in the first inning but that was all they could manage in dropping a 4-1 decision to Consecon.

Art Kellar led the regular season fourth-place finishers to the initial win of the best-of-seven finals with a five-hitter. He fanned four and walked one. His bases-loaded single in the seventh put the game on ice for the winners. D. Phillips had a trio of safeties with Wayne Clarke and Dale McConkey adding a pair each.

Gutoskie Leaps To Track Title

If Dan Gutoskie ever gets in trouble he can always jump his way out.

Dan set a new Legion record Saturday with a 6' 1" high jump in his midget classification. Dan was competing for the Belleville Kinsmen Track and Field Club at the all-Ontario Legion Meet in Waterloo.

Other Belleville finishers were Joe Brask with a second in the hantam triple jump and Steve Montgomery with a third in the midget 400 metres.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, Aug. 16

Aries (March 21-April 19): Fill in all the details of whatever you're doing while the chance exists, expecting no favors. Meditation brings security.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Letting people settle differences among themselves may leave you curious about mysteries, but is the preferred course.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Experiments tend to work out poorly at the present moment. Find a new subject and begin research into its rationale.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Positive attitudes it's financially possible, and depend on your own resources today. Be prepared for changes in other people.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your group has set its course, so you may as well go along with them. Financial plums are better left in planning stages.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your current course is enough. Give routines another work out, expecting a good deal of cooperation, not much enthusiasm.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Standard approaches have become that way for good reasons. You may learn more of them from any speculation today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): Even routine runs uphill, with some demand that you add further burdensome chores to your schedule. Have the courage to say "no."

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your needs are not obvious to others— attend them wherever you find the best. Future planning is better undeclared.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Select tasks you can do without having to depend on other people's help. Avoid letting others needn't draw a reaction from you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 Feb. 18): Personal favors are not for the taking today. Revise your theories and programs realize you may have made a faulty assumption.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Whatever has been done recently displeases somebody. Letting people get used to changes gently is an extension of your compassion.

Union Group Backs McGovern

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of about 25 AFL-CIO labor unions announced Monday the formation of a National Labor Committee for the election of Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern.

Joseph Keenan, secretary of the International Brother h o o d of Electrical workers, said there were initial financial pledges totaling $125,000 from five of the unions for McGovern's campaign fund.

Other officials of the labor group included president Jacob Beirne of Communications Workers, president Floyd Smith of the International Association of Machinists and president Paul Jennings of the International Union of Electrical Workers.

The AFL-CIO executive council earlier adopted a position of neutrality in the presidential race and had said that each of the labor federation's 116 unions should make its own decision on the matter.

Tunisian Breaks Casino Bank

CANNES, FRANCE (CP) — "Gentlemen, the bank is broken," was the call at the Palm Beach Casino in this Riviera resort during the weekend.

And how.

Playing two nights at the tennis et quarante tables and using chips worth $20,000 apiece, a Tunisian living in Paris cracked the bank for a cool seven million francs, $1.56 million.

Trente et quarante (thirty and forty) is a variation of roulette using four decks of cards with four possibilities of winning—including the use of the red and black cards.

Observers said the man did not seem to be using any special strategy but benefited from an extraordinary run of luck.

In keeping with tradition, casino officials declined to identify the client, but said it was its biggest loss in 10 years.

Doubtful Kissing Spreads Mono

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 14, and think I have a problem but am afraid that if I tell my doctor he will tell my parents and they will be very upset.

I think I have "mono." For the last two weeks my throat has been sore and I haven't any appetite. I've been tired and weak. I didn't think anything of it at first, but my friends have come and asked me what was the matter. I told them how I felt and a couple of them have had mono and said that's how they felt.

My counselor at school has talked to me about how my grades have fallen. I act in class as though I'm about to fall asleep, and after school no laughing or goofing off or going out for sports.

I stay away from my parents as much as I can, and when they ask why I don't eat any more, I say I had a big lunch at school or stopped for a snack.

I know I am going to have to tell them sometime before my mother takes me to the doctor anyway, but I want to make sure I have it before I say anything to them. — L.P.C.

You've written a classic description of the way mono (infectious mononucleosis) acts. Ordinarily active, alert kids get the droops, are terribly tired all the time, lose appetite, frequently have swollen and sometimes sore glands.

What puzzles me is why your parents should be upset in case you do turn out to have mono. Parents naturally are upset if their children have anything wrong with them... but the quicker they find it out, the sooner it can be treated.

Mono is extremely common among people your age, or sometimes younger, and sometimes a bit older, and it is characterized as a disease of young adults. It has also been dubbed "the kissing disease," but if that is what is worrying you, just forget it. Mono is called that only because it customarily occurs at about the age when young people are getting to be interested in kissing—but there's no evidence that kissing actually has anything to do with it, because it spreads in girls' schools, boy's schools, and in all sorts of places where you can't blame it in osculation.

One more thing, treatment of mono is principally (although not entirely) a matter of tender loving care. Making sure you get good nourishing food and ample rest. It then becomes a self-limited disease, and in due time cures itself.

Forcing yourself to go on being active when you're too tired to do so is not good for you. Usually you get over mono with no after effects. But without proper rest, there is a risk of complications, such as liver involvement, which can turn a simple ailment into a more protracted and serious one.

So, my young friend, don't put off seeing the doctor and telling your parents. The sooner you go, the better for you. And there's no reason for your parents to be upset, anymore than they'd be upset if you got the measles or a sprained ankle or something.

There is no disgrace in having mono.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the cause of excessive watering of the eyes? — Mrs. L.

One cause is stopped-up tear ducts, so the tears overflow instead of being drained away through the ducts. But of course any sort of irritation can increase the production.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way to get rid of pinworms without using medication? — L.E.

Aid Promised

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Ontario governments are expected to begin providing aid soon to farmers in eastern Ontario hit by heavy rainfalls this summer.

The bidding:

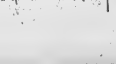
Opening lead—two of hearts.

The player who plunges gaily ahead, looking neither to right nor left, is sure to have his consequence once in a while. Bridge requires a leisurely approach, and often the supercareful player will collect very handsome dividends by adopting a slow and deliberate tempo.



Consider this deal where West led his singleton heart against six diamonds. Declarer did not take long to ponder the hand. He won the heart with the ace, drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the K-Q of hearts in the hope of finding the suit divided 3-3, and ruffed dummy's last heart before leading a club to dummy's king and East's ace.

East returned a spade and declarer had to lose another club to go down one.

The fault in South's method of play was that he failed to allow for the possibility that East might have the ace of clubs. Everything he did was right except that he should also have ruffed the A-K of spades before leading a club to the king.

True, the king would still have lost to the ace, but East would then have found it impossible to play the ace. He would have been obliged to return a spade or a heart, and in either case South would shed his other club loser as he ruffed the return in dummy.

It could not have South to play the hand in this fashion, for it would have guaranteed the contract beyond the shadow of a doubt if West's three club bid was based on second liberty, on a seven-card suit. The location of the ace of clubs, in such case, would not make a particle of difference.

Death of Genial Dan Blocker Hits Bonanza's 14th Season

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was the first day of shooting on the 14th season of Bonanza and the cast and crew were understandably tense, given the recent death of co-star Dan Blocker.

"Nobody said anything at first, which was a mistake," co-star Michael Landon recalls. "You could feel the uneasiness all day.

"Finally at the end of the day, each of us made a speech, and we all broke down. That was good. It acted as a catharsis and allowed us to get on with our work."

Landon recently finished directing a two-hour segment of Bonanza which will open the new season on U.S. TV Sept. 12. The show is called Forever, and it's a love story that Landon had written for Blocker.

After Blocker's death, Landon patterned the script to fit himself as Little Joe, with Bonnie Bedelia playing the Cartwright bride.

"The script is virtually the same as when I first wrote it for Dan," said Landon. He added about three lines to tell about the death of Hoss. That's all that needs to be said. It's not necessary to discuss his death. you wouldn't do that in real life. The important things remain silent.

"I don't think anything more will be done about his death. I suppose it will be mentioned from time to time. As in life."

Mike Landon seems to be still in the process of adjusting to Blocker's death. They worked closely for 13 years, spending long days together on sets and locations.

"Our relationship was very close, although we seldom saw each other off the set," Landon remarked.

Both Landon and Blocker faced the problem of maintaining their enthusiasm for the series during its long run.

"I think Dan might have been bored until he found enough outside interests to occupy him," the actor added. Landon solved his problem by writing and directing several Bonanza segments each season.

The Pains of an Updated Image

Raquel Welch takes a spill in a scene from her latest film, Kansas City Bomber, a movie she hopes will update her image. Concerned about the scope of the roles she plays, Miss Welch is not bothered about being regarded as a sex object. But she does want to play more "many - dimensional" roles. (CP Photo)

Tongue-in-Cheek Observations At Etiquette Topic of Play

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A whimsical, satirical look at etiquette will be the spine of the final production of Youtheatre '72.

Largely by accident, the full time, summer company had been looking for material when they came upon a relic text of etiquette left in the Pinnacle Playhouse from some bygone book sails.

"It had been sitting around all summer providing humor to the cast, who occasionally flipped through its pages snickering at many defunct aspects of etiquette," noted director Ted Bairstow.

In keeping with the very proper subject, the cast — who will improvise the entire production — christened the play, The Lighter Side of Amy Emily Vanderbilt Post.

The company began this week, scratching through the book for situations that lend themselves most easily to humor and satire and have begun sorting the kind of characters who will be most suitable for the parts.

"We seem to be spending about a half an hour talking over the part and brainstorming ideas and then about four hours upstairs on the stage putting life into the characters," said Mr. Bairstow.

The entire seven man company will be active in the production, scheduled Friday, Aug. 25 and Saturday, Aug. 26 staging.

Situations in the comedy will include: four people recruit while jostled in an elevator; how very proper people meet for dinner and how not-so-proper people do the same.

No admission will be charged to see the production.

Politics in the Movies
A Changing Attitude

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For many years Hollywood held to the maxim, "Political pictures don't sell." If that's true, then how do you explain the current success of The Candidate?

No film within memory has been more blatantly political. It is a step-by-step analysis of a California race by a young liberal lawyer, played by Robert Redford, for the U.S. Senate seat held by a conformed conservative, Don Porter.

There is no melodrama and scarcely any plot. It's a study of how a political candidate is "packaged" in the mass media, dropping a few of his ideals along the way.

The Candidate originated with Redford, who has a design to make a series of films depicting the American scene, especially on the theme of winning. It was directed by Michael Ritchie, who made Redford's Downhill Racer, and produced by Walter Coblenz.

The film has a script by Jeremy Larner, a worker in the Eugene McCarthy presidential campaign in 1968. A consultant on the picture was Nelson Rising—who helped manage John Tunney's successful race in California for the U.S. Senate in 1970.

"At a production cost of $1.5 million, the picture is bound to get into a profit situation," said Coblenz. He admitted that the film industry's traditional prejudice against political pictures at least partly dictated the modest budget.

Campaign expert Rising explained why The Canadidate may have overcome the public's apathy toward political films:

"Most of them in the past have been melodramas. The Candidate is the first to reflect the growing realization that politicians are real people. It's all part of the electronic age the tube has brought politicians into people's living room."

Professionals who view The Candidate are amazed that it could have been made for $1.5 million.

"For all the crowd scenes we used real people, not Hollywood extras," said Coblenz. "Sometimes we made contributions to political clubs. We did that to get 2,500 people for the labor temple scene, which was filmed in the old Paramount theater in Oakland."

The film makers even stole some scenes from a Democratic fund-raising dinner. By adding a later scene, Candidate Redford appeared to be sitting on the dais with Senator Hubert Humphrey and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

Pianist Oscar Levant Dead at 65

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Oscar Levant, concert pianist and humorist who almed his wit at his own eccentric hypochondria, died Monday at the age of 65. He had been virtually a recluse for nearly a decade.

Levant was an Academy Award-winning movie composer, concert performer, author and actor.

Famous for both melodies and maladies, he delighted in being dubbed "the male Camille."

"I'll admit I'm sick," Levant once told an interviewer. "I've always been sick. I'm a very neurotic man."

The famous insomniac said he spent most of his time after retiring from the entertainment business "conducting experiments of sleeping all day."

Levant's diet in later years consisted mainly of tapioca pudding, ice cream, diet colas, cigarettes, coffee and sleeping pills. He once refused to be interviewed until the reporter bribed him with two sleeping pills.

But Levant said he didn't drink liquor. "I don't like it," he joked. "It makes me feel good."

Kissinger in Saigon To Talk With Thieu

Trans-Alaska Pipeline Okay

WASHINGTON (CP) — Conservationists were blanked in court Tuesday as a federal judge gave the go-ahead to build the controversial trans-Alaska oil pipeline at a cost of $3 billion. But critics of the project will appeal the ruling probably all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge George Hart of the U.S. district court, where conservationists and allied groups have for 28 months fought off-and-on the battle to prevent the building of the 789-mile pipeline, dismissed all the legal objections they raised.

In a brief oral judgment, Judge Hart dissolved the injunction he had imposed in April, 1970, on grounds that the interior department has met legal requirements for allowing construction to begin.

Three environment groups—the Wilderness Society, Environmental Fund and Friends of the Earth, aided by the Canadian Wildlife Federation and Liberal Leader David Anderson of British Columbia—won the injunction 28 months ago by convincing Judge Hart that the interior department could not permit construction of the pipeline without first studying its environmental impact.

They returned Monday to argue that the impact study published last March still was inadequate and that Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton's intention, announced last May, to issue the necessary permits would violate legal land-use restrictions since the project would use up far more land than the secretary is allowed to authorize under the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

Hart concluded that interior's environmental statement "reasonably meets all requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act" and that the proposed permits "are authorized by law."

British Dock Strike Ends

LONDON (Reuter) — Leaders of Britain's dockworkers called off today the strike which has blocked all the country's major ports for the last 20 days.

A conference of dock delegates representing the 47,000 strikers voted 53 to 30 in favor of going back to work.

The delegates accepted proposals agreed between employers and union leaders to safeguard longshoremen's jobs in the growing waterfront switch to container cargoes.

The delegates' decision enraged militant longshoremen demonstrating outside the conference building in favor of continuing the strike.

One furious dock worker burst into the conference room and hurled an ashtray at Jack Jones, Leader of the Transport and General Workers' union.

It was Jones who had jointly devised the peace plan in conjunction with port employer Lord Aldington.

Jones said normal shifts would resume on the docks beginning at Midnight Sunday night.

But there were fears that large numbers of pickers might stay out on unofficial strike.

Main feature of the Aldington-Jones peace plan was that dockworkers displaced by containerization should as far as possible be given jobs at the growing number of container packing stations.

These depots now do much of the work that used to be done at the wharfside—to the extent that Britain's dock labor force has fallen by something like 30 per cent int he last five years.

Container companies usually operate their depots away from the ports and employ workers not covered by the high dock union pay rates.

To persuade them to switch to the higher-priced dock labor, port employers now will impose a surcharge on handling cargoes for those container firms which insist on continuing to employ outside workers.

Hanoi Envoy On Way Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two key figures in peace negotiations headed separately for South and North Vietnam today amid widespread speculation — but no official confirmation — about a new move to end the war.

With presidential adviser Henry Kissinger arriving in Saigon and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho leaving Paris for Hanoi by way of Moscow, guesses varied widely as to the purpose of their trips.

Some diplomats here and in Paris surmised that Kissinger, perhaps with a negotiating lure from Tho, wants to persuade South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu to agree to a compromise formula towards meeting Communist demands that Thieu step down.

Meanwhile, others suggested that Kissinger and Tho would report a deadlock in their secret Paris sessions, with Kissinger intending to reassure an uneasy Thieu that President Nixon will not let him down.

A Hanoi spokesman in Paris said Tho, a politburo member, was going home on a "routine trip" for the anniversary of Vietnam's August, 1945, revolution and North Vietnam's national day on Sept. 2. At the White House, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the talks' banknoes announcement:

Kissinger, who met Tho in Paris Monday, will confer with Thieu and others in Saigon until late Friday, it will report back to Nixon before the Republican national convention opens in Miami Beach next Monday.

Ziegler said Kissinger's two days in Saigon will include "a general review of all aspects of the Vietnam problem, including the negotiations in Paris."

He cautioned against speculating about a breakthrough in the Paris talks, and the trip had been under consideration for several weeks.

Meanwhile, sources in Saigon disclosed today that Nixon has ordered another round of U.S. troop withdrawals beginning after Sept. 1, when the level is expected to be down to 39,000 men. This does not include another 100,000 Americans fighting the war from air bases in Guam and Thailand and from ships off the Vietnamese coast.

Planning Demanded To Receive Asians

LONDON (AP) — The British government was under mounting pressure today to state its plans for coping with a looming influx of up to 60,000 Asians being expelled from Uganda.

Newspaper editorials warned of "threatening catastrophe" and urged "realistic leadership" as special envoy Geoffrey Rippon returned from abortive talks in Entebbe with President Idi Amin of Uganda.

Amin told reporters Tuesday he stands by his decisions that Asians with British passports must be out within 90 days and said Rippon, who had sought more time, "has accepted that."

Amid the political flurry, some practical plans were set in motion to absorb the refugees.

The Joint Committee for the Welfare of Immigrants reported it was flooded with letters from East African Asians in Britain offering temporary homes for the Uganda Asians.

The Quakers and the British Council of Churches planned to set up temporary accommodation. Christian Aid pledged to meet the expenses of volunteers helping in such operations.

Water Standards Said Ineffective

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's standards to clean up her waterways are "politically attractive" but "ineffective," says a draft document on water management policies in nine countries prepared for the examination for Economic Co-operation and Development.

The report for the international consultative body is critical of Canada's position.

The federal government's national effluent regulation program is "likely to be ineffective in enhancing water quality, inefficient, inequitous, productive of perverse incentives, difficult to enforce and hard to evaluate," the summary section on Canada concludes.

The regulations "apparently are politically attractive because they appear to be tough while, at the same time, they do not hurt anybody too much."

The first part of the draft document, which is incomplete, was written by Prof. Richard V. Judy of the University of Toronto's economics department.

When it is complete, the study will report on and analyze the government policy documents for water resources management in nine countries: Canada, Finland, France, Germany, Japan, the Netherlands, Switzerland, the United States and the United Kingdom.

Of the countries it is the most complete so far, with that on the United Kingdom also nearly complete.

It would appear that all the countries will come in for criticism but the section on Canada appears the most damning so far.

Parking at Picton

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "Smooth sailing!" Although the Picton police commission recently wrote to town council to mention parking problems on Main Street the apparent need for docking facilities was omitted.

This bright yellow sailboat nestled against the curb in front of a Main Street store yesterday, with its sail billowing in the wind. A nearby parking meter and a sign indicating a speed limit of 25 miles per hour were ignored.

The boat was on display in an order office promotion plan and actually was moored in a no parking zone.

Pedestrians and motorists alike did double takes at first sight of the latest in Picton's parallel parking.

Fischer, Spassky Draw

REYKJAVIK (AP) — Bobby Fischer was only four points away from the world chess championship today after a draw in the 16th game with defending champion Boris Spassky. Fischer led the match 8½-5½ after blunders by both players produced the draw Tuesday in a four-hour game of 40 moves.

Bomb Explodes

BELFAST (AP) — Four teenagers — two youths and two girls — planted a bomb that blasted Belfast's city centre today but sufficient warning was given to avert casualties. It was planted in an electrical wholesaler's store close to the studios of the British Broadcasting Corp. The store building was wrecked by the explosion and there was widespread damage throughout the area.

Talks Postponed

QUEBEC (CP) — Talks between Quebec government bargainers and a common front of public service unions were postponed Tuesday night until today at the request of the government side.

System Said Costly

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — If the federal government does not amend its new Bail Reform Act, it should have to help pay the costs to municipalities of administering the law, Syd Brown, president of the Police Association of Ontario, said Tuesday. The section of the act that requires a police officer to issue notices on the basis for court appearances will triple administration costs in Metro Toronto alone, Mr. Brown said.

Toronto Man Heads United Church

SASKATOON (CP) — The newly elected leader of Canada's largest Protestant denomination is a man who speaks of the "global village" and wants to talk with the Muslims as well as the Anglicans.

Norman Bruce McLeod, youthful and athletic looking at 43, Tuesday night was elected moderator of the United Church of Canada—a congregation grappling with the problems of union with the Anglicans and the smaller Church of Christ's Dis ip les.

The Toronto minister says he is impatient to complete the union "so we can move on to more interesting things."

"Union should be done and done quickly," he says. "Really, if it's not done within a year or so, I say let's pack it up.

"In the context of today and the global village, we need to be talking not just with the Anglicans, but with the Catholics, the Presbyterians, the Baptists and the Quakers, and go even further and talk with the Muslims.

"Anglican and United Church union? That doesn't deserve the word ecumenical in my view. It's just a parochial, narrow, in-the-family discussion. Let's get it over with."

Dr. McLeod said he isn't proposing a formal union with churches other than the United, Anglican and Christ's Disciples, but wants to develop better lines of understanding and co-operation.

The new moderator, minister of Bloor Street Church in Toronto, where he was born, was speaking in an interview prior to the balloting at the 25th general council meeting of the United Church.

He was elected on the fourth ballot by 439 delegates from across Canada. Second in the voting was lawyer John Black of Kingston, Ont., followed by Rev. Clifford Elliott, minister of Metrolitan United Church in Toronto, and Rev. Robert Henderson of Vancouver, personnel director of the British Columbia conference of the church.

The number of votes cast for each candidate was not revealed.

Pinnacle St. Merchants Irked By Planner's Parking Ban

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The possible loss of parking meters on Pinnacle Street has unified merchants into a protesting body which believes their livelihood will be seriously jeopardized by the move.

The merchants were alerted that a plan submitted to the city by the firm of Peters, Sims, Hubicki, calls for two-way traffic on Pinnacle Street.

After investigating the rumor, merchants found several versions to the story but each agreed that Pinnacle was to be two-way to accommodate north and south traffic through the city.

This will mean possible restrictions on rush hour traffic — similar to the Bridge Street restrictions — and possible relocation alongster of parking on the street.

The merchants levelled criticisms including "to funnel traffic down through Pinnacle is ridiculous. If Pinnacle Street becomes a two-way highway it will be the end of shopping, the planners are offering a short sighted plan and are doing a selling job on it."

The consultants presented the plan to the city who approved the plan — with some modifications.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told The Intelligencer, "the plan calls for Pinnacle being two-way, connecting with a new bridge to north Front Street.

"At first, traffic will be permitted in two lanes, keeping the other two lanes for parking. If traffic needs more space, rush hour parking restrictions will be imposed. If this is still not enough the entire four lanes will be utilized for traffic flow."

"The planners are doing a selling job and they are taking the line of least resistance," said one merchant.

The merchants want Pinnacle Street recognized as part of the downtown shopping area, and don't want it to turn into another North Front Street. They have a low opinion of the North Front Street area.

They have the feeling there is an accident a day on that section of the street which they term a speedway.

"Right now 4:30 p.m. traffic jams the four lanes," said one of the 25 merchants with businesses on the street, "what is going to happen when it becomes two lanes north?"

Another merchant said, "the loss of parking on the street will mean about $80 to $90,000 annually."

Another said he would experience a 50 to 75 per cent loss of business.

"If they take away the parking, it will knock my cash and carry business off the block," said another.

In an attempt to illustrate what problems they were having, a delegation of the merchants went, to a planning board meeting organized by the Rotary Club of Belleville.

"This was our only official chance to talk to planners and it was a farce," said one merchant.

The merchants are making another attempt in the form of a petition outlining their grievances.

The petition — signed by virtually all storeowners was mailed to the Mayor yesterday and is expected to be placed on the agenda for council meeting next Monday.

"We are taking the attitude that this plan is in the planning stage and we are making a proposal to amend it," said one merchant.

Conservationists Urge Preservation of Shoreline

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Despite development, the Bay of Quinte still boasts some of the most picturesque vistas, a meeting at Belleville city hall was told last night.

The same session may have produced a start on providing positive action to preserve them for perpetual public view by suggesting:

— Senior governments should act to preserve shoreline areas by land or easement purchase.

— Consideration be given to placing conservation and development decisions along the waterway on a regional basis.

The recommendations came from a committee raised by the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council in municipalities along the waterway, to make suggestions to the Canada Ontario - Rideau - Trent-Severn Study (CORTS), a massive survey of the 450-mile waterway between Ottawa and Georgian Bay.

The Bay of Quinte-Kingston sector, linking Rideau and Trent systems, is still under review by CORTS and the LORDC group is designed to provide grassroots contact for the federal provincial field study.

The proposals were produced after the committee was told by a CORTS spokesman that if municipalities did not act toward preservation of shoreline areas, they may have lost the opportunity in 10 years.

The warning came from David Bates, Ontario Land Inventory official with the Ministry of Natural Resources attached to CORTS, who joined the meeting attended by seven of the 20 - member LORDC committee.

Committee members in general noted they were not opposed to either industrial or urban developments in the Bay area, but were concerned with protecting its shoreline.

Mr. Bates noted that there still was much of the Bay shoreline area untouched, but some committee members pondered the trend already showing urbanization and industrial settlement in certain zones.

Belleville Ald. Arnold Orr pointed to the Ameliasburg township - south shoreline, which he said was once rural with a "beautiful view" and is now heavily urbanized.

"And I don't think you can have a substantial park on that shore. If anything it's too late. And I daresay there are other places where the same thing has happened."

The opposite shore between Belleville and Trenton also is dotted, blanketed by similar residential settlement, noted Bert Kenny, Quinte Planning Board director and chairman of the meeting. Another region was the scenic highway 33 from Kingston to Adolphustown.

"It'll take a long time before it's completely spoiled. But it's on its way," he said.

For instance, industries now under development in the Bath area of Highway 33 — notably Canada Cement LaFarge and the Ontario Hydro station — might have been set further back from shoreline areas, one committee member suggested.

However, another member suggested proper landscaping would help offset the visual impact of such installations.

Both key recommendations evolved by the discussion were initiated by G. D. Muirhead, Kingston's planning and urban renewal director.

One recommendation noted that the Kingston - Adolphustown stretch of Highway 33 and shoreline routes between Picton and Deseronto contained "some of the most beautiful scenic water vistas in Ontario" and it was desirable such resources be conserved for public enjoyment and the future.

The committee resolved that federal and provincial governments be requested to institute a program of land acquisition of shore areas and undeveloped lands along Highway 401 and 33 and the road between Picton and Deseronto "by outright purchase or by purchase of scenic easements".

The second resolution said development decisions outside of the Bay sector of the CORTS study requires consideration of the decision on "a regional rather than a local scale".

It recommended a "regional-making structure be established for the sector."

The committee also approved a Belleville city council resolution already endorsed by the Association of Ontario Municipalities. This called on the provincial government as "speedily as possible" to acquire recreational parkland along Lake Ontario's north shore and the Bay of Quinte.

However, the LORDC group added a significant rider: That such expansion be "approached with care and close consultation with local authorities".

Free Methodists Settle Here

Belleville is becoming headquarters for the East Ontario Conference of the Free Methodist Church. Another step in this direction will be taken this week when Rev. Paul G. Johnston and his wife Betty moved from Ottawa to 10 Walmsley Place in Belleville. Mr. Johnston is superintendent of Free Methodist churches east of Belleville. The Johnstons have three children, Janice 7, Michele 6 and Ruby 3.

Rev. Earl S. Bull, who is superintendent of the western half of East Ontario moved from Toronto to Belleville two years ago. The Bulls live at 40 Glen Rd.

The local pastor Rev. Lorne C. Ball and several lay members of the Belleville church hold key positions on conference boards and committees.

Cherries Are Ripe

Debbie Storring is one of 100 pickers working in the orchard of Alan Hyatt as East Lake this week to bring in the cherry harvest. She is gathering cherries from a fallen bough.

Picking Their Own In Cherry Orchards

EAST LAKE (Staff) — A "p . your own" plan in the East Lake cherry orchards of Allan Hyatt has earned enthusiasm from many tourists as well as local residents.

An orchard spokesman said yesterday campers from nearby Outlet Provincial Park frequently visit to gather baskets of the fruit.

The Hyatt orchards this week are employing approximately 100 pickers, 30 of them residents of Prince Edward Heights, the provincial government's village complex for the mentally retarded.

Among the pickers are a number of youngsters eager to make money for back-to-school expenses.

Th cherry crop this year at the Hyatt orchard was described as excellent owing in part to good weather during the pollination period.

Although some of the cherries are sold through the "pick your own" plan and from a roadside stand, the majority of the yield is sent to the Rutter factory in Prince Edward for processing.

The Hyatt orchard has 1,500 trees bearing Montmorency cherries.

Sewer Hookup Urged

TRENTON (Staff) — Council will launch a study with Sidney township in the next few weeks to determine a financial formula by which the town's sanitary sewer service can be extended into the township.

Decision follows receipt here of a request from the township to extend services in the care of only one householder located outside town limits.

However, Councillor Ted Parker told last night's council meeting "this is something we are going to have to deal with more and more and we need a policy."

He said Sidney should be responsible for the installation of any sewers hooking into the Trenton system and that township residents should pay at least the same amount as Trentonians for treatment of sewage.

"It would be a lot simpler if we had a formula now . . . in 10 years they could have as much sewage coming in here to the sewage treatment plant as we do," he added.

Mayor Duncan McDonald suggested Ontario Water Resources officials and the township be consulted on the working-out of the general servicing formula.

Overpass Takes Shape at Belleville's West Fringe

Highway Two's Four Lane Roadbed Being Built Near Wallbridge Road

Changing Face of Highway Two

While Quinte area drivers grin and bear road and bridge construction, there can be some consolation in the fact work is on schedule for the reconstruction and widening of Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton.

In Trenton, council has approved widening of Dundas Street East, the town's link with the new four-lane highway and work will begin shortly.

On the Belleville end, telephone poles and light standards are in. Tree removal and sewer building began this week along the city's Dundas Street West destined to link downtown Belleville with the new Trenton - Belleville thoroughfare.

Between the two communities, there has been constant reconstruction since the spring and the roadbed is down on many lengthy portions of the arterial roads. Curbs have already been put in on Highway 2 near CFB Trenton.

Viaducts to carry streams under the highway have been built in, at least three locations. One, near Wallbridge-Loyalist Road, has changed the character of a Bay of Quinte cove as workers fill in the north end of it with truckloads of fill.

At the CP Rail tracks at Belleville's west Dundas approach, the highway overpass is taking shape, again changing the character of its immediate area as well as presenting a solution to traffic tie-ups caused by waiting for the passage of trains.

Docks for South Front

The million - dollar waterfront complex proposed last month for South Front Street may incorporate docking facilities for its apartment residents.

Jack Sills, one of four Belleville businessmen involved in the development, outlined modified plans Monday to the city's subordinate planning advisory committee.

Although he rejected the idea of a full-scale marina, Mr. Sills suggested a retaining wall, similar to the metal wall built by Imperial Oil, could provide the stable water conditions needs d for permanent boat slips.

The developers are negotiating the purchase of 3.7 acres of land from Motor Schuster Fuels Ltd. Mr. Sills said a 111 foot long strip along the southern portion could be converte l into docking facilities — around a retaining wall s s built.

He also told the committee his group has decided not to include boutiques and offices in the plan, instead there will be approximately 79 apartment units, constructed in three low-rise complexes.

Next step s a formal application for rezoning of the land from industrial to residential.

Additional Docking Space Urged by Trenton Council

TRENTON (Staff) — The town will ask transport minister Don Jamieson to consider providing funds for construction of new docks in Trenton.

Councillor Ted Parker made the suggestion at council Tuesday night, saying he is personally convinced "with reasonably small expenditure, a lot of new dockage could be provided."

The councillor told of going to the docks here recently to meet an incoming boat, but there was no room for it to tie up. He said finger docks should be installed from the Chamber of Commerce building on Front Street south to Bayshore Park.

Councillor Peter Axix took the opportunity to reintroduce one of his earlier recommendations — that the ministry of transport be petitioned to cut down the number of times the lower bridge is opened to boat traffic during the day. He contends if the bridge opens less frequently, tourists will be forced to visit Trenton to kill time.

Councillor Parker said means other than this should be found to induce boaters to stop here and that docks would be a positive step.

"There is a lot of sense in writing to Jamieson, they (the ministry of transport) want to improve the Trent," he said.

Picton Rider Leads Field

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County horseman, Charles Culmer of Picton, dominated Sunday afternoon's horse show at the Quinte Exhibition with his outstanding American Saddlebred entries.

Mr. Culmer, riding the stallion's Bouquet's Bourbon Bob, won the golden saddle class. He also competed with "Bob" in a western saddle class for palomino and rode to a second win with the flashy Saddlebred.

Mr. Culmer later captured the western parade stake class riding his chestnut gelding Tails Star.

Site Plan for Cherneys New Store Is Approved

No date has been set yet for the move of a major city furniture and appliance dealer from Belleville's east end to North Front St.

A site plan of the premises proposed for construction by Cherney's Furniture World, Monday received approval of city's traffic committee — subject to some queries mainly involving parking.

The firm proposes construction of a building about 35,000 square feet in size between North Front and North Park streets, south of the Belleville Livestock Sales barns.

This would relocate its present operations out of the eastend Belleville Plaza.

Harry Cherney, president of the Peterborough-based company, said no time schedule had yet been set for the project.

Presentation of the site plan meant the company was "strictly checking to make sure what we propose is acceptable."

He set no estimate of cost on the project.

Empire-Building in Statistics Canada

Now It May Cost Us More to Count the Unemployed

BY FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

There have been recent stories that the federal government is considering producing a new type of unemployment report which might cost as much as four times what is presently being spent by Statistics Canada to publish its monthly figures.

Current budget for the statistical agency's labor force survey is just over $2 million annually. If the plan to publish the more sophisticated report goes ahead, the budget would rise to more than $9 million over the next five or six years.

This is a great deal to spend to let Canadians know each month that there is still between 5% and six per cent of the work force looking for a job. From the government's point of view, the proposed new report would make more pleasant reading. Prime Minister Trudeau has been unhappy with the present method of counting the numbers of jobless, believing the figures are not a true reflection of the actual state of affairs.

The present system of counting the unemployed has not been changed for 20 years and some of the people who are included in the totals probably should not be. Besides giving a more precise picture of the "true" unemployment situation, the proposed survey would find reasons people were out of work and check into their motivations for moving in and out of the labor force.

If Statistics Canada does go ahead with the more expensive system, the agency would be wise to cut its costs in other ways and cease the publication of some of the material that now pours from its computers and adding machines.

Statistics Canada frequently publishes information that is as much as two and three years old and which must be of limited value, even to those most interested in the facts and figures. The census always provides the agency with tons of material which is turned out over several years. A case in point is a recent advance bulletin on numbers of livestock and poultry on farms. This bilingual 40-page document is filled with tables of figures on how many geese, mink and rabbits there are in every census division in the country, and how many cows were milked the day before the census was taken.

The agricultural bulletin reveals such fascinating information as: "An increase in duck numbers was reported in all provinces except Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island and average flock size increased in every province."

Statistics Canada could also save money if it pruned its mailing list as hundreds of bulletins go out to organizations and individuals who have little or no use for the information. The waste baskets of members of Parliament and members of the press gallery are mute testimony of this extravagance.

A Saskatchewan MP, Bill Knight, charges that Statistics Canada is engaged in empire-building and notes that its expenditures have risen from $14.5 million in 1965-66 to an estimated $35.5 million in the present fiscal year. Full time employees of the agency have increased from 2,300 in 1966 to over 4,000 today.

The government has an obvious interest in making the unemployment figures appear as rosy as possible but it surely cannot justify quadrupling the budget for the labor force survey to achieve this end.

Name Game

What's in a name? Well, a great deal. A name can span a lifetime for the individual while for a community it is virtually immortal. Even when war or centuries of evolution change a community's face, the name and the legend remain.

Thus we have been wondering if any further thought has been given to the suggestion of senior planner Roger Truemner that participants in the recent public planning sessions propose names for the four areas of the city which have been under study.

Pointing out that the names could be incorporated into the official plan for future use, the Totten, Sims, Hubicki consultant said the task forces and general public would continue to play an active role right up until such time as the final plan is tabled about March of next year. That was earlier this month, when the four area task forces presented final reports and it is pertinent to ask if task forces and public are indeed thinking along these lines — perhaps turning over possibilities in their minds as they go to sleep (it could be more productive than counting sheep!)

Is anybody in charge of this particular aspect of the planning effort? To whom can names be directed when the muse strikes?

Whatever the names, we hope those selected have a touch of the exotic. Belleville and Quinte country are fine of course, but they are bespoken and some other names with perhaps a little extra flair like Medicine Hat, The Pas, Sault St. Marie — that sort of thing — would be interesting from the standpoint of residents and visitors alike.

Exhibition Grounds

It is evident from the recent planning force presentations that there is concern over the future of the Quinte Exhibition grounds. There is a feeling abroad that their use is perhaps not limited and so at odds with the surrounding urban setting.

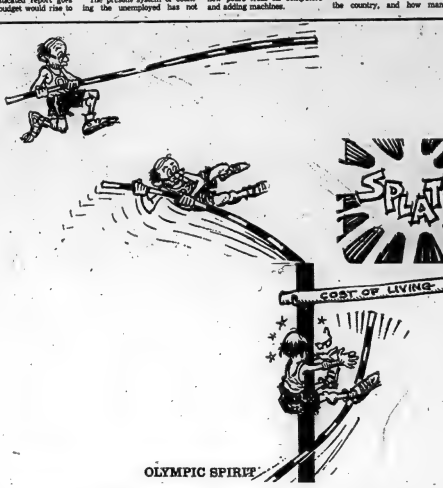
Of course there is no quick solution to this, no immediate answer as to the future of the area. The Quinte Exhibition has just concluded another successful 100-year exhibition and it is so much a part of the Quinte-area calendar, so bound up with the life of this region that its interests must be borne in mind.

Undoubtedly the official plan will take this into consideration and we can expect some suggestions along these lines. Whatever comes up, it will not be acceptable unless the continued existence and prosperity of the Quinte Exhibition are taken into account.

Tidying Up

Nothing has been done as yet to identify more distinctly the pedestrian crossing at Lobkow on Pinnacle Street where an elderly woman was hurt recently.

This crossing merits attention, even if only to renew the white lines which are barely discernible. Ideally, there should be a sign indicating that this is indeed a pedestrian crossing.



Meanwhile we see a start has been made toward tidying up the parking lot area just along from this office. Yesterday we noticed a young lad painting the stonework bordering the sidewalk. He had already made a start on some weeding and later he was busy clipping some long grass along the wall at the back.

There are doubtless other areas such as this around the city which are showing some signs of neglect and which would benefit from similar attention.

Old Print

We referred the other day to the Hastings and Prince Edward Historical sites published by H. Belden and Co. in 1878 and in a recent offset edition by Mika Silk Screening Ltd. of Belleville. Having another look at the interesting illustrations of area communities and activities we discovered we were in error in part of a review we made of this book several months ago. We spoke then of scenes depicting trains in the area of Mountain View whereas the picture is actually of "Mountainview," the home of R. L. Lazier in Tyendinaga township. Two trains are seen passing on tracks behind the farm residence and in the distance sailboats cruise on the Bay of Quinte.

It is something of a puzzle though, for we do not know any "mountain" there.

Insurance Industry Acknowledge Some Grey Areas

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

A while ago in discussing projected rate increases in home insurance I was somewhat critical of the insurance industry for not explaining itself, not presenting a case to the public.

Subsequently, the Canadian Underwriters Association did this.

The CUA distributed a three-page letter to members of the legislature and the press and some of the material it contained was enlightening.

Perhaps the most revealing statistic in the letter was the reported increase in the incidence of breaking and entering and theft.

This increase between 1966 and 1970 was from 136,286 to 235,176 for a total gain of 65 per cent.

As the association noted, insurance companies have little or no ability to exercise control in these areas. And, of course, they add substantially to total claims—and costs.

This growth does at least make increases more acceptable.

There is one area, however, in which the CUA statement is unsatisfactory.

This is on the root question of how much of the insurance dollar goes out in payment of claims and how much is spent on administration.

The most common criticism of the insurance industry, of course, is that too much of its income goes for administration costs.

A figure which has been widely used recently is that administration accounts for 45 per cent of revenues.

The CUA dismisses this by saying it is at a loss to explain the origin of the figure.

And then it goes on to make a rather amazing statement that there are no reliable all-industry figures for total losses as a portion of premiums paid and that those figures which do exist in any commercial, industrial and residential coverages.

Why wouldn't there be such figures?

You would think they would be elementary for any efficient industry.

And the fact they aren't available makes the insurance industry appear either as a sloppy operation or an elusive one that purposely is holding back this information for fear it would put it in a bad light.

Ontario's Historic Milestones

Ontario Archeological and Historic Sites Board chooses about 40 individual sites of "provincial historical importance" each year; the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada recommends about 15 across Canada of "national historic significance".

Both boards, which work in co-operation, have marked sites outside Canada and Premier Davis is going to Flanders this Fall for a ceremony at the grave of the poet-soldier John McCrae.

Suggestions come to Queen's Park and Ottawa from citizens, municipalities and historical societies. These local groups are involved in the planning and dedication.

In Eastern Ontario these sites are evocative of themselves, serving as milestones in a story driving through a piece of Canada that has a quite charm we sometimes think while it lasts and whose pioneers deserve more acclaim than they expected or we have given.

Who, looking across the pool and down that staircase of locks at Jones Falls can fail to wonder at the men who built this engineering masterpiece in the 1830's?

Robert Legget called it "the greatest achievement of Colonel By and his builders" and it was given special recognition this summer when a provincial plaque recounting its history was unveiled beside the locks.

It was one of about 50 monuments being erected this year in a continuing and considerable program to recall and retell the history of Ontario.

The sites and achievements are chosen from among several hundred which are suggested each year. The blue Ontario and the maroon-colored federal plaques are an increasingly familiar sight in the communities and on the byways of Eastern Ontario.

The temptation to digress or stop should never be resisted.

When it comes to catching muskies, Fred Mott, yard superintendent with the CNR here, will always have a good word to say for Crowe Bay in the Trent River north of Campbellford. Spending his holidays in the Campbellford area, Mr. Mott hooked onto a big fellow and after a half hour struggle landed what turned out to be a 33-lb. muskie measuring 47 inches in length.

Provincial Police softballers took it on the chin from airmen from No. 2 R. & D. unit, RCAF, Charles Public School grounds when the fliers downed the police team 22-10 in an abbreviated six-inning inside cut chort by darkness.

Faraday Reeve John W. Andrews, spending a day at Belleville Fair this week, noted the season was considerably later in the Bancroft area than around Belleville with farmers just now starting their grain harvest. Also in contrast to the Bay of Quinte area, there has been lots of rain in the Bancroft district, especially during the past six weeks.

Mrs. Kerr said bees are almost human in their habits of life, and she did not approve of referring to the inhabitants of her 325 skips as "insects". Bees are not native to Canada but were introduced to this country from Germany, although the Italian bee is the most popular in Canada today, the main source of the bee ranges from April to the end of November.

Hospital Costs Are Increasing

The Trentonian

There are two conservative estimates about 1973 hospital costs. According to the Ontario Hospital Association, "at a conservative estimate the gross operating costs of a typical general hospital in Ontario will be approximately eight per cent higher in 1973." According to Progressive Conservative MP, Dr. R. T. Potter, Ontario's minister of health there is no need of this.

According to Charles I. Black chairman of the OHA's committee on hospital costs, the government is limiting hospital operating expenses in an unrealistic fashion, with no increase to the people running hospitals. He singles out especially the fact that there is no control over doctors admitting patients.

Dr. Potter noted that he has no intention of asking the government to increase premiums, and said bluntly that if the hospital boards and the public cooperated, costs could be held. He argues that because of the ease of using hospitals under the Ontario plan, people are being treated in hospitals who could just as well be treated at home. To be sure. Probably also all of us run to the doctor more often than we used to, because it is "free". This is not to suggest we must be charged; probably the truth is that many who could not afford to go when they had to pay fees now can do so.

At any rate, what we have is the inevitable result of social welfarism. It is available, it tends to be overused, and gets more and more costly as universal ease of access. One cannot blame hospitals or doctors. They did not ask for this beneficial treatment. If those who did so thought it desirable, they might have informed themselves first of the fact that every country on earth that socialized medicine, finds it bankrupting to do so, because the system gets grossly abused.

But the social welfare advocates of our time are incapable of learning from any experience except their own, and by then it is too late.

Victoria, B.C. Retirement

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Just a line or two to say "many thanks" for giving me space in your journal from time to time.

I am convinced that the present government is irresponsible, and with your columnist Richard Jackson as my mentor I have not forgotten to say so. Cleaning out my files, prior to our departure, I have come upon a few more I had intended to the various big wigs from the P.M. down, and they all received the same back with an answer couched in gobbledegook and flannel. Reminds one of the old time insurance agent, you could not insult them.

We are leaving this part of the country for Victoria, B.C. and the nice part of it is that although we shall miss The Intelligencer, we shall have Rich and Jackson for company out there. Now that I have come to my three score years and ten, it seems quite a waste of time collecting some dividends from a life of hard work, and Victoria seems a good place to do it.

Thanks again for your co-operation in a good cause, and all the very best to you.

W. E. BENNETT,
Wellington.

Rainfall Leaves Ottawa Valley Farmers in Economic Bind

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP) — With 300 acres of stunted corn rotting in his puddle spotted fields, Pat Thibert sits at his kitchen table and wonders about how he can feed his 36-year-old dairy farmer.

"If we don't get corn, we're going to have let the whole damn shebang match go," said Thibert.

His herd of 70 Holstein animals to auction, the value of his herd is uncertain.

"I'm going to be selling them in a distressed market, because every body will be doing the same."

The summer rainfall in the lower Ottawa Valley—Mr. Thibert's farm is about 30 miles south of Ottawa—has been heaviest in either the farmers' or the weatherman's memory, more than double the normal level in June, July and August. The steady rain has downed low-lying cornfields and kept the harvfields too soggy to support tractors.

And the summer grazing land is producing poor quality grass that has cut milk production by up to 40 per cent, forcing the provincial milk marketing board to release farmers from their quota commitments.

"We've no pasture, the cows have sore feet, they can't lie down, the mosquitos are bad and the pasture's all punched to hell from the wetness," says Mr. Thibert.

A member of the "disaster task force" elected by some of the 8,000 farmers in the seven eastern counties of the province, Mr. Thibert is not happy with the Ontario government's relief program announced Tuesday.

The government has promised to match "dollar-for-dollar" any funds raised by donation to help the distressed farmers pay for feed this winter. The only other aid has been the milk quota suspension and a moratorium on debts until government-sponsored loan plans.

"What the hell use is that?" asks Mr. Thibert.

If you've got $1,000 you can get another from the government. But what do you do if you don't have it or can't get the credit to raise it?"

Mr. Thibert estimates a $17,000 loss this year—more if he has to sell his developed herd and then replace it—but says $11,000 will be just enough to keep him in farming.

A government contribution based on the amount of charity such as the Ontario emergency plan, would mean, says Mr. Thibert, that a farmer who already has a few thousand in the bank would get his money doubled, while the farmer with nothing would get just that.

Crop insurance is the answer, says the Ontario agriculture department.

"It ain't worth a damn," says Mr. Thibert.

The government crop insurance, administered by the province offers, in the case of corn, a 50-per-cent coverage of the farmers total crop at a premium price of $1 an acre. The coverage, and the premium price, go up with the number of years a farmer has subscribed to the plan.

But, for example, a farmer who this year bought his first coverage would be compensated for only half his total loss.

There's Even A Row Boat At Police Lost-and-Found

Thefts and petty pilfering are routine occurrences in Belleville, but unclaimed articles also turn up at the police station.

"The only thing now is stereo tape units from cars," says Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crudice. "It used to be car radios."

But the police often find that the owner doesn't know when articles are found. Like the stereo tape units the police found in a CN station locker. Because few people mark their units or record the serial number, the units can't be identified and returned to owners.

Biggest unclaimed item at the station now is a row boat in good condition. Police can't find the owner.

Another stereo unit disappeared last night from the car of a Montreal man. Thieves forced a no-draft window of the car, parked at the Black Hawk Motel. They stole a stereo unit and a briefcase containing personal papers. Loss was estimated at $90.

Soliciting Donations For New Arena Ice Plant

MARMORA (Special) — Marmora village and the surrounding area will be asked to donate $30,000 for a new ice-making plant for the arena.

Gordon Bennett, chairman of a committee of interested citizens, presented his proposals at the last Marmora and Lake township council meeting.

The present ice plant, installed in 1952, is worn out and cannot be used this winter without extensive and costly repairs. The committee decided the best course of action was purchase of a $30,000 ice plant that could be installed in the present building and moved later to a new arena.

The Dr. Crawford Memorial Arena is deteriorating and has been given a life expectancy of two to 10 years. Similar arenas in Lakefield and Huntsville have collapsed and another in Peterborough has been condemned and is being replaced.

A firm of consulting engineers has recommended that not more than 2 inches of snow be allowed to pile up on the roof. The large number of heavy snowfalls in the past two years has made roof shovelling a serious problem.

A new arena would cost about $250,000, Mr. Bennett said, but government grants would probably be available for a large part of the cost.

He said the committee feels that a community contribution of $30,000 for a new ice plant would make a favorable impression on government when the time comes for the arena replacement.

Defunct Development Taken Over by Owner

MARMORA (Special) — Jerry Coughlin of Toronto, owner of land in Marmora township that was once the site of a housing development has taken over the operation himself.

He told Marmora council that he has paid off most of the debts of Renato Homes of Oshawa, the firm that was to have built 26 pre-fabricated houses on the site, but is now bankrupt.

Only three of the proposed houses had been erected on the Marble Point Road property when the project came to a standstill. Renato left-swing several individuals and companies for labor and materials.

Mr. Coughlin said he had been unable to get any satisfaction from the company and will comply with new recommendations of the county health unit.

He said one of three wells drilled on the site was dry. Mr. Coughlin said financing a well for each lot was out of the question and asked about getting water from the village water system.

The future development of the lots is uncertain, and Mr. Coughlin said he would prefer to sell the lots to a builder.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID COOKE

Cooke – Reed

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was the scene of a double ring ceremony recently when Alison Thirsk, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Reed, Winnipeg, Manitoba, exchanged marriage vows with David Daniel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dan Cooke of Stirling.

The Reverend John A. May officiated. The soloist, Mrs. William Grant, was accompanied at the organ by her daughter, Miss Heather Grant.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of chiffon over-embroidered batiste, with an empire waistline and full bell sleeves. The wedding band collar was trimmed with satin piping and a long satin bow extended the length of the chapel train. Her elbow length veil was held in place by a lace band. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and yellow daisies.

The maid of honor, Miss Miriam Adams, and the bridesmaids, Miss Rhonda Badgley and Miss Brenda Baker, cousins of the bridegroom, wore identical floor length gowns of pale yellow flowered print accented with yellow satin bows. They wore yellow picture hats and carried baskets of yellow daisies with baby's breath.

Mr. Alan Cooke, brother of the groom, attended as best man and the ushers were Mr. Colin Reed, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ivan Cooke, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception held in the Church Parlors, the bride's mother received guests wearing a blue floral chiffon dress with blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The mother of the bridegroom wore a green and yellow floral chiffon dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke left for a wedding trip to Winnipeg. On their return they will reside at 215 Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

MADOC — The fourth meeting of the Madoc Potato Club was held at the farm of Kenneth Sexsmith recently. The meeting was opened by the vice-president, Terry Sexsmith. Club leader, Mr. Allen Sager, had asked all members to bring a weed to this meeting and quite an assortment of weeds came in.

The meeting was then turned over to Ray Pender, who read a film entitled "Crops and Robbers". It was very interesting and everyone learned a great deal from it.

The meeting was then closed and all enjoyed a lunch served by Mrs. Kenneth Sexsmith.

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. David Cooke (nee Alison Reed) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held in the home of Mrs. S. Magian, Winnipeg. Another miscellaneous shower was held in Belleville and given by Miss Rhonda Badgely and Miss Brenda Baker as co-hostesses. A tea and saucer shower was given by Mrs. Francis Thompson, of RR3, Roslin, with Mrs. Raymond Baker assisting.

UNIONDALE WI

FRANKFORD — Mrs. M. Bird was hostess for the August meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute which was held in Scott's Uniondale Hall with 14 members in attendance.

Due to the absence of the president, the vice-president Mrs. R. Burkitt conducted the meeting. Correspondence included a letter of appreciation from the Frankford Public Library for the book, "Ontario Women's Institute Story". Conveners' reports were given by Mrs. A. Sine, and Mrs. F. Phillips.

Mrs. M. Sine, program convener, spoke on the local history. She traced the history of the local women's institute, the two schools in the community, Scott's United Church, the Film Council, the Farm Forum and the two century farms in the neighborhood. An appropriate reading concluded her program on history. Readings were also given by Mrs. F. Phillips and Mrs. A. Sine.

Mrs. R. Burkitt expressed appreciation to all who had contributed to a most interesting meeting and a social half hour was enjoyed.

QUEENSBORO W.I.

QUEENSBORO—Miss Hazel Thompson was hostess for the August meeting of the Queensboro branch of the Women's Institute at her cottage on Stoco Lake, on Wed. evening, August 9. Mrs. Roy Rollins was in charge of the meeting at which 17 members attended.

It was decided to give a donation to the Centre Hastings Medical Assoc. and a 4H Girls Club will not be sponsored this year.

Mrs. William Cassidy, Family and Consumer Affairs convener had charge of the program. Miss Roberta Sager read a poem composed by Mrs. Arthur Holmes about the institute members' trip to Kingston in July. Mrs. Cassidy gave a couple of contests and Mrs. Declair read an article on hay fever: its causes, effects and aids in easing it.

Mrs. Rollins read a selection and at the close of the meeting, lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time enjoyed by all.

Art Show Successful

A highly successful art show was held in Northbrook, on Saturday, August 5, so successful, in fact, that the date for a second annual show has already been selected. It will be held on August 4, 1973, with proceeds to be donated to worthy causes.

Education Europe, a fund designed to assist local students to visit historic sites in Europe during the next school term, received $155 from 10 per cent of sales made during the August 5 art show. The project was first planned by Patricia Lloyd, of Northbrook, who received assistance from many enthusiastic workers. Roy Cadwell was master of ceremonies and entertainers included Floyd Lloyd and his eight-year-old daughter, Sandy, and Oddie Snider and 11-year-old son, Steven.

Bob Sodman of Star Lake Estates on Highway 508, donated small pine and juniper trees which were sold. He also loaned picnic tables for the event.

Less Expensive Cuts Not Used Enough

TORONTO (CP) — If the price of meat makes you nervous, there are somethings to consider before you become a vegetarian.

Helen Gagon says they include chicken wings, port shoulders, liver and kidney, utility turkeys.

Miss Gagon, consumer adviser to Ontario Food Man, says beef is by far the most popular meat and that consumers do not make enough use of other meats and of less expensive cuts of beef.

If you're uncertain how to use some cuts, ask the butcher and consult a standard cook book.

"A lot of people know the regular cuts and how to cook them, but to extend your knowledge and the range and variety of your meals, you need a good cook book.

"Not everyone realizes you can make the less expensive cuts taste simply wonderful. A lot of people are missing flavor by not trying those cuts, though women do need to be aware that if they're saving on the cut of meat, then it doesn't make a lot of sense to add expensive ingredients when they cook it."

A few herbs, perhaps garlic, and some carrots or onions can be used to flavor most slow-cooking meats. If you are cooking a pot roast, Miss Gagon suggests using consomme or tomato juice as the liquid, or adding fresh tomatoes in season.

If you buy a so-called London broil, usually a flank or chuck steak, she suggests cooking it just to rare, then slicing it diagonally, extremely thin, to serve.

"You can use a chuck-steak cut on the barbecue. Wrap it in foil with vegetables and give it a good, long cooking.

"You can also do braising ribs on the barbecue. I use a meat tenderizer, but you don't have to."

She says the price of prime beef usually rises in summer because of the demand for barbecuing, and says you may find bargains in other beef cuts then.

Those chicken wings can be stewed or braised.

"I put on oil, powdered ginger, garlic salt, soy sauce and monocodium glutimate, cover them and bake them. I've even gotten the kids to eat them because they've been so enthusiastic I've been embarrassed, because it's so easy."

She says utility turkey, Canada Grade C, is an inexpensive meat people don't understand.

"A utility turkey is a grade A or B bird that might have lost a part, a wing or a leg or have a bruise that has been cut out. But it is never less than grade B."

She says pork and frozen spring lamb can both be inexpensive and a change for the menu.

"There's a lot of variety in pork and there's no reason why you shouldn't use it on a barbecue.

"People still think you have to cook it at high temperatures or that it's fat. But they're growing it leaner, and experts will now recommend a roast be cooked to a temperature of 175 rather than 185. I like the longer cooking because I like the taste.

"If you broil it, you should broil it a little more slowly than beef."

No matter what food you're buying, she says planning helps keep costs down.

"Plan your menus in general, and I think it's good to read the ads.

"It's very trite, but I still recommend you take a list. I know people who shop with an estimated price for each item and if something costs more than they expected, they balance it.

"If you have time, do all the cooking from scratch to save; but you have to balance effort against cost. Sometimes it's worth it to pay for the built-in maid service in convenience foods.

"And many advisers say it's not economical to shop more than two stores looking for specials because you lose in time and effort what you may save on prices."

The next regular meeting will be held at the Prigg's picnic area on August 16 and will take the form of a corn roast. Members are asked to meet at the church basement at 2 p.m. where transportation will be arranged.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Must parents always be parents?

YES, and, of course, no. Parents must give a child confidence that they are always there to help and protect him. But every time the child moves, the parents need not react. If, for instance, the youngster pops up with a curse word in a fit of anger, his parents ought to let him express himself without lowering the boom on him. The youngster will feel freer, and the parents will enjoy being parents since their reactions won't be controlled by their child.

Are tax collectors insensitive?

NO; and, since tax people are human beings and able to feel the suffering and pain of others, that may be the chief personal reason why most taxes are collected by mail. Naturally, it would be physically impossible to deal with all taxpayers in person. But beyond that, imagine listening to each individual complain about having to pay taxes! That would be too much even for the most callous collector to endure.

Could fights wreck an engagement?

YES; and if they do, it is better then fights shattering a marriage later on. On the other hand, fights can certainly that is because a man and a woman to call it quits could have a beneficial effect on their subsequent marriage. The battles could serve as "warm ups" for battles again; but with all hopes that the next bigger fights after they marry but they could scrap when necessary without damaging their love for each other.

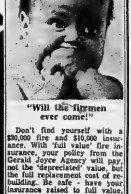
Ann Landers
Rehabilitation Institute Of Great Assistance

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who was considering marriage to a man who had suffered a stroke and was partially paralysed. She expressed concern about his ability to function sexually. I hope she sees this letter because I speak from experience.



Four years ago when my husband was stricken I was told our sex life was over. Our physician suggested therapy at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago. At the time it seemed hopeless but we went anyway. Within months he showed remarkable progress and now I can tell you that his recovery has been miraculous. Today he is a completely satisfying lover.

Please encourage that woman to marry and if she is lucky enough to live in or near Chicago, to take him to that wonderful hospital.—Been There

Dear Been: I do so with pleasure. The Rehabilitation Institute is one of the finest in the world. The director, Dr. Henry Betts, is a good friend of mine. Your letter provides me with the opportunity to say a good word for an institution that richly deserves it.

Dear Ann Landers: You told "Getting It All Together" that when a love affair is over the best way to recover is to put away the pictures, the love memento, move forward and not look back. I lost someone I loved very much and I can't get over it. He died. And he was just 18. The only comfort I have is looking at his picture, rereading his letters and poetry, playing our favorite records and reliving, in my memory, the wonderful times we had together. These things help me feel closer to him.

It's been only a month but I wonder if it will ever be any different. People have assured me that time will ease the pain and that one day I'll be happy again. But how does one get through the present? Broken love affairs are often repaired. People get back together again. But in my case it will never happen. He is lost to me for ever. The finality of it all has crushed my spirit. Please give me some words of wisdom. I am—Empty, Empty, Empty.

Education Includes Character Development

BY DORIS CLARK

A professor of political science suggests that one of the greatest needs of education is an understanding to develop character.

Here are a few character values that stand out: Honesty and truthfulness; trustworthiness; work well done. Kindness and compassion; the courage to admit mistakes; racial tolerance; respect for law; nonviolence in pursuit of one's goal; and respect for democratic rights.

Let's deal with the first one: Honesty and truthfulness: What could be more important? No principles are very meaningful unless illustrated; and a student should read about persons returning accidental overpayments at the cashier's counter, rejecting the urge to shoplift, resisting the temptation to cheat on exams, and so forth.

They should learn that it is as wrong to steal from corporations or the government as from individuals.

Just as much can be said about the other principles — and I plan to say it. Another day.

Dear Doris: I am writing to encourage the mother who has the 19-year-old daughter who is being manhandled by her husband and sons, to do something to help her daughter quickly.

What is wrong with this man? Instead of being a part of this, he should be giving those boys a good lanning; one they wouldn't forget. I just can't get her out of my mind.

As much as I love my husband I couldn't live with him if he ever did this to my daughter.

So come on, Miss, we are behind you 100 percent. Help your precious daughter now before it's too late. We know you are concerned or you wouldn't have written to Doris. We readers are anxious to know the situation is under control — A Very Anxious Mom.

Dear Mom: Several concerned mothers have written in about this. Social workers tell me this sort of thing happens a good deal more often than we hear about.

And to Mrs. R. J. M.: There is a large audience of readers who know what action you have taken. If you find it beyond you, please get to your family agency for the moral and practical support you must have your girl from irreparable emotional harm. Please, please write and tell us how your situation has improved.

Dear Doris: I read your column with great interest and think it is wonderful for people in all walks of life. I was especially interested in a letter sent in to you by a lady who was giving advice to "Bewildered" and gave her name as "Hold On".

If this is all true and real I would like to have this lady's address. Perhaps you could arrange so we could correspond to each other. This is the first letter I have ever written in this regard since my wife passed away three years ago.

But I was really impressed that a lady could be so appreciative for just going to a dance or night out. She really deserves to get a good man. — Lady Lover.

Dear Lover: You are kind. It is hard for some of us to realize just what one happy evening can mean to a lonely person. It is contrary to column rules to identify correspondents, but I can write to "Hold On" and tell her that you would like to hear from her.

That is, if your next letter to me identifies you with proper name and address. I can hardly suggest that she put a letter in the mail merely to "Mr. Lady Lover", now can I?

The 600-mile route from Fort Simpson, 650 miles north of Edmonton, to Tuktoyaktuk will be cleared by hand, at a cost of about $7 million to the federal government.

Rudy Steiner, project supervisor and consultant to the Northwest Territories government for the project called Hire North, has said the work will provide jobs for 250 natives of the territory for two years.

There are 10 settlements along the proposed route, ranging in population from Arctic Red River with 190 residents to Inuvik with 3,500.

No injuries were reported. The blaze was brought under control about 3½ hours after it was spotted.

Uganda Asians Prefer India

LONDON (CP) — Given a choice, most Asians in Uganda would prefer to stay where they are.

But faced with the threat of expulsion, the majority would like to go to India, with smaller groups selecting Britain and Canada.

Surveys taken in East Africa by the Minority Rights Group here, prior to Uganda's recent decision to expel 50,000 British passport holders indicated 87 per cent, if faced with deportation, wished to go to India.

About 18 per cent preferred Britain and six per cent, the third - largest sector, selected Canada.

A recent pamphlet published by the rights group, a large voluntary organization, says:

"Many of the Asians equipped for life in the United Kingdom could also fit into Canadian society and most would be willing to emigrate there. But immigration regulations are stringent . . . so Canada cannot really be looked to to alleviate the hardship cases unless there is a significant change in policy."

But Asian involvement in East Uganda was made a British protectorate in 1892 during the heady days in the last 20 years of the 19th century when European powers raced to acquire possessions in Africa and Asia.

The British began recruiting indentured labor from their colony of India in the 1890s to help with construction of the first Uganda railway.

But despite popular belief, the present Asian population throughout East Africa—totaling 200,000—cannot be regarded as descendants of these workers.

Of the 32,000 recruited, 16,000 returned to India, 2,500 died, 6,000 were invalided home, and only 8,000 remained. The majority of Asians, therefore, came to East Africa voluntarily.

From the earliest times, white British settlers in East Africa resisted Asian demands for equal political and legal rights.

But efforts to curb Asian immigration were tempered by the British administrators' need for artisans, clerks and traders, skills which many Asians possessed in abundance.

When the forces of African nationalism began to sweep the continent in earnest after the Second World War, most Asians were excluded from the popular political movements, creating a general feeling of hostility and insecurity.

At the time of Uganda's independence in 1962, Asians with British citizenship who had been born in the country and had at least one parent born there automatically qualified for Uganda citizenship.

Those who did not qualify automatically but who lived in Uganda had two years in which to decide whether to take out citizenship there or retain their British status. The Asians now facing expulsion are those who turned down Uganda citizenship.

LEGAL ABORTIONS

The number of legal abortions in Norway in 1970 was 7,803.

Britain Not Alone In Racial Problem

LONDON (CP) — Clashes between Dutch youths and migrant Turkish workers in Rotterdam have dramatized the fact that Britain is not alone among European countries in having problems caused by the presence in its teeming cities of ethnic groups from other parts of the world.

About two million persons of Asian or West Indian extraction have settled in Britain and the prospects of more non-whites arriving in a single onrush wave from East Africa is causing consternation here.

All this might prove of more than passing interest to colonial Europeans since the Common Market, which Britain is to join Jan. 1, provides for an ostensibly-free flow of workers among member states—so that Asians and West Indians with British citizenship would be enabled to migrate across the Channel if they can find jobs there.

Already West Germany, with a total population of 60 million, has two million migrant workers on its territory.

They have been going to the Born Republic from such countries as Yugoslavia, Turkey, Greece and some parts of North Africa ever since the post-war "economic miracle" opened up vacancies in West German industry for unskilled or semi-skilled employees.

In the better-off areas of West German cities there is no sign of this foreign presence.

But a look around any big-city railway station is enough to show the numerical strength of this foreign community—the "gastarbeiter" or guest workers.

Unlike the Asians and West Indians in Britain, many foreign workers in West Germany, Holland and elsewhere on the continent have come north without their families and for limited periods only.

Visas Refused

MOSCOW (AP) — Ten Jewish intellectuals who want to emigrate to Israel said Tuesday at a clandestine news conference it now is virtually impossible for Jewish scientists and skilled specialists to obtain Soviet exit visas.

TTC Workers Oppose Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A close union vote averted a transit strike Tuesday night but there were broad hints that the Toronto commission will help pay for the wage increase by paying more for subway and bus tokens.

The Amalgamated Transit Union voted 57 per cent in favor of the new pact in a ratification vote spread over two days.

The vote was 2,585 in favor of the new agreement and 1,966 against. There were 14 spoiled ballots. A total of 5,300 union members were eligible to vote.

In announcing the vote, Leonard Moynihan, president of the local said: "There will be no strike."

The strike would have come into effect today.

Blames Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern says President Nixon is at least indirectly responsible for the break-in and attempted bugging at Democratic national headquarters in June.

Representative Paul McCloskey told fellow Republicans preparing for next week's convention in Miami Beach, Fla., that failure to "make a clean breast" of the incident could doom Republican chances in November's election.

Five men were arrested during the break-in at Washington's Watergate Hotel and some have been linked to Nixon's campaign organization.

Eskimos Meet

PANGNIRTUNG, N.W.T. (CP) — Eskimos from across the Canadian Arctic are gathering in this Baffinland village to talk about subjects ranging from the courses their children take in school to the high price of a loaf of bread.

The 10-day conference opening today will deal with problems little different from those that trouble southern Canadians, although a decade ago both health and schooling were unknown to many northern natives.

Liberty Costly

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Calvin M. Fordham's three hours of freedom from the London jail Aug. 7 cost him an extra six months behind bars Tuesday.

The 19-year-old London youth was given the added time by Provincial Judge F. S. Gregory, tacked on to 22 months he had received earlier for breaking and entering, driving while under suspension and breaching a release bond.

To Visit Russia

HAMILTON (CP) — High school students from the Hamilton area probably will have logged more air miles collectively by the end of the next school year than even the most seasoned traveller.

The Wentworth County Board of education Monday night approved a three-week tour of the Soviet Union to be made next March by 50 history students. The students are paying the full $450 all-inclusive fare themselves.

companies he says have been paying a declining share of tax while cashing in on generous government grants.

Shell Oil Treasurer Frank Smith replied by saying his company had not "milked the government" and that it did not engage in tax dodges.

"Mr. Lewis is not really attacking us, but the existing legislation."

Mr. Lewis agreed, saying that he was not suggesting corporations should not accept built-in big-business tax breaks, but that tax laws should not permit them access to various loopholes, concessions and allowances.

He added that he was attacking corporations in one sense.

"They supply Liberals and Conservatives with campaign funds to continue supporting industry."

Lewis Agrees

Firms Don't Cheat, Use Tax Defects

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis agreed with corporate spokesmen that big Canadian companies are not cheating on their taxes.

"They are merely taking advantages of every defect that has developed in our complex tax system" and are therefore "getting away with murder."

Stabbed But --

Truelove Finds It's True Love

HAMILTON (CP) — Raymond Nordoff, 35, of Hamilton told a provincial court judge Tuesday he hopes to marry the woman he stabbed with a 10-inch bread knife March 24.

The stabbing victim, Melva Truelove, a 43-year-old grandmother, told the court she is again living with Nordoff and that he has stopped drinking since the wounding offence was committed.

Nordoff, originally charged with attempted murder, pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of wounding with intent. He tol dthe court he could recall nothing of the incident since he had been drinking heavily and had consumed drugs before it occurred.

A Hamilton police officer testified that Nordoff was found in a drugged stupor beneath garbage bags in the basement of the dwelling where the stabbing took place. Sgt. Ron Cruse said Nordoff literally died when his heart stopped after admission to hospital where doctors brought him back to life.

Sgt. Cruse said Miss Truelove told him she had found life with Nordoff intolerable because of his drinking and had told him she was leaving him.

The policeman said Nordoff stabbed Miss Truelove in the back while she was talking on the telephone, but the knife blade was deflected by her shoulder bone. He then chased her into the living room and stabbed her in both hands, the sergeant testified.

Miss Truelove managed to escape to an apartment across the hall. Under questioning by Crown Attorney Justin Dore, the woman said she was contest to have the charge of attempted murder withdrawn.

Nordoff testified he hoped to marry Miss Truelove when his divorce decree is final.

Judge Albert Marck remanded Nordoff out of custody until Aug. 22 for a pre-sentence report.

Plane Lost 15 Years Discovered

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — A single-engined aircraft reported missing in the Canadian Arctic 15 years ago with two men aboard has been found on Baffin Island, RCMP said Tuesday.

The only clue to the passengers' whereabouts was a note found inside the aircraft. It said they were trying to walk to a radar station 15 miles away or to the Arctic coast. Newspaper files show the pilot was J. W. Rutherford of Penticton, B.C., and his passenger was Dr. Randolph Hall of Toronto.

Police said the Taylorcraft, which was only slightly damaged, was spotted by Wayne Johnson of Winnipeg, a helicopter pilot on a flight between the northern centres of Pangnirtung and Longstaff Bluff.

Terrain at the scene of the crash was described as "extremely rugged," beyond the capability of most short-takeoff aircraft.

"It would have been virtually impossible for them to reach the station," an RCMP spokesman said. "It seems reasonable that they perished."

An RCMP ground party is attempting to find the bodies of the two men.

Woman Psychiatrist Shot by Ex-patient

VANCOUVER (CP) — A woman psychiatrist has been shot to death by a man police said was a former patient who had threatened her before.

Dr. Lilly Mordey night after she was hit four or five times by slugs fired from a sawed-off rifle. Police said the man, identified as Thomas Aubrey Phillip, then shot himself.

Police said Phillips was released last January from a mental hospital in Coquitlam where Dr. Chan had been on staff.

Police said Phillips went to Dr. Chan's office about 4.30 p.m. armed with a sawed off, .303-calibre rifle.

He burst into her office while she was interviewing a woman patient.

The patient attempted to leave but Phillips ordered her to remain seated.

Police said that for the next hour Phillips waved the gun about, threatening the doctor accused Dr. Chan of refusing to treat him and of being the root of his problems with women.

About 7:25 p.m., Phillips agreed to leave with Dr. Chan and her patient. The patient said that as the elevator doors opened, she and her bound escort gun reports and saw Dr. Chan fall.

Phillips ordered the patient to get on the elevator which contained another passenger. As the elevator descended two more shots were heard.

In the Bag!

TORONTO (CP) — Police are hunting for a man who walked into a Toronto-Dominion Bank branch and quietly walked off with $11,000 in a bag.

The bag contained night deposits, and a teller left it on a counter at opening time Monday. Apparently an early customer just picked it up and left.

Hormone Ban to Mean Higher Beef Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Higher prices for beef will hit the Canadian consumer as a result of the federal government's ban on the use of a fattening agent in cattle feed, an official of the Ontario Beef Improvement Association said Tuesday.

Gerard Hedley, the association's secretary-manager, said in an interview that the ban on diethylstilbesol (DES), a synthetic hormone, will compel farmers to use more feed to fatten their beef animals.

He estimated feed costs will rise about 10 per cent with the result that a decline in beef production will force up prices.

In Medicine Hat, Alta., Monday night, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said the use of DES is being discontinued starting next Jan. 1, partly for health reasons but also because of export considerations.

He said there is no evidence that anyone's health has been harmed through consumption of beef from cattle fattened with DES but food safety officials are not satisfied that all the possible effects on human beings have been studied adequately.

Church Union Plea Is Voiced

SASKATOON (CP) — The parliament of the United Church of Canada heard a plea Tuesday night from their own members and from Anglicans for a renewed effort toward church union.

Dr. Robert Craig, United Church leader of negotiations towards union with the Anglican Church of Canada, said the enthusiasm for the move, evident a few years ago, has been replaced in many minds by fear.

Canon Ralph Latimer, leader of the Anglican negotiations, said members of both churches should be personally involved in the issue.

Both men were addressing the 24th general council meeting of the United Church which voted to "receive" a report on the status of negotiations toward union. It did not take any action on the matter.

The two churches, along with the smaller Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), accepted last year for consideration of their memberships the draft of a plan of union. A general commission is expected to have ready later this year a plan of union to go before the general synod of the Anglican Church in 1973 and the general council of the United Church in 1974.

The "excitement" has gone out of the move toward unity, said Most Rev. E. W. Scott, primate of the Anglican Church.

Very Rev. A. B. B. Moore, speaking in his last address prior to the election of his successor as moderator of the United Church, described the change as "a mood of caution that destroys adventure."

Dr. Moore and Dr. Scott disagreed during panel discussion over the nature of nationalism.

This is an age in which resurgent nationalism is used to achieve some form of liberation, said Dr. Moore.

Dr. Scott said "a true internationalism" rather than nationalism itself should be sought by independent people.

China's Trade Minister in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Pai Hsiang-kuo, foreign trade minister of the Chinese People's Republic, Tuesday night became the first minister from Peking to visit Canada.

Mr. Pai was greeted by Canada's Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin after disembarking from a Canadian government plane which brought him from Montreal along with a party of seven.

Montreal was a stopover point on his journey from South America, where he spent the last two weeks visiting Peru and Chile.

Mr. Pai exchanged a few remarks with Mr. Pepin, shook hands with some Chinese and Canadian officials, then was taken to a government guest house. He proceeds today to Toronto to start the business end of a 10-day Canadian tour.

Clutching a red bouquet, Mr. Pai was pursued at the airport by about eight flag-waving children from Ottawa's Chinese community.

He broke into a brief, nervous smile by way of acknowledging their cheers, quietly said something, and passed through the exit door.

The whole arrival ritual, from landing ramp to limousine, took no more than three or four minutes.

Mr. Pai, 54, spent at least that much time sitting with Mr. Pepin in the motorcade limousine waiting for the rest of his seven - car motorcade to form up.

Mr. Pai will be back here Friday for official talks with Mr. Pepin, expected to bear heavily on Sino-Canadian trade relations.

Subjects likely to be discussed include the heavy overall trade imbalance in Canada's favor; Chinese textile exports to Canada, and a proposed civil air agreement between the two countries.

Students Being Urged To Withhold Their Fees

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario student organizations are attempting to convince about 50,000 of their members, by mail, to withhold payment of their winter university tuition fees.

The Ontario Federation of Students announced Tuesday it has printed 70,000 of 50,000 pamphlets explaining its stand.

The organization wants students to pay only fall fees when they register in September, while organizers negotiate for a rollback in both a fee hike of $100 and a $200-a-year increase.

Student organizations at Toronto, York, Queen's, Laurentian and Carleton universities have requested copies of the OFS pamphlet. University of Windsor student organizers said they will either buy or print copies.

May Expropriate

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — Robert Coates, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Cumberland-Colchester North, says Ottawa will ask the Nova Scotia government to expropriate an historic island purchased at a tax sale recently by a United States citizen.

Tricorn May Share Time with Bearskin

OTTAWA (CP) — The tricorn may get equal time with the bearskin if Defence Minister E. J. Benson approves a proposal for bicultural changing-the-guard ceremonies on Parliament Hill.

The popular ceremony performed daily during the tourist months by the Governor-General's Foot Guards—now is patterned on British military tradition, the militia sweltering under crimson tunics and high, black bearskin busbies.

Mr. Benson said Tuesday he favors the idea of introducing a ceremony based on French military history, using the long blue coats, tricorn hats and muskets of the Carignan-Salieres, the first French regiment based in New France.

The regiment was posted to Quebec in 1663 and its tradition was revived in 1917 when it was represented in the Canadian Forces centennial tattoo.

The ceremonial uniforms are in storage and the possibility of using them on alternate days in the Parliament Hill display is receiving serious study.

New Hydro Line Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — A proposed Ontario Hydro transmission line from Nanticoke on Lake Erie to Pickering, about 20 miles east of Toronto, would cut a path through some of the most scenic countryside in the province, a provincial inquiry was told Tuesday.

The Sierra Club of Ontario, a formed in 1971, suggested that existing transmission facilities be upgraded to carry the power load until 1975. Hydro then would have time to develop a terrain transmission method and routes, the club's brief said.

Charter Offices Close

TORONTO (CP) — Two local offices of a New York-based chain of charter ticket offices closed this week and Toronto police are investigating.

New Air Fare Consultants and Charter Travel Centre, both located in downtown Toronto, were closed this week and customers have not been able to contact the firms by either telephone or telex.

Company offices in the United States also are closed. Both companies are owned by Patrick Dulgan, of New York.

Toronto police are compiling a list of people who have paid fares but haven't received tickets. They have gathered about a dozen names.

Linda Bowles, 22, of London, England, bought tickets for herself and her sister from the London office of New Air Fare.

The trip, through a series of errors, dropped them at New York instead of Toronto and now they are preparing to finance their own way back.

She arrived with a group od 60 other people and said they all have forms for return passage, but it appears they are worthless.

CBC Picks Expo Game Over Nixon

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. will provide coverage of the Montreal Expos - Cincinnati Reds National League baseball game next Wednesday, rather than the U.S. Republican presidential nomination.

President Nixon, who is expected to win the nomination, will be allotted an hour of network time, between 11:40 p.m. and 12:40 a.m., for coverage of his acceptance speech.

A CBC spokesman said results of the Republican national convention in Miami Beach are "such a foregone conclusion that we decided to let it go by."

Montreal is 18½ games behind Pittsburgh in the eastern division of the National League. Cincinnati is in first place in the western division.

Special Licences Available

TORONTO (CP) — Licence plates with made-to-order letters and numbers will be available to Ontario motorists next year.

A special service, to be announced soon by the ministry of transportation and communications, will allow motorists to specify which letters and numbers they want on their 1973 plates.

The service will cost an estimated $25 extra on top of the usual $20 to $35 fee for plates. A ministry spokesman said the service is not a profit-making venture but merely an answer to many requests from the motoring public.

The 1973 plates—three letters followed by three numbers—will last up to five years. Motorists will apply by mail for vinyl renewal stickers each year.

The spokesman said that because of the heavy anticipated demand for the service, licensing offices will probably begin accepting reservations for special plates this fall.

Mitchell Sharp Reaches Canton

TOKYO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and his party arrived in Canton Tuesday, the New China news agency said.

Sharp is en route to Peking to open Canada's trade fair scheduled in the Chinese capital Aug. 31 to Sept. 2.

The agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, said Sharp and his party visited the site of the former National Institute of Peasants Movement run by Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the Norman B[illegible] Museum, and a park in Canton.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: Can you give any details about Mount Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota?

ANSWER: Carved from the solid granite of Mount Rushmore, about 25 miles southwest of Rapid City in the Central Black Hills, are the heads of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. Created under the direction of the late Gutzon Borglum, it is one of the largest pieces of sculpture ever completed.

The memorial signifies the distinctive achievements of the United States as symbolized by four great national leaders. Washington symbolizes the founding of the Union. Jefferson the Declaration of Independence and the Louisiana purchase. Lincoln the preservation of the Union and Roosevelt the expansion of the country and the conservation of its natural resources. Special terraces and marked observation points permit a variety of viewing. The visitor centre at the base of the memorial provides excellent facilities for viewing the sculpture. Short programs on the history and significance of Mount Rushmore are offered throughout the year at the centre.

The gigantic outcropping of granite from which the memorial was carved is at the top of the mountain, about 600 feet above the valley. Each face is between 60 and 70 feet high and is carved with such detail and expression that it is almost unbelievable in such monumental sculpture.

During the summer an evening program is presented in the amphitheatre at 9. The program recalls the philosophies and achievements of the four American presidents, describes the construction and development of the memorial and is enhanced by the illumination of the giant sculptures with floodlights.

The memorial is open and food and souvenirs are available all year. No overnight accommodation or campsites are within the memorial grounds, but they may be found in nearby parks, forests and communities. Daytime parking for trailers is extremely limited and road grades are very steep; the Park Service suggests leaving trailers at nearby campgrounds.

QUESTION: Can you give us any guide as to the cost of the average vacation motor trip?

ANSWER: In planning a holiday trip by car, the Canadian Automobile Association suggests you budget $46 a day for the time on the road. This would be divided as follows: $17 for hotel or motel; $16 for meals and snacks; $9 for gasoline and oil, and $4 for tips and other miscellaneous costs. Those figures are based on expenses for five people, driving 300 miles a day and getting 22 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The total could be more or less, depending on the style of lodging and meals. In any event, the CAA figures the vacation dollar on the road will be spent this way: 27 cents for lodging, 35 cents for food, 20 cents for tips and miscellaneous costs.

Manufacturing Output Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Shipments from manufacturing plants have increased by 11.6 per cent in the last three years, but the growth in output has been uneven across the country.

Statistics Canada figures show that the lowest gains have been made in Newfoundland and Quebec, and the biggest per cent gains in the already industrially-rich province of Ontario.

Apart from Ontario, only British Columbia and Alberta did better than the national average.

The figures are interesting because of the efforts the federal government, and most of the provincial governments, have been making to spur the development of new industries at least attract it to the areas where it might be most beneficial in the creation of new jobs.

The industry incentives, such as Ottawa's regional tax-free expansion grants, are not limited to manufacturing industry. But figures on manufacturing shipments by provinces of origin are more readily available than they are for other industry output.

Manufacturing shipments for all Canada rose 10 per cent in the first half of this year over the same period last year. Shipments increased 11.7 per cent in June from May this year, and some of the increases recorded by individual provinces were impressive when viewed in the short term.

Nova Scotia manufacturing shipments increased nearly 10 per cent in June this year. New Brunswick recorded an 8.5 per-cent gain for the month.

But more valid comparisons can be made only over a longer period of time—average shipments in the first half of this year compared with those of 1969 and 1970, two years in which there was little growth in over-all shipments.

Ontario shipments now ran at about $2.3 billion a month, up 10.5 per cent from the 1969-70 average. Quebec shipments run to less than $1.2 billion a month, and are up only 7.7 per cent. B.C. shipments now averaging $371 million a month are up 18.2 per cent from 1969-70.

Alberta's average shipments of $177 million a month have grown almost in direct proportion to the growth of manufacturing shipments for all Canada—14.5 per cent since 1969-70.

All other provinces lag behind.

Convict Explains

Job-hunting Bid May Prove Costly

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Frank Cecy of Toronto walked out of his prison cell at Collins Bay penitentiary June 29 with a two-day pass, hoping to find a job because he was soon to be considered for parole.

He returned with two jobs offers he doesn't know if he can accept because he was 25 hours late and faces possible conviction of being unlawfully at large from prison.

Cecy, who was serving a seven-year-nine month sentence when transferred to Collins Bay in 1970, told a Kingston court in Tuesday of his ill-fated trip to Toronto.

He said he left with $18, arrived in Toronto by bus and was given another $20 by his mother. In the same day, he was stopped by police and paid $26.50 on two outstanding parking tickets.

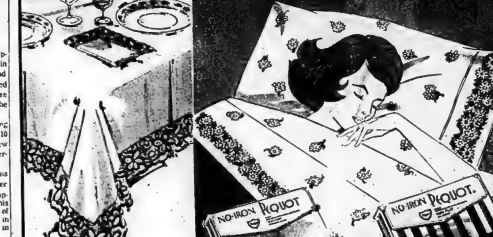
The incident cost him a job interview and widened the rift with Arm from May this year, and reduction. After a night of storms with cramps, he said, he went to two interviews the next day and was offered both jobs.

However the night he was to return he said he became ill again. The next day he said his girl friend drove him to Kingston, but 25 hours late, arriving a few minutes past midnight July 2.

A prison official testified there were four calls received at the prison concerning Cecy's return.

Acting Crown Attorney Peter Swann said it was "a unique case of being unlawfully at large."

Judge P. E. D. Baker said he will deliver his judgment Thursday.



Early Announcements Of Works Requested

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada's municipal affairs ministers have set ask a number of guidelines for federal programs, to alleviate winter unemployment, placing the emphasis on early announcement, prior consultation with the provinces and time to allow projects to reach a proper conclusion.

The meeting of winter employment programs in the past has not coincided and in fact conflicts with good budgeting practises of the municipalities in that it tends to destroy any priorities establishing in a capital program for the ministers said Tuesday at the conclusion of their second day of meetings here.

They reiterated the position taken by the Canadian premiers at their conference here two weeks ago that the federal government should announce programs to alleviate winter unemployment as soon as possible.

Wet, Cold Weather Has Reduced Attendance at Ontario Parks

TORONTO (CP) — A wet and cold spring and summer have resulted in sharp drops in provincial park attendance in Ontario.

"We're heading for one of the worst years ever, weather-wise, in our provincial parks," J. W. Keenan, director of the parks and recreation branch of the natural resources ministry said Tuesday.

He said figures to the end of July showed attendance down an average of seven per cent and day-use visitors down about 17 per cent.

The Kapuskasing district has had a 44-per-cent decrease over 1971 in park visitors and in the North Bay district, it is 49 per cent.

Camping associations and tourist operators say they have not experienced a drop but at the same time add that vacationers have had to change their life styles.

Bob Giles, secretary-manager of the Northern Ontario Tourist Association, said in Rutter, Ont., that of his more than 1,800 members, only those who had nothing extra to offer were suffering.

"It hasn't affected those people with good facilities," he said.

Jonas Bingeman of Kitchener, president of the Ontario Private Campground Owners Association, said:

"There's no doubt that the weather has been bad but that has only meant that people have had to change their habits.

"It's not too good for beaches and swimming but there's more to a vacation than that.

"Mind you, families that have prepared for this kind of weather are going to be a lot better off.

"Those people with a few children who are cooped in a small trailer with nothing to do are the ones who suffer."

Mr. Keenan said bad weather was the reason for the drop in park attendance but Mr. Bingeman said another factor was that overnight rates for both private and public campsites were the same this year—$3.50.

Rates last year were $2.50 in provincial parks and $3 in private areas.

Mr. Keenan said he is not alarmed by the major decreases in parks' attendance saying in good weather there is an overuse.

The province operates 115 parks, 90 per cent of which provide camping facilities. Last year, the parks accommodated 13,650,000 day visitors and 1,502,000 campers.

Midland Inquest To Start

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — An inquest begins today into the death of 10 persons, seven of them children, who drowned in the chilly waters of Georgian Bay during a July 23 boating accident.

Coroner Dr. I. T. Weldon said Tuesday he expected the inquest would be completed in one day.

Drowned were Richard Contois, his children Martin, 9, Anthony, 8, Nanette, 4, and a ward Sheila Ryan, 2.

Also drowned were Richard's brother Eugene, his wife, Patricia, and his children Karen, 9, Michael, 7, and Danny, 4.

Only survivors were Richard's wife, Claudia, and her daughter, Monica, 10.

Monica had to tread water for an hour until picked up by a passing boat and Mrs. Contois a non-swimmer, floated to shore.

The bodies of all the victims were recovered within a week by the provincialpolice and the 14-foot aluminum boat that carried them to their death was raised from 55 feet of water eight days after the tragedy.

A tag on the back of the boat specified its maximum load at 650 pounds, but police said later that the boat, which carried a week's camping supplies as well as 12 people, was overloaded by 450 pounds when it sank.

When the boat was recovered police said the plugs from its three flotation tanks were missing.

Mennonite Buggy Ride Explained

LISTOWEL, Ont. (CP) — The case of the 60-mile-an-hour buggy was cleared up in court Tuesday.

Crown Counsel D. G. Page told the court that a resident recently heards sounds in the night and saw two men in a car doing 60, one sitting in the open trunk hauling his buggy.

Later this horse-drawn vehicle was ditched and another taken.

Kenneth J. Schmidt, 21, of Kitchener, and Mark D. Leis, 18, of nearby Millbank, pleaded guilty to stealing them both and were given conditional discharges.

The prisoners and the owners all are Mennonites, a religious sect whose elders tend to stick to old ways.

Legal Aid defence counsel said the two accused had attended a weiner roast and had had too much to drink.

Stapleton Waited for Opening

TORONTO (CP) — Pat Stapleton passed up surgery on a gimpy left knee after the last National Hockey League season because he knew there was a chance he might be selected for Team Canada.

He was aware, and doctors confirmed at season's end, the knee needed doctoring. It left him with a choice: Have it operated on and forget about playing the Russians, or play with the pain and have the surgery later.

"It was in the back of my mind then that I might be asked to play in the series against Russia," the 32-year-old Chicago Black Hawk defenceman said Tuesday. "Dr. (Ted) Fox set a date, I think it was the 15th of June, that would be the latest possible date for the operation so that I could hope to be skating by Oct. 1.

"That way, it would have been impossible to play in this series. I decided then to forget about the surgery."

Stapleton worked daily this summer to strengthen his knee. His showing Tuesday in Team Canada's first scrimmage in preparation for the September exhibition series against Russia didn't give any indication the knee was bothering him.

PAT STAPLETON

"It's 50-50," he said later en route to see physiotherapist Karl Ellerl for treatment. "But there's no comparison to the way it was in the playoffs."

The same knee required surgery in 1970 when the Sarnia, Ont., native slammed into a goalpost. Similar operations had been performed successfully by Dr. Fox on linebacker Chuck Hawley and running back Gayle Sayers of Chicago Bears.

But last season Chicago coach Billy Reay said Stapleton's effectiveness had diminished because of the knee.

"The two muscles above and below the knee are tied together," Stapleton said. "A little tear developed.

"That's the problem. So the only solution other than operating again is to tone the muscle as much as possible."

Didn't his Chicago employers advise him to have the operation done so he'd be ready for the 1972-73 NHL season?

"No, they didn't say anything to me about it," Stapleton replied. "It was my decision."

When does he plan to have the operation?

"I've put it out of my mind. I don't even want to think about it."

Jets Sign 7th NHLer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Forward Ab McDonald, a 14-year National Hockey League veteran Tuesday signed a contract to play with Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

Jets' owner Ben Hatskin released no details of the contract which reunites McDonald with a former junior and NHL teammate, Bobby Hull, who is the Jets' player-coach.

Hatskin also announced the club has sold radio broadcast rights to Winnipeg station CJOB. The station will broadcast all Winnipeg games including exhibitions and playoffs.

In announcing the signing of McDonald, a native of Winnipeg, Hatskin said the 35-year professional performer is "the type of player we need for our younger guys."

McDonald, who played last season with Detroit Red Wings of the NHL and Tidewater of the American League was a member of Chicago's original scooter line with Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram.

After playing junior hockey with Hull for St. Catharines of the Ontario Hockey Association, McDonald turned pro with Rochester of the American League in 1956. He has played for Montreal, Detroit, Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh and St. Louis of the NHL.

He is the 16th player, and seventh former NHLer signed by Winnipeg.

Deadline Later

TORONTO (CP) — Lucky coupon holders seeking tickets to the Montreal and Toronto games in the Canada-Russia series will have an extra week to pick them up, Hockey Canada said Tuesday.

A spokesman for Hockey Canada said the original deadline for exchanging lucky coupons—and $15—for a pair of hockey tickets to the two games in the East, has been extended to Aug. 26 from Aug. 19.

Deadline for picking up tickets to the Winnipeg and Vancouver games remains Aug. 26 as originally announced.

The spokesman said the total of 371,783 letters, each seeking a pair of tickets to one of the four games scheduled—from East to West—on Sept. 2, 4, 6, 8, was far greater than expected, causing delay in the draw procedure.

Russian Weakness?

Sinden Wants Lots of Shots

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Sinden hopes to get the jump on the Russians by having Team Canada come out shooting when the two teams meet in their long-awaited exhibition hockey series in September.

Before the team of National Hockey League players held their first scrimmage Tuesday, the general manager coach said: "Get used to the idea that we're going to shoot a hell of a lot."

After the Reds downed the Whites 3-1 on the strength of Paul Henderson's two goals, Sinden and assistant coach John Ferguson agreed there had been enough shooting.

"Their timing isn't right yet, but it'll come. We'll keep reminding them to shoot," said Sinden whose theory is that one weakness in the Russian teams is their goaltending, particularly on long shots.

Sinden and Ferguson also agreed after the scrimmage that the players were going all out.

The camp, which includes full practice games at Maple Leaf Gardens Aug. 22, 26 and 29, leads up to the four-game Canadian end of the series at Montreal Sept. 2; Toronto Sept. 4, Winnipeg Sept. 6 and Vancouver Sept. 8.

One of the most impressive lines on the ice Tuesday was the Reds' unit of centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers and his Toronto Maple Leaf wingers, Henderson and Ron Ellis.

Sinden said both Henderson and Ellis are fast skaters "and I knew Clarke would be able to get the puck to them."

Clarke also was a noted forechecker "which will work well with them because Ellis is quick to get back for backchecking."

"Henderson, of course, is quick and fast and good in all areas."

Hockey Canada, the agency under which Team Canada was established, announced Tuesday the appointment of NHL statistician Ron Andrews in that same capacity with the Canada team.

JOHN FERGUSON

Keon Unsigned With Anyone

TORONTO (CP) — Rumors that Dave Keon had signed with Ottawa Nationals of the World Hockey Association were denied Tuesday by his business partner and manager, Mike Elik. Keon, veteran centre and captain of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, had negotiated Monday with Leaf general manager Jim Gregory, Elik said, but no further negotiations are planned with either Toronto or Ottawa.

Ferguson Family In

TORONTO (CP) — John Ferguson, assistant coach of Team Canada, won't have to worry about wrangling a pair of tickets for his family to see the opening game of an exhibition hockey series with Russia in September.

The name of his 13-year-old daughter, Christine, was drawn in the lottery in Montreal for the opening game of the eight-game series at The Forum.

"I wrote her name on a coupon from a newspaper here in Toronto before I left for Russia," Ferguson said Tuesday. "She got the letter yesterday saying her name had been drawn and she telephoned me at the hotel to let me know.

"They're great seats. Row A, box seats."

Gullett Looks Like Old Self

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"That was as close as being there," Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench said of batterymate Don Gullett.

How's that again?

"I can't tell if I'm back to myself just yet," Gullett added.

Gullett posted a 16 6 National League pitching record last season and had been expected to be a major factor in the Reds' drive to the top of the West Division this year.

But the 21 year-old left-hander contracted hepatitis in January and had been virtually useless to the baseball club this season.

But Tuesday night Bench said: "His ball really jumped around. It was three or four times as close as it usually is. He was getting them."

Gullett came out of the bull pen and, for the next eight innings, hurled four-hit shutout ball, striking out eight and walking just one to provide the Reds with a 2-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies.

Elsewhere Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 8-6, New York Mets blanked Atlanta Braves 3-0, San Francisco Giants beat Chicago Cubs 7-5, San Diego Padres slugged St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 and Montreal Expos edged Houston Astros 3-2 in 10 innings.

In full physical great," Gullett said after helping the Reds to widen their division lead to 6½ games over Houston. "But it's only the first nc second time I've gone e ight innings this season.

"I need three or four like that to tell if I'm back."

Tony Perez singled home the only run the Reds needed in the first inning and later scored once more in the fifth on Bobby Tolan's RBI single over Wayne Twitchell's wild pitch. Their attempt that allowed Joe Morgan to scamper home from third.

The Dodgers, edging within two games of the second-place Astros in the West, used Willie Davis' two-run homer in the sixth inning, his third round tripper in two games, to turn back the Pirates.

The Mets, celebrating an anniversary of sorts, began dreaming of their glory season of 1969. It was then years ago that New York, 9½ games behind first-place Chicago, began their incredible charge toward the top of the East Division, a drive that carried them right to victory in the World Series.

Monday trail first-place Pittsburgh by nine games.

"Nothing is impossible," Jim McAndrew said before he and reliever Tug McGraw combined for a five-hit shutout against the Braves.

Ed Kranepool drove in two runs with a double and a single and Tommie Agee hit a two-run homer to lead the Mets past Atlanta.

Rookie Garry Maddox of the Giants drove in six runs with a pair of homers, one of them his first major league grand-slam. It enabled Juan Marichal, 5 13, to post his first victory in more than a month.

Clarence Gaston and Fred Kendall drove in two runs apiece and Mike Caldwell scattered six hits to carry the Padres past the Cardinals.

And Mike Jorgensen drove in two Expos runs, the latter a tie-breaking two-out single in the 10th inning that turned back the Astros.

Add Drabowsky

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox have signed veteran pitcher Moe Drabowsky, recently released by St. Louis Cardinals.

Drabowsky, 37, had a 1 1 record with the Cardinals in 28 relief appearances with a 2.42 earned-run average and two saves.

Red Sox Have Fun

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Boston Red Sox pulled the curtain down on Texas Rangers' last 6 runs rambling like the act they played in the dressing room afterwards.

After beating the Rangers 3-0 on John Curtis' three-hitter Tuesday night.

Tommy Harper helped play a joke on Ralph Houk Smith, who hit home runs, wouldn't talk to anybody and manager Eddie Kasko was extremely short of patience.

The Red Sox, who are reported to have had internal problems of late with players of sparring verbally, appeared to level some of their frustrations ...directed at Houk's Tuesday night's game in Arlington.

Harper sat on Smith's stool while a Texas broadcaster mistakenly congratulated him on his two-night spell. The head of the Red Sox laughed at the broadcaster's blunder.

Then, when Smith finally appeared at his locker, he refused to answer questions. Staring blankly while he was questioned, the Red Sox outfielder soon strolled away to shave.

Kasko, when later facing the same reporters, kept his comments short.

Things were relatively tame around the rest of the American League as Minnesota Twins tripped Detroit Tigers 7-6 in 13 innings, Cleveland Indians beat California Angels 4-3 in 10 innings, Kansas City Royals turned back New York Yankees 7-6 and Chicago White Sox trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 2-1.

The victory moved the fourth-place Red Sox within four games of the leading Baltimore Orioles in the tight American League East race. The Orioles were idle Tuesday night.

Jim Nettles and Rod Carew each singled in a run as Minnesota rallied to beat Detroit in the 13th inning. The burst broke a 5-5 tie and offset a run in the Tigers' 12th of their frame on Gates Brown's homer.

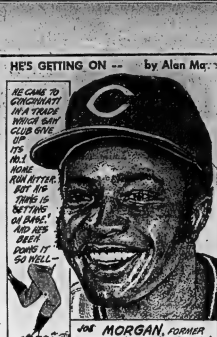
The second-place Tigers dropped 1½ games behind the Orioles and maintained a half-game lead on the Yankees, who are in third place.

Boycott May Backfire

MUNICH (CP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, warned today that African teams that boycott the Munich Games endangered their participation in future Olympics.

In a strongly-worded statement, Brundage also warned that the national Olympic committee of boycotting nations stood to lose their recognition by the International Olympic Committee.

Brundage's statement came after six black African nations served notice they would withdraw their teams from the Munich Games because of the participation of athletes from the breakaway British colony of Rhodesia. The six cited the alleged racial policies of the white government in Salisbury.



Track Team Trimmed

TORONTO (CP) — The manager of Canada's track and field team heading for the Summer Olympics in Munich, Germany, said Tuesday night that Health Minister John Munro's plea for compassion on behalf of 19 athletes dropped from the team has been declined in all but one case.

George Arnold said the Canadian Olympic Association gave an 11th-hour reprieve to Vancouver high jumper Rick Cutteil but that five others named to the official team were dropped for medical reasons and said Olympian performances in recent meets.

Arnold said Canada would be represented in Germany by only 33 track and field athletes, four fewer than the number originally approved by the COA and 14 fewer than the number originally announced by the Canadian Track and Field Association.

Latest scratches from the team, said Arnold, were long jumper Mike Macon of Vancouver, runners Brenda Walsh and Liz Vandersteam of Edmonton and Joan McTaggart of Saskatoon and long jumper Joan Hendry of Ottawa.

Vijuk Leo's Latest Headache

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Cahill hasn't got enough problems trying to sort out the early-season Toronto Argonaut ordeals. He also has Joe Vijuk.

Vijuk, the defensive end who already has retired and unretired from the Eastern Football Conference club this year, was suspended Tuesday on the eve of Argos' game with Ottawa Rough Riders for not showing up at practice Monday.

"I don't even want to talk about the reason he didn't show up," said Cahill. "Just say he was suspended for not coming to practice."

The Argonauts' loss and the Rough Riders' win are their first two games of the Canadian Football League season.

Vijuk's place on the active roster will be filled by running back Ray Lancaster, a Toronto youngster with football back ground at Xavier University in Cincinnati.

Vijuk, a Windsor, Ont., native, played one season with Ottawa and was traded to Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Conference for fullback Dennis Duncan.

He never did get to wear a Winnipeg uniform, returning east to the Argos last year with Ward Smith in a trade for quarterback Don Jonas who emerged as the outstanding football player in Canada in 1971.

The Riders, in addition to their unblemished season's record, carry with them into Ottawa centuck Jack Gotta a pre-season game before that Toronto.

"They were lurped, all right," Cahill admitted. "We'll be hyped for this one."

Leonard Top Senior

HULL, Que. (CP) — Vancouver golfer Stan Leonard won a sudden-death playoff from Pat Fletcher of Montreal on the first extra hole to take the 36-hole Canadian Professional-Post Associated Seniors Championship Tuesday.

Leonard scored a 73 Tuesday to bring him even with Fletcher, whose 72 Monday was the best during the open-day competition. The championship was held at Hull's Rivermead course.

Leonard had a 74 Monday, while Fletcher's had 75 Tuesday. Both ended up with totals of 147.

The two golfers went back to the first tee and Leonard made par on the hole to win.

Leonard won $750 for his first-place finish. Fletcher $500 for second and Dick Borthwick of Hamilton took $450 for his third place.

Fletcher, last Canadian to win the Canadian Open Championship, has never won the seniors play, but this was the second time he has been runnerup. The seniors match is restricted to golfers 50 years old and over. Both Leonard and Fletcher are 57.

The seniors tournament served as a preliminary to the CPGA contest which begins Thursday and continues to Saturday.

Alouettes Pilfer Eagles' Pick

MONTREAL (CP) — Dan Yochum, the No. 2 draft choice of Philadelphia Eagles of the N a t i o n a l Football League, signed Tuesday with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

The signing came as a bit of a surprise to the Eagles, who felt they had agreed to terms Monday with the 209-pound lineman, who played last season with Syracuse University.

Yochum, who will be 22 this Saturday, is a native of Bethlehem, Pa.

Top Seed Won't Snap

TORONTO (CP) — Fourth-seeded Ilie Nastase eventually clicked Tuesday after a first-round scare in the $72,500 Canadian open tennis tournament.

McMillan started snapping his fingers as Nastase was winding up to serve the first of two match points which he lost before beating the South African 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

The incident occurred during the 12th game of the first set in which McMillan won to force a best-of-nine points tie-breaker that the Rumanian acquired to take the match.

Nastase said the finger snapping upset his concentration at a crucial point but McMillan said: "I was only reminding myself that I should keep my first serve straight and that match point was coming up."

The biggest surprise of the day was engineered by Andrea Martin of Toronto who upset Brenda Kirk, the heroine of South Africa's Federation Cup final victory over Great Britain, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Peter Burwash of Toronto, ranked No. 1 in Canada, was eliminated 5-7, 7-6 by Jaime Pinto, the second-ranked Chilean in the tournament.

Frazier Idle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — No guarantees for a heavyweight title return match between champion Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali are at an impasse. The World Boxing Association has ordered Frazier to defend his title against a ranking contender, notably Ali, and has threatened to lift the title if he fails to comply. Frazier has not defended against a fighter in the top 10 heavyweight rankings in nearly a year and a half.

Frazier has said he wants $3 million to fight Ali, whom he defeated in 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden in New York in March 1970.

Junior League Needs OHA Aid

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

"Up in the air" appears to be the operative phrase these days for the fate of the Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey league.

But that was the only description that could be tacked onto the situation by Ontario Hockey Association convenor Harold Webster after a Napanee meeting Tuesday night.

"We won't know anything for a week or so—we just have numbers" — he explained the longtime OHA executive after the meeting, which had representation from Belleville and Kingston Junior "B" entries, and spokesmen for "C" clubs from Gananoque, Napanee and Campbellford.

At this moment in time, Belleville's Bobcats would be odds-on favorites to win their first Eastern Ontario pennant in the 11 years manager Jim Matthews has been associated with a Belleville junior hockey entry.

It would be a dubious honor, however, since Belleville remains as the only bona fide "B" entry in a league which only three years ago boasted six: Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville, Trenton and Cobourg.

Last year, with Trenton folding and Cobourg opting for "C" competition, the remaining four clubs, as expected, took the group's playoff berths, leaving "C" additions from Picton and Gananoque in their wake.

Then as the league prepared plans for the 1972-73 season, Oshawa and Peterborough announced they were joining the Metro Junior B ranks, and a Kingston entry was accepted into the Metro Junior A Tier 2 fold.

The calibre of junior B team that can be mustered now from the Limestone City and what sort of drawing card they would be with Junior A and a successful senior franchise compeling for spectator dollars remains to be seen.

To worsen the league's condition, a possible revival of Trenton's franchise failed to materialize, and Picton's "C" entry was not even represented at Wednesday night's Napanee meeting.

If the OHA permits the continued deterioration of the Eastern Ontario group, it would appear to be a contradiction of everything the provincial governing body stands for in hockey, not that it would be the first such contradiction.

OHA executives constantly push the position that they won't allow the aspirations of any team to jeopardize the welfare of an entire group.

That was the case two years ago when they felt compelled to overrule a unanimous vote by the Senior A league governors to immediately admit a Brantford entry. They had to protect Brantford's Tier 2 Junior A interests, reasoned the powers-that-be.

Today, the Eastern Ontario Junior situation is a much graver one.

Unless the OHA has a better solution — indeed ANY solution — it is their duty to prohibit Oshawa and Peterborough from bolting the Eastern Ontario group and leaving it in its current harsh.

If the teams fail to comply, the Metro, Junior B league should be declared an outlaw organization and its teams refused competition with OHA entries.

By permitting such finagles as the Howe brothers Toronto - London wheelings and-dealings, the Ontario Hockey Association is fast creating a credibility gap.

The day is long gone when the OHA constitution speaks for itself. It now requires some sterner interpretation.

Esso Midgets Swamp Sea Cadets

The A and D Esso midgets and Dairy Queen peewees got off on the right foot in a pair of Belleville Minor Lacrosse final series contests last night both picking up convincing victories.

The Esso boys swamped the Sea Cadets 10-3 in the first game of the best-of-three final series, Roger Chapman paced the winners with five markers with Scott tallying two and Dave Drake, Gord Male and Brian Hamilton one each.

Russ McPeak notched two goals for the Cadets with Harry Semark adding the odd goal.

The Dairy Queen went one better in their opening game of the final series, whipping the Police Association 11-3.

Jeff Runciman picked up six goals and Scott Summers two for the Dairy Queens. Bruce McKinnon, Peter DeLong and Kevin Gow scored the other goals.

Jerry Healy netted a pair for the Police.

SACO Too Hot for Mead Squirts to Handle

The Mead Johnson squirts bit off a little more than they could chew with the SACO peewees when the two OASA teams met in an exhibition game Tuesday night.

The SACO nine raked a pair of Mead's pitchers for 16 hits en route to a 16-0 rout.

John Jiannopios and Wayne Eros each had four singles for the peewees with Mark Wilkie adding a triple and single and Randy Smith a double and single.

Smith went four innings on the rubber for the winners, allowing three hits and fanning three. Dan Vance hurled no-hit-ball for the final three frames.

Tim Soule was touched for eight runs and seven hits over his five innings of work on the squirt mound. Andy Rosati had less luck in his three frames, giving up nine hits and six runs. Silvano Falsini doubled and Allen Brooks and Soule singled for the losers' only hits.

Mead's begin their third round OASA series tonight and Thursday against Pakenham here on Saturday in their second round of playdown action.

Plane's Move Wall

Plane's came up with an their backs to the wall in their South Hastings Baseball League semi-final series with Read, but Tuesday night they moved the wall a few steps back.

Plane's came up with an 8-3 verdict over Read in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series and now trail two games to one with one tie. Fifth game will be in Campbellford Thursday night at 6:30 p.m.

The regular season pennant-winners only out-hit their victims 4-3 but made the hits count. Bill Clapp had a double and single and Garnie and Larry Adams a single each for the winners' only hits.

Larry Adams threw the win, whiffing five and issued batsmen Paul Hawley, Carm Milligan and Larry Coffey were the only ones to reach the Canniffton chucker.

TALLON GETS REST

TORONTO (CP) — Dale Tallon got an unscheduled day off Tuesday but coach Harry Sinden expressed confidence that the young Vancouver defenceman and right winger is fit to join Team Canada for the Russian series. Tallon was excused from Tuesday's workout at the request of the Canuck's medical staff, which asked for a report from Team Canada's doctors on a knee injury

Utilities' Damage Done Early

The Utilities did their damage early but UIC walked until the end to score some runs as both teams picked up identical 4-3 Industrial Softball League play-off victories.

The Utilities picked up all of their four runs within the first three innings and then held on for the win over Stewart Warner. The Utilities' win cancelled out the 9-8 Warner victory in the first match of the fourth-place Fieldsers' round-robin series.

Wilson Ralph hurled the win, allowing three hits and fanning eight. Steve Ethier had a double with Jack Banville and Dave Middleton adding singles.

Bill Lynch had a two-bagger and Ed Christopher and Jim Nichol a single apiece in support of Jim Benn's three hitter on the Warner mound. Benn whiffed seven.

The UIC scored twice in the first inning but had to score twice more in the sixth to record their victory over the Independents in a battle between third-place finishers.

Gary McMurray fired a four hitter for the winners, fanning seven and walking three. Bill Healey punched a double and single, Bernie Coughlan a double and Bill Belnap and Ron Embury singles for division "B" UIC. Doug Campbell took the loss for the Independents. He allowed only five hits while striking out three and issuing one free-pass.

Bob's Grant-ed Win In Tadpole Playoffs

Bob's Sports were 'Granted' a victory in Tuesday night's Belleville Minor Baseball tadpole playoffs when they edged the Kinsmen 5-4.

Grant Scully smashed a triple, double and single for three - quarters of Bob's hits. He also combined with Rod Savoy to hurl a one-hitter and strike out 18 in the opening game of the best - of - three series.

Mike Dowling and Trevor O'Neill fanned 13 in taking the loss for the Kinsmen. Mike O'Neill had the only hit for the losers.

The pewees brought out the lumber in a first round playoff contest and Motorland Chrysler put it to best use in an 18-10 win over Gagne Mercenary.

Greg McEachern had three singles and Paul Deg' two to lead the winners hitting attack. Terry Kingsmen and McEachern fanned 12 in hurling the win.

Rick Woodward's triple and Ron Landry's double were the best for Gagne.

The Kinsmen wound up on the short end of the rope again in tyke action dropping a 14-8 opening-round decision to Mulroney's Sunoco.

Jeff Sarnes smashed a triple and Terry Clader a double and single for the winners while Jeff Hayward's triple and single paced the losers' batting effort.

In another tyke play-off contest Hastings Caretaking Service stopped Sidney Inn 16-10.

Steve Seymour had three doubles and two singles and Steve McCrory three safeties for Hastings. Kevin Jaff pounded a homer, double and single in a losing effort.

Fencers On Cue

The two powerhouses of the Belleville Minor Soccer mosquito division met in Tuesday night's Cup playdown action but Supreme Fence had more power than National Billiards could handle.

The pennant - winning Supremes jumped to a 5-1 halftime lead en route to a 7-2 stomping of the Billiard-boys.

Randy Cox had four goals for the winners with Gary Fredericks adding the other three. Elvis Leonardozzi and George Moletis replied for the Nationals.

Six goals by Thad Sheliel paced Lino's Pizeria to a 9-0 whipping of the Steelworkers. Tim Kalbey picked up the hat trick for the winners, with Mark Moynes earning the shutout.

Six and three were again the lucky numbers for the Golden Mile as Tass Christopher notched six markers and Robbie Cathcart three in their team's 9-1 win over Fitzgibbon Construction. Dale More answered for the losers.

Top Lucas Lumber

Kelly Petching, Pat Tuttle and Monique Champagne weren't the only forces behind Lucas Spur's Minor Girls' Softball League junior championship but their big bats were instrumental in bringing the girls the Mel Barriage Trophy. Lucas finished third in the regular season but peaked in the play-offs to eliminate pennant - winning Clayton's TV for the championship.

CFL Games Stop Down South

TORONTO (CP) — The television agreement under which 20 Canadian Football League games were to be shown live this year on a United States network, terminates tonight—a dozen games short of that objective.

The series ends with the showing of the Ottawa Rough Riders-Toronto Argonauts game and with buyers from the U.S. clamoring for more.

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, said Ralmar Sports Productions Incorporated, who bought the 1972 rights for $100,000, is exercising its option to buy the 1973 rights for $150,000.

In a statement, Gaudaur gave two reasons for the early termination of the 1972 series:

"The stations . . . have had no difficulty in selling out their available time to local advertisers but the national advertisers had been reluctant to commit to purchasing time before the first game had been aired. to a product that had no track record of viewer interest in the U.S.

The eight pre-season and early-season games shown this year went out over more than 100 channels in the U.S.

The New York Times, in reviewing the first game of the series, the CFL all-star game, commented:

"The opening game was a good one, won in the final seconds by Calgary.

"... Now is this major league, bush football.

"Wednesday's game was a solid production with none of the clumsy marks of our all-star games."

Professor Dreams of Future Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Wright has a dream of modern cities so attractive that residents hate to leave for their weekend cottages.

Mr. Wright, a professor of landscape architecture at the University of Guelph, confesses this dream may be idealistic. But he is taking a step to help MAKE IT COME TRUE.

He is head of a pilot project at Guelph, Ont., that is trying to find out what people want to do with city space. It is attempting to develop principles that will guide governments in deciding what to do with urban open space.

This concern about open spaces in cities he shares with the Canadian Parks recreation Association which is holding its annual conference here this week.

The University of Guelph project is being carried out for the Ontario government, though it may have national implications.

The parks association also is conducting a national study on urban open spaces. It is seeking funds from the federal government.

Mr. Wright, who was superintendent of parks and recreation in Edmonton for eight years, said in an interview Tuesday that he has "a sort of affinity for the urban scene."

He said that the need for open spaces is growing more serious as cities develop.

He does not limit open space to public parks. It could refer to sports fields, rivers, pedestrian malls—anything that is publicly-owned and open to the sky.

Municipal politicians in big cities need guidance on how to use open space, Mr. Wright said. So do provincial governments.

It isn't just a question of how much open space there should be, he said. Equally important is how well the open space is used. Is it well preserved or wasted?

Mr. Wright said he does not know whether the Guelph project will be a success. The study will not come up with mathematical formulas because it is dealing with social problems which are matters of opinion, he said.

Off to A Good Start

Yesterday, Sally Neal came running through her parents' vegetable garden, squealing with excitement as Ron Rustin pulled a new bicycle from the trunk of his car. Sally had been chosen the winner of a draw at the Quinte Exhibition, sponsored jointly by the Junior Farmers of Prince Edward County and the Quinte Ex. While Sally could only say the new bike was pretty, her brother mustered up the courage to ask for the first ride.

Dump Fire Cause Unknown

CARRYING PLACE (Staff) — A fire of undetermined cause tore through the Murray Township garbage dump a mile north of here last night.

Trenton fire chief Cecil Ellis said today he visited the site yesterday evening but no trucks were dispatched to the scene. The chief indicated the fire "was burning itself out" when he arrived.

Calling It Augustfest, What Else?

TWEED (Special) — They're going one better — or earlier — than the Oktoberfest German festival tradition here.

Instead, it's been held in August.

German music, food, mixed in with square dancing, oldtime fiddling and steptdancing will be featured at the Tweed-Hungerford community centre.

Name of the event?

Augustfest, of course.

Quarrying By Permit Only

TWEED (Special) — According to the ministry of natural resources, no person shall take or remove for industrial or commercial purpose any stone, rock, limestone, marble, granite, quartz, feldspar, fluorspar gypsum, diatomaceous earth, clay, marl, peak, sand or gravel that is the property of the Crown, unless he is the holder of a quarry permit.

A quarry permit may be issued free of charge to any resident of Ontario, if the material to be taken or removed is for his own use and not for sale or used for any commercial or industrial purpose. But where more than 500 cubic yards of material is to be taken or removed, the permit shall not be issued free without the approval of the minister of natural resources, mining lands branch, Toronto, Ontario.

A quarry permit does not convey any ownership or title to the property. It only authorizes the permit holder to take a limited amount of a particular type of material, in a specific period of time.

Application forms can be obtained from Mining Lands Branch, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario.

Council Kept Busy By Angry Cottagers

MARMORA (Special) — The coin laundry question plus late summer residents' complaints occupied Marmora and Lake townships last council meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Belanger, asked council for permission to install six washers and two dryers in their establishment at the intersection of Highway 7 and the Marlake Point Road, half a mile west of Marmora.

Reeve John Wilkes said he realized a coin laundry was urgently needed in the area, but he was hesitant about giving approval to the proposal. He said there was danger of effluent reaching Crowe Lake by way of the small creek flowing through the area.

Councillors Bob Drummond and James (Scotty) Cook spoke in defence of Mr. Belanger's right to operate a coin laundry, providing it met the requirements of the county health unit and the county planning board. The county planning board has been asked to make a survey on the feasibility of the project.

A delegation of five angry summer residents attended council to protest the completion of a cottage on a small lot on the continuation of Rossiter Park Road. Part of the structure appears to be on a road allowance.

The size of the lot does not allow room for a septic system, one of the cottagers said, and there is concern about pollution of Crowe Lake from a creek that crosses the lot.

The residents were also upset about the removal of a number of trees on the Rossiter Park Road and about damage done to their property by snow ploughs.

One members of the delegation complained about overcrowding at Rossiter Park and claimed his father-in-law, Dr. W. MacKeckrie, had donated the park site for the enjoyment of the people of Marmora, not for use as a trailer park.

Historic Fair Opens Aug. 25

This year's prize list totals $5,000.

Argentine Guerrillas Surrender at Santiago

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuter) — Six heavily armed urban guerrillas who escaped from an Argentine jail and hijacked a jet airliner with more than 90 persons aboard surrendered to Chilean police at Pudahuel International Airport here today.

They gave themselves up after more than three hours of negotiations with Police Chief Arsenio Pouppin, airport officials said.

Chile's Marxist president, Salvador Allende, had earlier refused to send senior government officials to the airport to meet the fugitives, who at one time were reported to want to go to Cuba.

The six men were among a group of around 25 who escaped from Rawson prison in southern Argentina late Tuesday night and killed a guard in the process, Argentine officials said in Buenos Aires.

They belonged to the People's Revolutionary Army, the group which kidnapped and murdered Fiat executive Oberdan Sallustro in Buenos Aires earlier this year, the Revolutionary Armed Forces (FAR) and the Montoneros, who pledge allegiance to exiled former Argentine strongman Juan Peron.

The guerrilla fugitives soon made their way to Trelew airport near the prison and six of them, wearing prison officers' uniforms, seized a British-built BAC One-Eleven airliner of the Argentine Austral Airlines which carried 97 people, according to the airline's first checklist.

They forced the pilot, who had been scheduled to fly to Buenos Aires, to head for Puerto Montt, 450 miles south of Santiago.

The pilot refuelled there and then headed for Santiago, where it landed in pour-ing rain just before midnight Tuesday night.

It sat on the runway for more than three hours, surrounded by troops and police and with its lights blazing, while two of the hijackers negotiated with Pouppin.

One of the hijackers returned to the plane. Six children and an unknown number of women were then released, and all six hijackers surrendered shortly afterwards, officials said.

Meanwhile, the 19 other guerrillas who escaped from Rawson Jail and took over the Trelew control tower to assist the hijackers, surrendered after apparently failing in an effort to hijack a second airliner—a domestic airlines jet from Buenos Aires.

The pilot was warned off and did not land at Trelew, the official Argentine news agency Telam reported.

Latest reports from Rawson Jail said it was controlled by mutinous prisoners, many of them also alleged guerrillas, and surrounded by troops.

A wide area around the prison was declared an emergency zone by Interior Minister Arturo Mor Roig, who was meeting government colleagues today and keeping President Alejandro Lanusse in touch by telephone.

McGovern Backed By Auto Workers

DETROIT (AP) — Members of the United Auto Workers have voted overwhelmingly to endorse Senator George McGovern's campaign for president of the U.S., union officials announced Tuesday.

They said 84 per cent of 4,455 membership representatives polled in a series of regional meetings of union members voted to endorse the Democratic nominee.

Another three per cent voted to endorse President Nixon while the other 13 per cent wanted no endorsement, of a total of 4,455 delegates.

The presidential candidate. The union has about 1.4 million members.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock, who was mentioned as a possible McGovern running mate at last month's Democratic national convention, said he personally will campaign for McGovern. And, Woodcock said the union's political arm, the Community Action Program, is conducting a fund drive for Democratic candidates. He reported the drive is expected to provide $200,000 to $400,000.

Although the UAW pulled out of the AFL-CIO years ago, Woodcock said the union will co-operate with the AFL-CIO's committee supporting McGovern. He said UAW officials will meet Wednesday to discuss methods of formally joining other unions backing McGovern.

Before the series of presidential primaries, the UAW endorsed no candidate. However, Woodcock personally expressed a preference for Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem., Me.) and the union was heavily committed to Muskie in several states.

Once Muskie withdrew from active campaigning, the UAW retained its official neutrality although many top officials, including Woodcock, privately favored McGovern.

Firms Not Worried About Nationalism

NEW YORK (CP) — United States corporations are far from being jittery about their operations in Canada at a time of rising nationalist sentiment.

That, says Prof. Ivan Feltham of York University in Toronto, was the impression he got Tuesday, after spending several hours discussing nationalism with representatives of U.S. multinational firms that operate in Canada.

Prof. Feltham is counsel to the 11-member select committee of the Ontario legislature, which is in New York for three days of discussion about economic and cultural nationalism.

Mr. Feltham, who committee chairman Russell Rowe, described as our expert," said U.S. firms see Canada as a wide-open country—even to foreign investors."

Several countries, he said, have far stricter foreign investment regulations than those proposed by Canada, and U.S. businessmen have learned to live with such restrictions.

Chairman Rowe (PC—Northumberland) and the other 10 committee members met Tuesday with officials of the National Foreign Trade Council, which represents about 600 U.S. firms.

Rowe said he felt after the meeting that U.S. businessmen have a "quite far advanced awareness of growing nationalistic feeling in Canada."

In the past, he said, many U.S. companies, in making policy decisions, grouped their Canadian operations in with their domestic operations "instead of including them in their foreign policy."

This is changing, he said, but added that he did not expect a dramatic turnabout overnight.

"We've tried to speak more as Canadians than as Ontarians," he said. "We're all affected by what the federal government might do."

Fired Woman Lawyer Given Another Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Ann Booth, who lost her job as a lawyer with the Canadian Radio-Television Commission when she sought to become a Liberal candidate for Parliament, has been given another government job, the Public Service Commission said Tuesday.

She now is an economics researcher in the department of manpower and immigration.

Miss Booth's case led to Commons debate and a government reappraisal of the rules for civil servants engaging in political activity.

The Ottawa Citizen reported that, as part of a settlement between Miss Booth and the CRTC, she was paid her full salary for the 11 weeks she was under suspension, plus legal expenses incurred in appealing the suspension.

In return she dropped her application to have her case adjudicated.

Both Miss Booth and the CRTC declined to discuss the settlement. Miss Booth said she had been given another government job but declined to say what it is.

A spokesman for the commission said, however, that she has been appointed as an economics researcher with the department of manpower and immigration, at "a slight drop in salary." The salary range for her new position is $12,336 to $20,557 a year.

The dispute began in March, when she was suspended for seeking the Liberal nomination in Ottawa Centre. Her application for political leave had been turned down because the CRTC and Public Service Commission said her job was too sensitive to be filled by someone who was politically active.

Miss Booth countered that almost all her legalwork was research and she never appeared in court for the CRTC.

Juan Peron to Return To Argentina in 1972

MADRID (Reuter) — The long-awaited return of former Argentine president Juan Domingo Peron to his homeland will come about before the end of this year, his chief spokesman announced Thursday.

The announcement was made at a news conference by Dr. Hector Campora, Peron's personal representative in Argentina, at the end of two weeks of summit talks between Peron and his leading supporters at his exile home here.

The 76-year-old general's return will end 17 years of exile. He will return during the campaign for the presidential elections in Argentina for which he has been nominated a candidate by the Justicialist Movement he founded.

But there was no immediate indication that Peron will take up a challenge by the Argentine government of President Alejandro Lanusse to go back home by Aug. 25 if he is serious about running in the elections.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, August 17

Aries (March 21-April 19): Today promises to be busy and demanding. You fare better with a close rein on your temper, care with tools and vehicles.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A pause to explain things a second time should be worthwhile. What you had thought trifling turns out important.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Frustration leads people around you into contrary moods, perhaps conflict. Realize that some of the events are not within.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The unexpected is again at hand. Follow where intuition leads. Neglected features of your work are a potential source of difficulty.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your energy into upgrading your work is better than your money plunged into speculative enterprises or purchase of unusual size.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Come to terms on a disputed agreement. Be aware that your comments may grate on others as sharp, overly specific criticism.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Progress is made in personal plans not yet ready for general publication. You have been a different person lately.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Conflict may develop over how best to use resources. Your natural reluctance to act on a guess comes in handy. Check your notes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): All due care and courtesy should be your concern--you can get away with nothing hasty. Differences of opinion are normal.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Strange people's schemes run completely counter to your own plans. Your work is the subject to comment, some of it adverse.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Devote your time and money to already effective ventures, rather than the new ventures of friends. Efforts to correct them fail.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Patience and diligence will eventually tip the balance in your favor. A personal project may have to be postponed further.

Operation Costly For Weight Losers

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been overweight since the day I was born. All through my childhood and teens I was always on one kind of diet or another, and taking countless kinds of medicine. I would lose 10 or maybe 15 or 20 pounds but gain it back. I agree with you that Weight Watchers and TOPS are good groups, and I have been a member of Weight Watchers, and would lose 10 or 20 pounds and that would be it, or I'd gain it all back. I was a member for six months last time.

I am 20 now and have roughly 60 pounds to lose. After reading about that operation to lose weight, I have decided that it is my very last resort. Could you send me the names of doctors who do this operation?

Maybe if I knew a few and could talk to them, I might even be able to work out a different plan without the operation. — P.A.N.

You want to lose weight by talking to somebody? Sounds a little farfetched to me. What do you think?

Seems to me you're totally ignoring what ought to be the most important part of your situation. Repeatedly you've been 10, 15 or 20 pounds.

In other words, you can lose weight and you've proved it.

What you haven't yet learned is that if you can take it off, you can keep it off--if you keep on trying.

The unsuccessful weight-loser is the one who does just what you do--loses some pounds, then goes back to the same kind of eating that caused the fat in the first place. It's a silly, illogical attitude, and common, but when someone has spent a lifetime getting fat, it takes some real effort to change habits. Yet those habits are what have to be changed.

You mentioned staying with Weight Watchers for six months once. That's not enough. Not for you, anyway. Both W. W. and TOPS have sound programs, so you can lose weight without hurting your health.

I suggest that you go back and try it again, but don't quit after six months. Stay at least a couple of years, by which time you will at least have a good start on a new way of life and eating.

Don't be discouraged because you lose 20 pounds and then stop losing. But don't start gaining again! With a good many folks, it is quite likely that a weight-loss plateau is reached now and then. You stop losing temporarily. But if you stick with the program, you presently lose some more, reach a plateau, then lose still more.

As to that operation to lose weight, I wouldn't recommend it for you unless you have plenty of money to spend on it. It means major surgery, plus close medical supervision to make sure you get enough of the necessary food elements while your digestive tract is being curtailed.

And on top of that, you still have to learn some new eating habits if you are to avoid putting fat again later, the same way you did in the first place.

Your big mistake, I think, was in quitting too soon after you'd begun to make progress.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that cracking your knuckles can lead to, if not cause, arthritis. Is this true? — J.M.M.

No, not true.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: can you tell me what causes a person to pass bloody stool? — A.M.M.

Several. Hemorrhoids. Fissures. Cancer. Some forms of colitis. Any of which deserves medical attention.

Helen Gagen Reports GROUND BEEF

Imagination — secret ground ingredients.
Because ground beef is one of our thriftiest buys, take extra care to make it into interesting meals. Remember that nothing showcases appetites like variety. So, whether you choose lean ground beef or the less expensive regular ground, try it different ways when you serve it.
To inspire you, see the recipes on my new bulletin, "Many ways with Ground Beef."
It's free at your MIRACLE FOOD MART information desk.
You're not alone. Helen Gagen is listening.

Land Prices Need Check

OTTAWA (CP) — Action must be taken now to stop rapidly rising land prices from doubling every decade, says a massive 751-page report prepared for the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation on low income housing.

The once-secret report, released Wednesday by New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis, places much of the blame for the spiralling land price increases on the federal government.

And the report, prepared by Toronto lawyer Michael Dennis, says that "the concentration of land-holding in a small number of very powerful holders . . . does pose the real threat of even greater rates of increase in land costs."

Chapter one of the study was released by the Liberal government about three weeks ago, but Mr. Lewis told a news conference the government destroyed 3,000 complete copies.

Mr. Lewis did not say where he got his copy of the report.

The Dennis report reveals that near-monopolies of land for housing exist in most major Canadian cities as relative handfuls of developer-builders control high percentages of the land available for residential expansion.

This pattern threatens to push up land costs even more rapidly in future, the report says.

The report criticizes the federal government for rejecting provincial proposals for land assembly projects, and CMHC for backing off from land assembly projects after political pressure from private developers.

The portion of the Dennis report released previously had recommended a guaranteed annual income to help the poor pay for housing. The report was given to the government in April, and the recommendation rejected when a new government housing policy was introduced in June.

"I hear he's with a World Hockey Association team."

Defence Pact Hit

WASHINGTON (CP) — Representative Lester L. Wolff of New York said Wednesday he has again asked the U.S. defence and treasury departments to investigate the workings of the 1958 Canada-U.S. defence production sharing arrangement, which he says is tilted in Canada's favor.

No Wrongdoing

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Frank Moores says there is no indication of wrongdoing in files discovered in an office set aside earlier this year for the use of former premier Joseph R. Smallwood. Mr. Moores declined Wednesday to discuss the contents of the files, which he described as "fascinating."

Niagara Tours Dropped

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara River White Water Tours, which has been offering trips down the Niagara River in rafts at $20 a head, is discontinuing the thrill rides — at least for this year. The company said the decision was made Monday without pressure from any agency or governmental group. So far 14 persons have been dumped into the river during the trips downstream from the American Falls. All were rescued and only one person suffered minor injuries.

Crime Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada had four fewer murders last year than in 1970, but nearly every other category of crime — violent or otherwise — the rate was up, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday. The rate for attempted murder rose to 1.8 from 1.4. The crime rate for rape and other sexual offences rose to 61.7 from 58.1 and the rate for wounding and assault, other than indecent assault, rose to 450.7 from 422.6 per 100,000.

Strongman Suicides As Air Attack Fails

From AP-REUTER

RABAT (CP) — Moroccan Defence Minister Mohammed Oufkir committed suicide today in the wake of an assassination attempt on King Hassan II whose personal aircraft was attacked by rebel pilots.

Eight of the pilots believed involved in the attack were reported captured today and one or two others were being sought in a country-wide manhunt after the attempt in which the king was reported to have fooled his attackers into believing he was seriously wounded.

Official sources in Rabat said Oufkir, the Moroccan strongman who was named defence minister after last year's abortive assassination attempt on the king, died by shooting himself in the head. However, there were French radio reports from Paris quoting "diplomatic sources" who said that Oufkir did not commit suicide but was killed because he took part in the plot against the king.

He was considered among the closest advisers to King Hassan after he helped put down the earlier assassination attempt. Oufkir, 48, also led operations against the air force rebels Wednesday night.

Sources said Gen. Drissben Ammar El Alami, communications minister, was appointed temporary defence minister.

An official communique said the king and all the other passengers aboard the Boeing 727 escaped unharmed although an air force jet fighter filled it "full of holes."

Official reports said eight persons were killed and 45 persons, including some cabinet ministers, were wounded on the ground when three supersonic Northrop F-5 fighters strafed and rocketed Rabat airport after the royal plane landed on only one of its three engines.

And later four F-5s damaged sailboats of rockets and machine gun fire into the king's palace in Rabat, leaving columns of smoke and debris rising above the buildings.

The king's brother, Prince Moulay Abdallah, said the attack on the airport and the palace came after the pilots discovered the king had tricked them into believing he was wounded.

Prince Abdullah, in a radio interview, gave this account of the attack:

A fighter from the royal escort turned on the king's Boeing 727 jet as it crossed the Moroccan coast on a flight from Paris, bringing the monarch and his entourage back from a three-week vacation in France.

After two firing passes had damaged the cockpit, cut hydraulic lines, smashed the instruments and blown off a rear door, Hassan contacted the fighters by radio.

Identifying himself as a mechanic, he said the king had been "seriously wounded" along with the pilot and co-pilot, and that he would attempt a landing at Rabat.

Hassan's pilot landed the plane and the King went to the terminal building. There he carried out the regular protocol, reviewed an honor guard and greeting his ministers and foreign diplomats.

An informed source here said today that the attempted coup against the king was believed to have been led by the commander of Kenitra airbase, 25 miles north of Rabat.

After the attacks, the base was taken over by local forces led by Defence Minister Oufkir.

Three rebel pilots landed at Kenitra and were arrested. The coast guard captured their leader, the new commander of the Kenitra squadron, Colonel Mamdouh Kanafi Kouira. He had parachuted into the sea off the coast, but there was no indication why.

Cardinal Regrets His Own School Bill

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Guy Cardinal, former Quebec education minister, has criticized his own role in the passage of provincial language legislation and called for a new law that would favor the French language.

Mr. Cardinal was speaking Tuesday to a group of 200 French-speaking parents from southern Montreal who blame the legislation—known as Bill 63 for the closing of several schools by the Montreal Catholic school commission.

"I denounce my error . . . it was a grave mistake," Mr. Cardinal said in reference to the legislation passed in 1969. It gave parents the right to choose the language of instruction for their children.

Mr. Cardinal, an architect of the legislation in the former Union National government of Jean Jacques Bertrand, said he has called repeatedly for repeal of the bill but "no one is listening."

Labor leader Fernand Daoust told the meeting: "We can't permit parents to choose any other language than French for their children."

The commission has asked the Quebec government to require all non-English speaking immigrants to send their children to schools in French, he said.

From Inches to Miles

Inches are the crux of the problem as Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's Dick Bird and Julie Strahan measure sails but miles will be the difference in this Saturday's Around-the-County Race. Bird's Trident will be one of over 15 vessels battling wind, water and sandbars over-the 105-mile course around Prince Edward County. Organizers are hoping for a more successful race than last year, when only eight of 20 boats finished the race. For story, see Page 15.

Rebel Dockers Likely To Keep Ports in Chaos

LONDON (CP) — At least seven major British ports face continuing disruption at the hands of militants despite official union efforts to call off the national dock strike.

Militant shop stewards will be mounting a major campaign today to keep the strike going despite the union leadership's decision Wednesday to order a return to work.

A call to continue the strike came after a three-hour meeting of the unofficial National Ports Shop Stewards' Committee Wednesday night.

A few hours after an official meeting to end the 20-day strike broke up in a shambles of flying fists and screamed insults, rebel dockers got together and declared they would not return to work Monday as their leaders had demanded.

Bernie Steer, secretary of the committee, read a statement to reporters rejecting efforts of union leaders and employers to insure longshoremen's jobs.

The committee claims the backing of men at eight major ports, including London, Liverpool and Hull—which handle more than 80 per cent of Britain's trade.

Great Idea if It Works Says Northern Research

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's new policy to farm out more research and development to the private sector is a great idea from industry's point of view—"provided it works," says Dr. D. A. Chisholm, president of Bell Northern Research.

"The goal is incredibly important, but the mechanisms may take a while to get going," he said in an interview Wednesday.

The stimulation of government-funded projects will help smaller firms, but they also have to do a certain amount of work to prepare for the bids.

Unsafe

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Raymond Kirkwood was fined $50 Wednesday for driving an unsafe vehicle.

Constable Ray Bowden told provincial court that when he visually inspected the car, he found:

—Excessive exhaust fumes inside.

—The headlights hanging out of the fenders.

—The rear fenders were rusted and jagged.

—The front tires were bald.

—The rear view mirror was about to fall off.

A licensed mechanic testified that when he checked the car, he found:

—The body was rusted beyond repair.

—The floor was completely rusted out.

—Two doors would not open at all and the windows fell out of their tracks when the other two doors were opened.

—The steering mechanism was faulty.

—The brakes were unsafe and the handbrake inoperable.

Kirkwood of Brantford had pleaded not guilty.

Borrow Abroad Ontario Will Ignore Federal Loan Plea

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough said today the province intends to "close a deal" next week for a $30 million German loan despite plans from federal finance Minister John Turner for the provinces to borrow at home.

The loan, which Mr. McKeough said would be for 15 years at a "little more" than six per cent, would be the second for Ontario in the German capital market in four years.

Bennett Wants Dock Strike Declared National Emergency

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett has called on the federal government to end the British Columbia dock dispute by declaring the situation a national emergency.

With the port of Vancouver idle for 11 days, vital grain exports halted and isolated communities cut off from fresh food supplies, the premier discarded his previous hands-off policy Wednesday night and sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau saying:

"The labor dispute" at the Vancouver docks is most damaging to not only British Columbia but also to all western provinces, especially re: grain.

"Strongly urge that you end this dispute immediately by declaring the situation a national emergency."

Premier Bennett was immediately accused of using the dock dispute for political gain during his campaign for the Aug. 30 provincial election.

William Kelly, assistant deputy minister of labor in the federal government, arrived Wednesday from Ottawa to observe negotiations between the longshoremen's union and the British Columbia Maritime Employers Association, representing about 43 companies.

"I am here to report to the minister (Martin O'Connell)," was his only comment.

Meantime, more supplies of fresh food were being rushed to the coastal communities of Ocean Falls, Bella Bella and Klemtu, where fresh milk, eggs and meat have disappeared from store shelves normally kept filled by regular shipments from Vancouver.

The provincial government has authorized shipments and will pay for the transportation from the province's disaster relief fund. Some supplies are being sent in by air others by a barge owned by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., which runs Ocean Falls as a company town. About 7,000 pounds of food arrived there Wednesday night.

Napanee Police Force Asks Association Aid

NAPANEE (Special) — The Napanee Police Association has asked the Ontario Police Commission to investigate complaints made by the police force here.

Napanee is served by seven policemen. A Napanee delegate to the annual meeting of the Police Association of Ontario, meeting at London, asked for the investigation Wednesday.

When the request has been received in writing, the commission will send one of its four advisors to visit the force, said Maj-Gen. H. A. Sparling, a former commission member.

Constable Donald Hall said the Napanee Association's main complaint was lack of personnel. He said town council has refused to hire two more men for the force unless the association agrees to forego pay increases for the next few years.

He said the extra men would allow the department to have two men working the 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. shift. All shifts now are staffed by one man.

He said the town, of about 5,000 people, has four hotels visited regularly by men working on a nearby hydro project and there are several prisons and a regional jail nearby.

Constable Peter Crud said he was working the midnight shift alone when a manhunt was being conducted in the area for 14 escaped prisoners from Millhaven maximum security penitentiary. One of the escapees was eventually captured in Napanee.

"They wouldn't give us back up and I wasn't going to go out after him alone," said Constable Crud.

He said he had to wait until the next shift came on duty and help arrived from provincial police 20 miles away.

Constable Hall said Napanee Constable Robert Murdoch was recently shot and seriously wounded when he answered a domestic call alone.

Replacement of 'Obsolete' Facilities Asked by LORDC

The time and traffic battered Bay Bridge linking Prince Edward County to the Belleville area mainland came up for critical comment again this week.

This time it was selected as an example of "obsolete" communications facilities needing replacement in the Bay of Quinte area.

The comments were aired at a meeting in Belleville city hall of a Lake Ontario Region al Development Council committee formed to assist study of the Bay of Quinte by the Canada - Ontario - Rideau - Trent - Severn Study — a survey of waterways linking Ottawa and Georgian Bay.

The question of the Bay Bridge facility was raised by Belleville Alderman Arnold Orr who said district residents had urged its replacement for "quite a time."

Such demands were stepped up after a school bus slid off the causeway last winter, although a serious accident has not result.

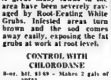
However, provincial authorities still insisted that volumes of road and water traffic did not warrant its replacement at that time, he said.

"The next thing we hear, they're spending a quarter-million dollars to repair the dogone thing," said the alderman.

The structure currently is undergoing a summer - long major renovation.

The bridge was a major tourism and development link for Prince Edward county, he said.

"We've got to keep harnessing away at this thing . . . we've got to improve the access," said Ald. Orr.



He suggested the LORDC committee take a "long-range view" by suggesting "some action be taken to replace the existing structure."

G. G. Muirhead, Kingston planning and urban renewal director, said a similar situation existed in his area involving a ferry to Howe Island.

He agreed the committee should take a stand on "all such obsolete and unsafe" facilities in the Bay of Quinte — Kingston sector of the CORTS study.

A resolution was drafted, requesting the provincial government replace all such obsolete facilities in the sector "such as the Bay Bridge."

Lawsuit Threatened Against Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Principals of Sunrise Developments Ltd. Gerald Weaver and Wasil Sidor, have threatened to take legal action against the town of Trenton unless the town checks flooding of their land near Hannah Park.

In a letter dated June 26 and read to council Tuesday, Sunrise charges that the town has seriously devalued and interfered with projected development of their property by the construction of a storm sewer" that discharges water into Hannah Park and onto their land.

The development firm says flooding of their property has resulted in it being designated hazard land in the new official plan. The town has been given 30 days — from July 21 — to correct the drainage problem.

In discussion during Tuesday's council session, Mayor Duncan McDonald asked acting works commissioner Arie Hoornweg what the con-

Terrence Sidor, 3 Parkview Heights, was a motorcycle going the Smithfield Road, about five miles west of here, at 1 a.m., when a bug flew into his eye, making him lose control of his machine, he told police.

Sidor remains in Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment of cuts and scrapes.

Trenton to Rehire School Guards Student Safety Patrols to Come

TRENTON (Staff) — By a resolution of council, the four crossing guards fired earlier this summer will be rehired to continue their service at school crossings until year's end.

Backed by a letter from the Trenton Police Commission, of which he is a member, Mayor Duncan McDonald called for their retention until such time as police chief David Saunders can implement a new school safety program. The chief plans to recruit school children to act as guards.

The letter from the police commission, signed by the commission's secretary, Judge J. C. Anderson, sparked comment from Councillor Stan Ketcheson.

"Judge Anderson is from Belleville and Belleville does not have paid guards," said the councillor. He said Peterborough runs a program with student guards, adding "they give the kids a dinner once a year and they think it is just wonderful".

Geologists Tour Area Mines

Mines in Kaladar, Madoc and Marmora will be toured by geologists attending the 24th International Geological Congress in Montreal Aug. 21 to 30.

Delegates will make field excursions to all parts of Canada, both before and after the scientific sessions, to take a first - hand look at deposits of industrial minerals and building materials.

More than 8,000 geologists from around the world are expected at the Congress — the largest scientific gathering ever held in this country.

"I can't understand Judge Anderson sending a letter like this," he concluded.

(Editors note: Belleville does employ a large number of men and two women as school crossing guards.)

At this point, the mayor broke the news that chief Saunders is planning to implement a similar program here but needs time to get it working. He said the chief would need about two months to launch the student guard program.

"Before we wanted to keep the guards — now he wants to replace them (with students)," said Ketcheson.

Councillor Ted Parker introduced a motion that the guards be retained until Jan. 1 to facilitate the chief's plan. In doing so, he stated "it is not necessary to have grown men doing this when school children are doing it elsewhere."

PHILLIP EDWIN PEDEN son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Peden, 37 Charlotte St., Belleville, received his Bachelor of Arts degree in geography at the June convocation at Lakehead University, Thunder Bay. Mr. Peden, a former student of B.C.I.V.S., will continue studies on a part-time basis at the University of Western Ontario.

The Inevitable

If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again, was the motto of the day as youngsters passed the time yesterday, competing to see who could blow the biggest bubble. With each mouth filled with two standard size pieces of gum, the young people from East Hill Playground chomped happily all afternoon, kneading gum to its pliable best before hailing the judge (centre photo) playground supervisor Robert Bailey, to take a measurement. Then it was Paul Bailey's turn. With a last roll around the gums, Paul began shaping his bubble. As friends huddled around cheering him on, the bubble grew and was measured, with Paul declared winner. But after all, "what goes up must come down." The trip to Zwick's Island was one of the excursions taken by playground youngsters over the summer, usually parents as chiffeurs. This trip was the last for the season, with playground programs nearing their completion.

The Job Situation

Will the federal government do as Prince Edward - Hastings MP George Hees suggests and call a conference with the provinces to plan winter works programs in the face of heavy unemployment?

Well it is almost a political rule of thumb that governments do not respond with any alacrity, if they do so at all, to Opposition advice. The chances are that Ottawa will make no overt move in this direction. If it had intended to do so it would surely have moved by now.

Yet unemployment remains. That thousands will have no jobs this winter is as inevitable as the snow that will descend and the shorter hours at daylight and the overall desolation of it all.

Of course there are those unemployment payments which can be considerable, even better at times than if a man is working, but there is little stimulation (even though some may think there is), to being holed up for some five months with only beer and television for consolation.

As it is, it is a measure of the country's prosperity that there is sufficient support for those out of work, by reason of such monetary benefit. If it drains a lot out of the native response to challenge — there is no longer the necessity of finding a job — better that than no provision at all which could mean real hardship for many.

There is no doubt though that the Government could do more to put people to work. There are so many products for instance from abroad that it is a wonder industry here does not expand to produce such goods at home, affording more jobs for Canadians in the process.

What of the pioneering spirit? There are still areas in this country that remain undeveloped. The Arctic comes to mind of course but we do not have to travel that far to find regions that have seen little or nothing of the hand of man.

The Soviet Union seems to do well in this regard. In the process — as was pointed out in a recent issue of Soviet Union Today — dozens of new towns appear on the map annually. As a rule they are satellite towns at large construction sites involving plants, combines, hydro stations and refineries. Altogmd, a new town on the Kama river is one such community. An auto plant is being built there and an initial population of 50,000 is expected to grow to 350,000. We have more than enough cars in Canada, but no one has suggested there are many other potential spheres of industrial endeavor which could absorb many of those now out of work.

African Scene

The South African Financial Gazette is one of the interesting publications that come to this office. In addition to international and commercial news and articles, The Gazette offers a wide range of reading material, including travel features and articles on neighboring African territories and states.

Wherever may be thought for example of Portugal's continued maintenance of the colonial status of Angola and Mozambique it is trying to raise the standard of living in these territories. It is doing so at the risk of combatting Communist-backed terrorist activities in the country and The Gazette suggests that South Africans, as they have done elsewhere, might invest in the colony to assist the goal of economic prosperity.

If this should mean leaving the African population in a continuing position of political inferiority it should be appreciated that the alternative is much much worse. China it seems is behind the guerrilla activity Portugal has been fighting in its territories for some years now but which we hear little about. The Portuguese have distributed millions of posters in Mozambique showing a Chinaman symbolically emptying a bucket full of people onto a representation of the African continent. The accompanying legend says: "Communist China supports terrorism because they want Africa for their people".

Is this so improbable? Well there is a large Chinese contingent in Zambia and Tanzania; they are building a railway but let no one be surprised if it should come about that they are engaged in political activities as well.

And speaking of guerrilla warfare, here is something else we have learned from this overseas newspaper, that we owe the word "sabotage" to Dutch workmen who threw their "sabots" or heavy wooden shoes into the grinding gears of machinery introduced during the industrial revolution.

We live and learn.

Plans That Never Come Off

Consultants and Lobbyists Help Ottawa 'Put on the Dog'

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Ever think of the number of federal government programs that are announced with a fanfare of ministerial trumpets and then, conveniently, are wrapped quietly in mothballs?

From the announcement — usually made with a fancy "press kit" of prepared publicity releases, a press conference, interviews on radio and tele-ecords of programs that are announced casting television news — the government writings the maximum public exposure.

Properly done, it presents a picture of an administration that is "moving forward," as the cabinet ministers like to put it, "getting things done," and concerned only with "serving the public interest".

Frequently, the rest of the government game plan goes, that is enough.

The purpose is served of polishing the image of good political relations.

And nothing more is to be done except to go on with the announcement of the next program, taking it for granted, as it so often turns out, that the last one fades quickly from public interest and is forgotten.

Which has been just about what happened with the government "program" to do something about lobbyists and lobbying involved in the fine federal art of bringing influence to bear on the administration.

It was more than three years ago that the government, concluding that lobbying — or, to put it more crudely, influence peddling — might be a problem, announced plans for an investigation.

It was a double-barrelled publicity blast with the then Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford and the then Government House Leader Donald Macdonald both sounding off.

What seemed to be bothering them had been the establishing of two consulting firms by prominent federal political figures.

The two firms are still in business and flourishing.

Cause, too, for concern at the time, was the intense outside opposition generated against a government bill to cut drug prices and the bombs of scientists who swarmed into Ottawa to deny any causative link between smoking and lung cancer.

Mr. Basford commissioned a study of lobbying which he suggested could lead to legislation requiring lobbyists to register and disclose how much money they spent to promote their clients' interests.

The idea was, for example, that when, say, a prominent lawyer, or chartered accountant, or indeed a consultant, phoned himself down next to a cabinet minister at lunch or over a drink at the Rideau Club and gave him a strong pitch for free trade in television sets, it would be useful to know his angle.

The minister would have only to slip back to his office and financial critic Max Saltsman of Waterloo who listed the directorships of seven of the 10 senators in the Senate - Commons committee then studying tax reform.

Most of the 10 senators, charged Mr. Saltsman publicly, "were faced with conflict - of-interest situations".

Senators, like MPs, are in a special position to do some lobbying.

It is very much easier for them both to get an appointment and have a thorough discussion of the merits of a particular case they might be pleading with a cabinet minister or senior civil servant than for the average taxpayer.

So the field was fertile for cultivation by government investigators.

Donald Macdonald announced the Ron Basford the other, two parallel probes.

And that was more than three years ago.

Some Advice From Lands and Forests, Tweed

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Odd things can happen here. And among them to a premier.

If you get a request from a Gay Lib group for an official message to a big celebration they are having what do you do or say?

"Your government agrees. Boys should be BOYS".

Word is that the request somehow or other got mislaid.

Then there can be the question of who's on first.

The environment department as is well known is forgoing on vigorous battle against plastic jugs for milk.

The ministry of industry and tourism, through the Ontario Development Corporation, gives loans to small businesses to help them to grow.

And of course it would have to happen.

One of the loans the corporation has given was to Doo Bee Containers.

Doo Bee manufactures "plastic containers for the dairy industry."

The ministry of natural resources from the time it passes on handy hints through its weekly newsletter.

A current issue advises: "If your arms ache with every pail de thrust and you curse the green slime that winds around the blade after every dip, better heed the advice offered by the ministry of natural resources Tweed District staff."

What is it that one needs from the Tweed District staff?

It is advice on how to get rid of "aquatic vegetation."

The simplest way to do this, the Tweed District staff advises, is to cover the lake bottom with black plastic.

Also the whole lake. Just for limited areas like a boat channel.

In the rest of the lake your arms can continue to ache after every paddle thrust and you can continue to curse the green slime that winds around the blade after every dip.

And the Ontario Science Centre is getting ready to raise its entrance fees.

First, it raised the fees on its parking lot.

That's the scientific way to raise fees.

Do it a bite at a time—and off-centre with the first bite.

Democracy at the Local Level

The Trentonian

Generally speaking, municipal councils do business by majority vote. Issues are studied, discussed and finally voted on, based upon all available information. If a six man council ties 3-3, the mayor, as chairman may break the tie by voting. Otherwise he does not vote.

In a sense, the mayor has no more rights than any other councillor, in voting upon business. The laws of Ontario make provision that a council, chairman, either reeve or mayor, may if he wishes, show his disapproval of measures by refusal to sign the ensuing bylaws or resolutions. It is then that if a mayor and council are so at loggerheads that this happens often. Still, the council chairman is within his rights to do this.

In a private citizen he may oppose his council by the channels open to any citizen, even to asking for a municipal board hearing.

Any member of the council in the same position and can, as a private citizen, if he wishes, dissociate himself from a council resolutive action by appeal to the appropriate authorities at Queen's Park. It is obvious in the legislation that such friction exist, but the laws of the province recognize that human beings, not angels, get elected, and make provision for such contingencies.

A grey area in municipal government is conflict of interest. This results when a member of the council, including mayor, reeve, or deputy reeve, can be chosen to have yielded to influence, or be seeking some personal advantage, in recommending legislation. As a recent argument in Belleville has shown, one must have a great deal of evidence to make a charge of conflict of interest stick.

Each of the people elected is responsible, each to his own electors although matters which come before council.

Constant friction is not good in a council. But it is to be borne in mind that each person is elected, and each person must make up his own mind. Much fuss is made about disagreement, but surely the whole process of democracy is the right to disagree. Action is finally decided on after discussion, which means argument.

Even the majority right is not absolute. Majority rule must prevail or we should have chaos. But our law recognizes that minority opinion must not merely be heard but has such rights that it modifies the right of a majority to act. That is why hearings are allowed.

To those who cry only for efficiency, the processes of democracy are irritating and inefficient. But so far we have not devised anything better. Efficiency of a sort is accomplished by dictators. But free men have always resented the arrogance and inefficiency which respects individual and minority rights.

As a gift from Red Cross Headquarters, chevrons were received by the local branch to be worn on the sleeves of the smart-blue uniforms of the Red Cross staff workers. The chevrons are in red and white and each represents a year devoted to Red Cross work during the present war. Many of the workers have devoted more than a year to the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyde left on Friday for Ottawa where Mr. Hyde will be attached to the Ottawa Civil Service.

Nothing is wasted at the Red Cross rooms. Every length of string is saved and pieces of wool are made into afghans, a very heavy one having been brought in by the Tabernacle Church group a sample of what may be achieved with leftover wool. The material from the tearing of sheets is put away for waste and sent to munition plants for 'waste' where it is in great demand.

Hawaii: The Image In Paradise Is Changing

By Bill Maas in the Montreal Gazette

Someone once said that to be in heaven was to be a bee of ten again.

But to be a boy of ten in Paradise? Well you can't be much luckier.

We moved to Hawaii when I was 10, and we lived there nearly four years. Our house was right on the side of Diamond Head, on an Army base (Fort Ruger).

After school let out each day we could walk down to Waikiki Beach in ten minutes and go swimming. You didn't have to be a hotel guest.

Hawaii from 1937 to 1941 was an eminently relaxed place to live. There were the locals then, but they were relatively unobtrusive and few in number.

Then, in those four years, the landscape started changing. Where once there was just the staid old Royal Hawaiian Hotel and the Ala Wai, a cement trucks started rumbling about Kalakaua Avenue, the one that runs along Waikiki Beach.

The day we left Hawaii, I remember thinking how much it had changed in such a short time. Beautiful Honolulu was going commercial, losing its charm and gaining a skyline.

I remember now how relieved it was to Hawaii. No one wore shoes to school in this city. I can still play tennis in bare feet — and do, as on Hawaii — and no one tucked their brightly-colored aloha shirts in their pants.

Hawaiians are probably the most easy - going people in the world. When befriended, they'll do anything for you. There's a sound, gentle way of life will probably have to give way to progress. The tourist commission would be set up to plan the defence of North America. Although the agreement was never signed, the defences of the past were implemented.

1938—The United States failed in its first attempt to fire a rocket around the moon.

1941—Canadian troops captured the Normandy town of Falaise, met American forces advancing from the south, and sealed the German 7th Army in the Falaise Pocket.

1943—The Sicilian campaign ended with the capture of Messina.

1836—The Union Nationale swept power in a provincial election, winning 76 seats to 16 for the Liberals.

1812—The French army burned Smolensk, Russia.

Peterborough Controversy

Peterborough Examiner

Mayor Douglas Galvin's statement that he neither owns nor has any interest in any buildings in the proposed downtown redevelopment area still does not clear up the controversy.

The Examiner twice in the last eight days has suggested a full official inquiry is needed into the whole downtown redevelopment fiasco. Now, following the denial by the mayor we feel there is even more reason for an official inquiry.

In fact, now we go just one step further and suggest the whole matter is put before the Premier of Ontario, William Davis to let him decide what type of inquiry is needed. However he decides, it must be a full public hearing.

If, as the mayor says today he and his wife and his children have no interest in any property within the redevelopment area, then The Examiner feels the mayor should be afforded the opportunity of being cleared of any involvement at a full public hearing.

There are many little "gods" like habits, tradition, ambitions, some even in the name of religion, continually calling for our attention that will run us ragged if we prevent us from worshipping the true and living God. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve."

Highlights of Prince Edward Fairs Recalled By Historian

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Although records of early Prince Edward County fairs are described by retired fair secretary Philip Dodds as 'meagre except for newspapers," its history lives in the memories of local residents.

Mr. Dodds, who edited the book Ontario Agricultural Fairs and Exhibits 1791-1967, said yesterday he has considered writing a history of the county fair recalling 'many generally unknown or forgotten highlights.

Mr. Dodds, who served as secretary of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society for 25 years, can boast a predecessor who left outsized shoes to be filled.

The first secretary of the society was a Picton lawyer, L. P. MacPherson and the second secretary was J. A. MacPherson. Both were cousins of Canada's first prime minister Sir John A. MacDonald who took the fair records for his employers before winning political fame.

Organized in 1821, the society did not hold its first fair until 1826 but agriculture was actively promoted in this five-year span. In 1823 a committee was named to regulate the movement of bulls purchased by the society. A fee of five shillings was charged for each cow belonging to non-members and taken to the large bull. The small bull served only cows owned by society members.

It is noted in the book Ontario Agricultural Fairs and Exhibitions that a similar policy was later used with sheep and horses.

The lieutenant - governor was petitioned in 1832 by the society in a bid for permission to hold a fair. When it first opened, 100 pounds had been received from the government plus 154 pounds, 2 shillings in donations.

Prize lists included classes for two mares and colts, cow, sow, ram, two ewes, two cheeses, 10 yards of domestic flannel and a pair of domestic socks.

Because records of Picton's early fairs are sketchy, it is impossible to verify contentions of several old timers that the immortal race horse Dan Patch once appeared in a fall exhibition here. Several older residents of the county claim, however, that driving horses carrying Dan Patch blood were owned in the county in the early 1900's. Mr. Dodds observed yesterday that the Queen's Plate once was run at Picton fair and won by an entry, called Mocs Rose. He explained this classic horse race was held at many small fairs before its establishment in Toronto. When the race was run in Picton, the fairgrounds was located in another part of town near the site of Queen Elizabeth school.

PHILIP DODDS

The fair has been held at its present Main Street East location since 1886 and most of the original buildings have been maintained for exhibits.

Perhaps the building drawing most comment is the Crystal Palace, a weather-beaten replica of its namesake in London, England.

When the palace was first constructed, its sides and roof were made of glass. The splendor of these shimmering walls inevitably attracted small boys with stones and slingshots. Despite valiant repair efforts by the fair Board it became necessary to remove the glass and replace it with lumber. Although the building forfeited all resemblance to the original Crystal Palace the name stuck and is still used today to describe the centre for commercial displays and home cooking exhibits.

The grandstand at Picton fairgrounds has fought a brave battle against time and vandalism and last month was rejuvenated with 22 gallons of paint.

Although Mr. Dodds doesn't know the construction date of the stand, it remains the gathering place for crowds each year.

Harness racing, once a colorful and important part of the fair is now staged as an exhibition event each year.

Construction of the County Centre and the curling club in the infield has made a clear view of the half-mile track impossible, but race fans still enjoy watching the horses hit the wire.

Many older Picton residents recall when the track was used as a training centre for Standardbreds from Belleville, Picton and Kingston. Today it is still used by several harness horsemen trying their favorites for the mile.

An 1853 report from the Prince Edward Agricultural Society noted "Prince Edward is celebrated for her breed of trotting horses and numbers have been purchased annually for New York and Philadelphia. Rearing horses for the road as well as for farm service has been found very remunerative." Records also show that in 1853, 477, with a total value of $15,200 were exported to the United States.

Mr. Dodds commented, that fair entries have grown from 603 in 1856 to more than 10,000 in 1965.

For several years the fair suffered financially and was not held. The fairground during this period was taken over by the county.

Among distinguished visitors in the 1950s were Lord Aberdeen and Lord Byng, each a former governor-general of Canada.

Mr. Dodds says Lord Byng greeted the crowd from a reviewing stand at the Crystal Palace.

A more recent visitor of prominence was prime minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau who headlined last year's county fair as a special guest of honor.

In 1854, township fairs were held in Hallowell, Hillier, Sophiasburg, Athol, Ameliasburg and Marysburg.

Today Milford fair is the only remaining township fair. It is not a member of the fairs' association.

The 1972 fair will open September 8 and continue through September 10.

Jury Told How Fathers Tried to Save Children

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — Desperate attempts by two fathers to save seven children from drowning failed when a glass fibre boat which wasn't equipped with standard plugs for flotation tanks sank to the bottom of Georgian Bay, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

The jury investigating the deaths of 10 persons in the July 23 mishap near here recommended that boat manufacturers be required to affix plugs for air tanks by means of fasteners so that they would "always be available."

Claudia Contois burst into tears as she told of the last minutes of life for her husband, three children and a ward, her brother-in-law, his wife and three children.

Mrs. Contois told how the boat, which the jury was told contained about 1,250 pounds while only being designed to carry 650 pounds, capsized as the two families were going on a camping vacation.

"It turned over," she said. "They (the husbands) went after the kids and put them up on the boat. . . . It turned over again" and the children were put on the floundering boat again.

She said her husband, Richard, "decided to go for help, tried to swim to shore."

"After he left, the boat went under," she sobbed, "and there was just Martin, Monica, Danny, Eugene and I left."

The dead, all from the Aurora area, were Richard Contois, husband of the surviving woman, and their children Martin, 9; Anthony, 7; Annette, 6; and a ward, Sheila Ryan, 2; Eugene Contois, brother of Richard, his wife, Patricia, and their children Karen, 9; Michael, 7; and Danny 4.

Mrs. Contois talked to shore three hours after the mishap. Her daughter, Monica, was picked up by a passing boat after treading water for almost 90 minutes.

Mrs. Contois told of how the two families spent the holiday Saturday night, the night before the accident.

She testified that on arriving in Midland there was some discussion about whether they should camp on shore, make two trips to the island by boat or go all at once.

"Myself, I didn't think it was that windy. It was a nice clear night.

"I thought that it would be all right because the children were mostly smaller" she replied when asked whether she thought the boat was overcrowded.

As they left shore, the two men were sitting in the back with Eugene driving. His wife, Pat, was in the bow.

As they got out, the water became choppy and began coming over the bow.

"They asked Pat to move further to the back and that tipped the water in the back of the boat," Mrs. Contois said.

"My husband and my brother-in-law realized they were in trouble and should head for shore—the nearest one," she said.

She said the boat attempted to turn east, then "it turned over."

Van Horne Fired as Tourist Minister

FREDERICTON (CP) — J. C. (Charlie) Van Horne's dismissal Wednesday as New Brunswick tourism minister offis another chapter to the story of one of Canada's most colorful public figures.

The 51-year-old former lumber mill worker, RCMP officer, member of Parliament, provincial Progressive Conservative leader and Opposition leader in the New Brunswick legislature became the former tourism minister at the request of Premier Richard Hatfield.

The Conservative premier said he had asked his minister to resign because Mr. Van Horne had "seriously failed to satisfy the standards necessary with respect to his responsibility to administer the department's programs within its budget."

Mr. Hatfield said through Mr. Van Horne's "personal initiative" and with his knowledge and approval, the tourism department had spent or committed about $3.2 million beyond approved departmental estimates.

Being in the midst of controversy is nothing new for Charlie Van Horne once a maverick backbench MP who turned his oratorical guns on his own Conservative party as well as the Liberals.

B. C. Socreds and NDP Both Field Full Slates

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit and the New Democratic Party both fielded full slates of 55 candidates Wednesday for the Aug. 30 British Columbia election, while the Progressive Conservatives fell six short and the Liberals muffed their plans for a full complement.

Liberal Candidates Trudy Gibson and Robert Forrest had their nomination papers in the two - member Vancouver East riding rejected because both sets did not have the required number of signatures from eligible voters.

Earlier, two Conservatives in the Vancouver Centre riding, which also elects two members, had their names knocked off the ballot because they brought in their papers 10 minutes after the 1 p.m. PDT nominations deadline expired across the province.

Despite elimination of four candidates, there is a record total of 226 candidates seeking the 55 legislature seats at stake, compared with 177 in the 1969 election. In addition to full slates of New Democrats and Social Crediters, there are 53 Liberals, 49 Tories, five Communists and nine independents in the running.

Returning Officer Joe Dang made the decision after consulting late Wednesday with Chief Electoral Officer Morton. Mr. Dang said the two sets of papers "carried only 46 legitimate signatures each, four short of the required. 50 each."

Moderator Youngest Ever

SASKATOON (CP) — The newly-elected moderator of the United Church of Canada is listed as the youngest man ever to hold the top position in Canada's largest Protestant denomination.

Rt. Rev. Norman Bruce McLeod, 41, succeeded 60-year-old Rt. Rev. A. B. E. Moore Tuesday night.

In taking over the post, Dr. McLeod was one year younger than Very Rev. Angus J. MacQueen who was 44 when elected in 1958. But the new leader doesn't consider himself "a youthful moderator."

"I can't tell you any longer what youth wants. We have to listen to them."

Forgiveable Loans for Farmers Asked

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture announced Wednesday that it will approach the federal and provincial governments with a plan to aid eastern Ontario farmers whose crops have been partially destroyed due to recent heavy rains.

The federation said in a news release that it will ask the two governments to split the cost of granting farmers loans forgiveable over a five-year period.

The release said losses would be assessed by the Crop Insurance Commission of Ontario.

Between 70 and 80 per cent of the hay, pasture, spring grain and corn crops is a total loss, the federation said.

"The farmers desperately need these loans now," OFA president Gordon Hill said in the statement. "Not next month or next year. We trust that ours shoulder the responsibility elected representatives will burn the red tape and act."

Fruit Prices Up

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Tender Fruit Growers Marketing Board announced Wednesday increases ranging from $5 to $20 a ton for plums, peaches and pears.

The board also said any fruit that is below marketing standards would be sold to distillers together with any surplus fruit.

Prices for all varieties of plums will increase by $5 bringing the cost of most varieties to $125.50, with some as high as $170.50 a ton.

The clingstone and freestone peach varieties rose by $20 a ton to $150.50 and $160.50 a ton respectively.

The Bartlett variety of pear will increase by $17.50 over 1971 to $145.50 a ton.

Reject Rezoning

HULL, Que. (CP) — Home owners celebrated Wednesday what one of them called "a victory of the people" after the defeat of a city rezoning bid in the controversial Deschenes Rapids affair.

The move, which called for approval of a city by-law rezoning the site of the Daskew development for apartment buildings, was rejected in a referendum by a vote of 178-75.

Miss CNE Chosen

TORONTO (CP) — Debby Carter, 18, of Toronto was crowned Wednesday as Miss CNE. Sweetheart of the Fair, winning over 40 other girls from across Ontario at the opening day of the Canadian National Exhibition.

No Closed Shop

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Both sides in the stalemated Dare Foods Ltd. strike, now in its 11th week, said Wednesday they will meet anytime at the call of the provincial ministry of labor.

But William Thom, executive vice-president of the firm, said a closed union shop will never be permitted in any contract discussed at future mediation talks.

Extraditable

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Edith Irving has been found extraditable to Switzerland to face criminal charges stemming from her activity with her husband in the Howard Hughes "autobiography" hoax. The court ordered Mrs. Irving turned over to the U.S. attorney-general's office upon completion of a two-month jail sentence stemming from her guilty plea on federal and state charges. The court left the matter to the discretion of the secretary of state to determine whether she should be turned over to the Swiss.

'Unconditioning'

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates attending the annual convention of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario Wednesday were told they could help promote the status of women by starting to "uncondition little girls."

Victoria Hall of Simcoe told a discussion group that "we have been conditioned ourselves but we can help the girls in our classes."

Five Arrested

TORONTO (CP) — Police have arrested five men in connection with the theft of a truck and its load of zinc ingots worth $10,500.

The truck, owned by Kent Leasing Ltd., of Toronto was recovered near Brockville.

Vote on Contract

TORONTO (CP) — About 1,700 striking bricklayers will vote today on a new contract proposal, which, if accepted, will end their 17-day strike.

The offer would boost wages by more than $1.10 an hour to $7.45 at the end of the proposed two-year contract.

John Meiorin, president of Local 1, Bricklayers, Masons Independent Union, said he expected the bricklayers to accept the offer.

Cavity Drained

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama underwent surgery Wednesday to reduce a potentially dangerous abscess caused by a "dirty bullet" that spread bacteria through the body of the Alabama governor. A spokesman at University Hospital said Wallace was fully awake and in good condition after the 6-minute operation to drain a cavity on the right side of his abdominal region.

English Channel Tunnel Okay

PARIS (Reuter) — France and Britain have given the go-ahead for final studies envisaging a start next year on the construction of an English Channel tunnel linking the two countries, it was announced Wednesday.

A French transport ministry communique called the move "a decisive step in the realization of the tunnel."

The communique said French Transport Minister Robert Galley and his British counterpart, John Peyton, had authorized a new phase of study and works which will involve the ground technically and financially for definite construction.

The French and British private groups backing the tunnel project will carry out the study within the framework of an international convention to be signed on Sept. 30, it said.

This is a decisive step in the realization of the tunnel. The convention lays down the conditions under which the methods of tunnel construction in mid-1973 will be drawn up," the communique added.

The basic plan is for a rail tunnel linking Dover and Calais, where the Channel is only about 22 miles wide.

Latest estimated cost of the tunnel which would itself be some 35 miles long, is $815 million, according to figures given to the British Parliament by Peyton last month. This compares with an estimate of $500 million four years ago.

The ministerial go-ahead was the most crucial step in the long-discussed project since the two governments decided to launch preliminary studies eight years ago.

The communique said the principles for financing the tunnel will be worked out at the convention next month.

Civil Service Bargaining Reorganization Urged

HAMILTON (CP) — Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, called Wednesday for a major reorganization of legislation governing collective bargaining in the federal civil service.

Mr. Edwards was speaking at a news conference following his speech to the opening of the Economic Service Employees National Association convention.

He said the system was fine five years ago but now the Public Service Staff Relations Board was understaffed and overworked.

Mr. Edwards said PSAC components have their arbitration system limited to four issues — wages, vacations, hours of work and standards of discipline.

Pensions, layoff procedures and methods of promotion are not negotiable at all, he added.

"Job security is a major issue with us now. Our bargaining scope must be widened."

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM R. BLUE

Blue – Meagher

St. Joseph's Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony of Linda Marie Meagher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meagher, Belleville and William Robert Blue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Blue, Madoc. Monsignor J. A. Carley solemnized the nuptial mass. Sister Mary Avila played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Robert Park, Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length Alfred Angelo gown of white organza featuring a high-in shaped bertha. The sheer bodice and sleeves and the A-line skirt were enhanced with imported pearled Alencon lace appliques. A wide border of Alencon lace trimmed the bottom of the skirt and the chapel train. The four - tiered pearled veil of silk illusion was held in place by a camelot styled headpiece of imported pearled Alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of deep rose carnations, centred with white orchids.

Maid of honor, Miss Sandra Maiel of Oshawa wore a floor-length gown of champagne pink chiffon, featuring antique ivory lace trimming on the bodice and long full sleeves gathered at the wrist. The softly shirred skirt fell in graceful folds to the floor. A wide picture hat of ivory mohair with matching antique ivory lace completed her attire. She carried a colonial cluster of pale pink carnations centred with deep pink rose buds. The bridesmaids were Miss Marilyn Meagher, sister of the bride and Miss Susan O'Riordan of Madoc. They were identically attired to the maid of honor and carried colonial clusters of pale pink carnations centered with deep pink rosebuds.

Best man was David Armstrong of Madoc, and the ushers were John Blue, brother of the bridegroom and Brian Houlihan of Ottawa.

For the wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania, the bride donned an egg shell shantung ensemble with red accessories and a corsage of red roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Blue will reside at 2081 Baseline Road, Apt. 31, 3 Ottawa.

Took Unreasoning Abuse for Eight Years

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: A few weeks after we were married (eight years ago) my husband came home drunk very late one night, dragged me out of bed and beat me black and blue for absolutely no reason. I had to stay home from work for two weeks until the black eye and swollen cheeks were back to normal. Next morning he was full of apologies, but the whole thing happened over and over again and is still happening.

You may wonder why I did not pack up and leave right then. Well, it is because when he is sober there is no one who can compare with him.

But last summer he began molesting our oldest daughter. I had been thanking God that the senseless beatings had stopped, then once I got up in the middle of the night, heard our daughter crying softly and him telling her to shut up. I phoned the police, he was taken away, released and warned if it happened again he would be jailed.

For six wonderful months he stopped drinking, and then started it again. He has now turned to perverted acts towards me and I can take no more. The children call him "bad daddy".

I know I must leave him. I now have a permanent job. My problem is financial since I don't feel I can count on much from my husband and I cannot live on what I can in an ends meet.

Should I stay on with him and lead this type of life, or should I think of my children and leave him? — Battered and Baffled.

Dear Battered: Hope springs eternal, doesn't it? I know one woman who put up with the same kind of mistake for 16 years before the worm finally turned. For a few months she and her three children bunked in with members of her family until she got a full-time job. The atmosphere in the home she finally made for them all is one of joy and freedom — freedom from fear of abuse from a drunken father.

But the break should have been made many years earlier. . .

Same with you. Your finances may be tight but you have every right to support from this man for yourself and his five children. You have the backbone to go through with it and there are skilled family counsellors who can help you to figure out a budget. Don't waste another minute.

* * *

Dear Doris: There was a letter from "Do It Now" which really touched my heart.

I had a very good friend who really loved me — a forbidden love — but I am now very sorry I didn't assure that person the way I felt for him before he died.

The only comfort I have is that he told me before his death that I was the most wonderful person he had ever met. Yet I could do nothing about it as I was tied down to somebody else. — Love Still Lingers.

Dear Love: I'm sorry. You are repeating the experience that has happened to others, yet you were true to your trust and held back on responding.

But perhaps the one lesson we can learn is that where it is legal and logical to express appreciation and love, there is no time like the present.

Confidential to Mrs. B.: The leaflet "Facing Forty" is an ills- way, although a back which bends, and an inability to straighten up, is not a familiar symptom of menopause. Some of the other symptoms may be. Is there a back injury in your past? If the family doctor is puzzled too, the next move is to an orthopedic specialist.

Perhaps your diet needs more bone-building calcium. There might be an exercise you could do to strengthen muscles. Or three (1) your family doctor or (2) the clinic at your local general hospital. A diagnosis has to come ahead of treatment.

Youth Perform In Unique Family Show

MADOC (Special) — Numerous youngsters, teens and adults were treated to a unique family show performed by the Black Box Theatre Youth Company Tuesday night in the gymnasium of Centre Hastings Secondary School.

The government - sponsored company presented an exciting version of Peter and the Wolf, utilizing manipulators invisible to the audience plus props and puppets painted fluorescent colors which glowed under ultra violet light.

Peter and the Wolf is a Russian fable used to teach the instruments of the orchestra to children. The company combined the classical version of this story with the jazz version to produce a soundtrack which proved both dynamic and exciting.

With the use of live actors and puppets, the story was brought to life in a very realistic manner.

The colorful presentation was most entertaining and its effect on the children was magical.

Bike Rodeo Held At Tweed Centre

Matter of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Should you do only what you enjoy?

CERTAINLY—If you want to be immobile most of your life. To be practical, though, a person must try to enjoy doing the things he has to do even if he would much rather be doing something else. This isn't so difficult if an individual can see that the distasteful necessities make the enjoyable pursuits more enjoyable. For instance, one would not enjoy a cold moment by a cold stream unless he experienced some of the disquiet he is trying to escape.

Is a man sure his wife is happy?

YES, if the husband works at making his marriage succeed. Certainly there are marriages in which a husband is left speechless when his wife walks out on him—the very wife he was so sure loved him. If the husband would think about it honestly, however, he would see that he believed his wife was happy only because it never occurred to him that she could be otherwise. This is typical of a man who thinks only about himself.

Does orderliness help a student?

YES; and that is not parental propaganda. Sure, some students do their best work when everything is a mess in their study area. There are probably the extra bright ones who really don't need to study until they go to high school or college. Then, even these students will be thankful for learning to be orderly. They will not only know where to find things, but they will be able to make certain all their subjects get "equal time."

Ann Landers

Parents Resentful Following Tragedy

Dear Ann Landers: I am 15 and feel like 105. My cousin was killed in an accident last year. We were the same age and were close as sisters. We did everything together. Many people thought we were twins because we looked alike and often dressed alike.

Since the accident I have cut my hair and put away our look-alike clothes. I've done everything I can think of to change my looks. It hasn't helped. Her parents still avoid me. They resent the fact that I am alive and she is gone. When I come into a room they leave. What can I do—Heavy Heart

Dear H.H.: If your heart is heavy you can imagine what their hearts are like. Try to understand and don't hold this against them. Hopefully one day they will be able to recover from their loss and accept you for yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: I read an article in yesterday's paper about rent-a-girl services in many major cities. It seems girls can be rented for $50 an evening. Although the ads imply no funny stuff, no man is going to pay $50 for conversation.

I was shocked to learn these services have the approval of the Chamber of Commerce and the Better Business Bureau.

My husband travels so that article had special meaning. He comes off the road exhausted. I find myself shushing the kids so he can sleep late, getting his clothes in shape for the next trip and being understanding while he regains his energy.

What do you think about the rental business. How can a wife fight it.—Mrs. Left Behind

Dear Mrs.: Since my husband is chairman of the board of a major car rental organization, I won't touch the rental business—but girls are something else.

A man who wants to play around doesn't need our approval of the Chamber or Commerce or the Better Business Bureau. And he doesn't have to leave town either. If your marriage is healthy you don't have to worry. If it isn't, worrying won't help.

Dear Ann Landers: We need your help. Here's the problem: Should we attend the wedding if all we received was a verbal invitation given at the shower? My wedding.

The bride to be announced, after she had finished opening the presents, "Thank you very much for these lovely gifts. And now I hope you will all come to my wedding."

There were about 100 people at that shower, and there are mixed feelings among the guests. I always believed the proper way to extend a wedding invitation is by mail. But so many things are changing these days, I'm not sure anymore. Please give us an answer—Different Opinions In Cottonwood, Kansas.

Dear Diff A blanket phrase, backed up by "thank you for the lovely gifts" is not my idea of a sincere invitation to a wedding. It's what we used to call a Hollywood invitation. "Come over sometime."

Dear Ann Landers: If a friend who is your same age, like 19, says, "I would like you to come over to my house and play some time," is this a real invitation or should I wait until she asks me for a certain day? Would it be all right if I called her and asked if I could come over now or would it be too pushy? Please help me settle this in my head.—Mixed Up In Pittsburgh

Dear Mixed: Read the previous letter again—and pay special attention to what I said about Hollywood invitations.

A good way to get the message across with a person says, "Please come over some time," is to reply, "I'd love to. When?"

Taxpayers Satisfied With Public Schools

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario taxpayers have indicated in a survey they are generally satisfied with elementary schools in spite of rapid increase in education costs.

The survey results were released Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario. They include findings since 1968, when the last survey was done for the FWTAO.

The survey indicates 54 per cent of property tax payers are satisfied with the returns they receive from the education system. People over 60 are less satisfied 61 per cent would prefer that some education costs come from a source other than property tax.

Two thirds of all respondents favored the elimination of Grade 13. Other suggestions for cutting costs included the elimination of frills such as snowmobiles and elevators.

Discipline in elementary schools is felt not to be strong enough by 58 per cent of respondents. In addition to discipline problems, drugs, lack of interests and over-crowding are the major problems in Ontario schools.

The strong points are felt to be curriculum, up-to-date methods, teachers and teaching standards. Eighty one per cent said they were satisfied with the job done by their child's last teacher.

A federation release suggests there is some opposition to the provincial education policy of imposing ceilings on local spending on education. A total of 68 per cent of respondents said local school boards should be allowed to raise additional money to provide extra services if they wish.

Ontario residents (44 per cent) feel about the right amount is being spent on education. Nearly three quarters (74 per cent) are against raising taxes for elementary schools.

About one third of the respondents said about the right number of educational changes are being tried in elementary schools.

Most respondents feel salaries for elementary school teachers are about right and most have a high regard for the teachers.

Seventy two per cent of elementary school parents feel that teaching religion is mainly the responsibility of the parents.

About two thirds are of the opinion that sex education should be shared about equally between parent and school.

More than that, about three quarters feel drug education should be shared between parent and school.

Occasional personal discussions with the teacher (67 per cent), and report cards showing examination results (65 per cent), are the main ways in which parents want to be informed of the progress of their children.

Ontario Politicians to Enjoy Extra-pay Holidays Overseas

TORONTO (CP) — It's travelling time for nearly a third of Ontario's provincial politicians, and, of course, it's paying time for the folks at home.

Premier William Davis leaves Wednesday for an 11-day trip to France, Germany and England. Following close on his heels, Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer, and his party will leave for a week in Germany and Switzerland.

The main purpose of their trips is to arrange loans for Ontario.

After they return, 33, and possibly 44, members of the legislature will pack their suitcases and head for Europe.

On Sept. 14 the 11-member select committee on the use of schools will take off for a 22-day tour of Finland, Denmark and England.

The next day, the 11-member select committee on economic nationalism will take off for a tour, lasting to Oct. 11, of France, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Sweden and England.

The committee returns Friday from New York where it has spent five days in talks with business and government officials.

On Sept. 21, the 11-member select committee on company law will fly to London for a week.

On Aug. 27, the select committee studying the Ontario Municipal Board will take off for a Canadian tour and may also travel to London, England, for a Sept. 21-Oct. 2 visit. "But that hasn't been finalized yet," an official said.

M r. Davis' first-class round-trip ticket will cost $966. His wife, three assistants, a bodyguard, and the wife of one of the assistants will go along. The wives' fares will be paid personally by their husbands.

An official of the schools-use committee said travelling costs for each of the 11 members will be $541. He said he had no idea what the hotel and meal expenses would be. There was no estimate of the expenses of the other committees.

Each of the 33 legislature members will be paid $50 a day while in Europe, in addition to their annual salaries of $18,000.

Chinese Exhibit Opened at CNE

TORONTO (CP) — China's trade minister led the way Wednesday into a sales display in his country featuring everything from computers to tiger bone pills and expressed the hope that more business can be done with Canada.

Canadian Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin echoed the hope as he and Pai Hsiang Kuo jointly snipped a red ribbon to open the Peking government's trade exhibition, occupying a full building at the Canadian National Exhibition.

First minister of the People's Republic of China to visit Canada since the countries established diplomatic relations in 1970, Mr. Pai said this exhibit and a concurrent Canadian exposition in Peking are evidence of "a sincere desire to develop relations between the two countries on the principle of mutual benefit."

He said he hopes his own visit as head of a trade mission to Canada and the presence of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp in China will "promote relations and improve trade" between the two countries.

The Chinese envoy and his party arrived from Ottawa at a heavily-guarded sector of the annual CNE on its opening day, but there were no demonstrations except for polite handclapping from about 200 spectators as the ministers spoke outdoors and enthusiastic waving of banners and flags by members of the local Chinese community.

Dieppe Men Recalled With Pride

LONDON (CP) — "I remember with pride the guts of our Canadians," says Col. Charles Cecil Merritt, winner of the first Canadian Victoria Cross in the Second World War.

"It was just part of the job and we did it in our day as young people would do it today," says Lt.-Col. John Foote, the Presbyterian padre who also earned the Victoria Cross, highest award for bravery, in that devastating Dieppe raid 30 years ago.

"I think of the reunions and observances as a sort of club of friendship but you cannot help feeling disappointed in a battle that was not successful," says Marcel Lambert, the Calgary Tanks Troop commander who described his Churchill tank six-pounder guns as "peashooters."

All three, and 1,943 other Canadians, shared the same fate, prisoners in the hands of the equipped Germans who could hardly believe their eyes when the Canadians swarmed from their assault ships to the pebbled beaches of the French port in the early morning of Aug. 19.

Cripple Admitted

TORONTO (CP) — Eighteen-year-old Linda Di Carlo has been granted her wish for landed immigrant status in Canada—thanks to Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasey.

Mr. Mackasey announced Wednesday in Ottawa that he was using his ministerial discretion to make Lina an exception to the rule that persons with severe physical handicaps are not permitted into Canada on a permanent basis.

The girl faced deportation to Italy under that rule because she is confined to a wheelchair after contracting polio as an infant. She has been living in Toronto on a temporary permit since arriving here in 1966.

Lina, who is currently vacationing at the Blue Mountain camp for crippled children near Collingwood, Ont., was elated when told the news Wednesday.

"That means I can get my disability pension and finish Grade 13, and go to university, and get a job and support myself and it's wonderful," she said.

Argonauts Skid To Third Loss

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, pre-season choices to take their second consecutive Eastern Football Conference title, skidded to their third successive defeat Wednesday night, but Ottawa Rough Riders needed a last-minute goal-line stand before 33,135 customers to win 14-8 and preserve their unbeaten record at three straight games.

After a miserable first half, the Argos appeared to come to life when quarterback Greg Barton found his passing game. Leon McQuay and Eric Allen provided the home team with a last-ditch drive that fizzled on the Ottawa nine-yard line when Dan Dever knocked down a Barton pass on the last play of the game.

Gerry Organ, the EFC's leading scorer, padded his total with two field goals, a convert and a single for eight of Ottawa's points.

The Rough Riders turned a 41-yard pass interception by defensive halfback Dick Adams into the game's only touchdown early in the third quarter.

Zenon Andrusyshyn supplied all the Argonauts' scoring with two fourth-quarter field goals and two earlier singles.

Adams, who also punted for the Ottawa team, seemed to knock the confidence out of the Argos 51 seconds into the third quarter when he collared a Barton pass and raced into the end zone before McQuay, the intended receiver, caught him.

Rick Cassata completed five successive passes in Ottawa's first series and in eight plays moved the ball from his own 20-yard line to the Toronto 31. Organ then booted a 38-yard field goal.

Bad feeling between the two clubs flared at the end of the first quarter when Doug Collins, Ottawa's veteran defensive end, was ejected by referee Jim King for kicking Toronto newcomer Bruce Bergey. Several other incidents were held in check until the final whistle when Argo Coach Leo Cahill ran onto the field to confront game officials.

The Riders had two other touchdowns called back. A Cassata pass to Billy Cooper was nullified when the Ottawa player was called for interference on Argos' Dave Ralph mey, and an 85-yard play, from Cassata to Terry Wellesley, was wiped out when one of the Riders' offensive linemen was nailed for holding.

Toronto held an edge in first downs, 13-11, and rushing, 132 to 71. Cassata, who had only one of his 23 passes intercepted by two by Barton from 38, hit on 12 for 177 yards while the Toronto quarterback was good on nine for 112 yards.

Cassata led the Riders' ground game with 30 yards on four carries. Their workhorse, Art Castelle, was held to 11 yards on 12 carries. McQuay, with 69 yards on 12 carries and Allen with 65 for 12, led Toronto.

Wellesley caught three other passes for 55 yards, while Hugh Oldham caught two for 36 yards and Rhune Nixon picked up 24 yards on two receptions.

Denson Still Question Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Halfback Moses Denson of Montreal Alouettes can breathe more easily these days but that does not necessarily mean he will be able to play against the Tiger Cats in Hamilton Saturday night.

A bothersome growth in the middle of the Montreal player's back was diagnosed as benign following a biopsy Wednesday.

However the operation involved deeper cutting than had been anticipated and Denson is a question mark for Saturday.

Eskies Now 3-0

REGINA (CP) — Grabbing victory from the brink of defeat is becoming a habit with Edmonton Eskimos.

The Western Football Conference leaders staged another come-from-behind production Wednesday night, defeating Saskatchewan Roughriders 37-25 to stretch an unbeaten string to three games in as many starts.

Last Friday, Hamilton Tiger-Cats watched a 21-point lead disappear in the last 11 minutes of a game that went in the Eskimos' favor 30-27.

It went like this Wednesday:

Saskatchewan, directed by quarterback Ron Lancaster, moved downfield for touchdowns the first two times the Riders got the ball in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter the Riders had a touchdown pass called back when they were caught holding.

Just after that call, Bayne Norrie made the only exception of the game and returned a 32 yards. Bruce Lemerman then tossed a pass to Tyrone Walls for a 32-yard Edmonton touchdown.

Less than two minutes later Lemmerman passed to George McGowan who raced 61 yards for another touchdown.

As if two quick slaps like that weren't enough in the face of Rider coach Dave Sarien, Eskimos flanker Bobby Taylor threw the ball at him in disgust when a pass was ruled incomplete on the sidelines.

Clyde Brock jumped from the Saskatchewan bench and mixed it up with Taylor only to get thrown out of the game. Taylor was tagged with an unsportsmanlike penalty.

Edmonton's Larry Watkins jumped on the ball and it was all over for Saskatchewan, now in the league cellar with one win in four games.

Tour Plans Going Smoothly

TORONTO (CP) — Since Bob Haggart has the job of seeing that everything goes smoothly on Team Canada's tour of Russia next month, he is arranging to fly over several dozen rolls of Canadian toilet paper.

As a member of the advance party visiting Moscow to set up the last half of the series against the Russian hockey team, Haggart tested the local bathroom tissue and found it had the consistency of sandpaper.

The former trainer of Toronto Maple Leafs, now business agent for a number of professional athletes, says his job with Team Canada is to keep the players happy.

"If you have to describe my function, that's it," he said. "To keep everybody in a good frame of mind and to solve problems as they arise."

For instance:

"Gary Bergman was driving in from Detroit and he phoned me to report his car had broken down. I had to arrange a tow truck for him and to get him here. Now Mickey Redmon's car is on the fritz. Another job for old Haggy."

The toilet paper was one problem Haggert nipped in the bud. He looked after another when he sampled the Moscow beer and found it had a strange, barley-like flavor." The team will take along a few cases of a Canadian brew.

"I've advised the players, based on my own experience, to take along their own soap, too."

Ballard Won't Quit

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, denied Wednesday night a report that he planned to resign immediately as a governor of the National Hockey League.

"I've been getting calls all night that I've resigned as president of the Gardens and as a governor of the NHL," Ballard said. "That's not true. I won't resign unless I'm forced to resign by the governors.

"It's not up to Clarence Campbell (president of the NHL) to ask for my resignation. He works for the governors. The governors would have to take a vote."

During a golf tournament at Hull, Que., earlier Wednesday, Campbell said simply "he'll resign" when asked about the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey club president.

Ballard was convicted Tuesday on charges of fraud and theft in conjunction with the operations of Maple Leafs in Toronto.

"Basically it's his decision," Campbell said. "But if he doesn't react, the board will."

It was reported earlier Wednesday that Ballard would resign from the board of governors but that no decision had been made regarding his office as president of the Gardens.

"My wife got a little excited when she caught her first fish."

'Spies' Arrive

TORONTO (CP) — Russian coaches Arcardi Chernechev and Boris Kulugin arrived at Toronto International Airport from Moscow Wednesday night and were to attend a Team Canada hockey workout today at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"We only want to see how they're playing professional hockey in the same way that the Canadians are going over to see how the Russians play."

The two will scout the Team Canada training camp for 10 days before returning to Moscow with their reports.

John McLellan and Bob Davidson, coach and "spy" respectively of Toronto Maple Leafs, were to leave on a similar scouting expedition to Moscow this week.

Chernechev, senior coach of the Russian National team at the Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, was released from that position prior to the world championships in Prague last May.

Kenya Medals In Jeopardy

NAIROBI (Reuter) — President Jomo Kenyatta announced Wednesday that Kenya will not take part in the Munich Olympics if a Rhodesian team competes. The president, according to the government's Kenya News Agency, said the Kenyans already in Munich will be called home unless Rhodesia is banned from the Games. The Kenyan team includes three reigning Olympic champions— Kipchoge Keino, Amos Biwott and Naftali Temu.

Brundage Bows Out Fighting

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Avery Brundage, preparing to step down as president of the International Olympic Committee, is acting like a man who welcomes the chance to bow out fighting.

Brundage, 84, was in a jovial mood as he talked to reporters Wednesday about what will likely be his final—and one of the toughest—fights of his 20 years in office.

His opponent this time is not professionalism or commercialism, but politics—in the form of a black African movement to boycott the Munich Olympic Games because of participation by athletes from the breakaway British colony of Rhodesia.

"We cannot tolerate political interference," Brundage said after putting the boycotters on notice that their national Olympic committees stand to be dropped from the IOC and their athletic teams disqualified from future Olympic competition.

Ten days before the start of the Games, seven African states had served notice that their teams would not participate if the Rhodesians did.

Brundage insists the Rhodesians will remain since they are adhering to conditions the African themselves prescribed last year. These included marching under the old colonial flag with the Union Jack, accepting the designation of southern Rhodesia and observing "God Save the Queen" as Rhodesia's national anthem.

Brundage's successor is expected to be elected during the pre - Olympics IOC meeting here. The plenary session opens on Aug. 21.

Two leading prospects for the post are IOC Vice Presidents Lord Killanin of Ireland and Count Jean De Beaumont of France.

Munro Offers to Pay Way for Excluded Athletes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government, in an attempt to "heal the hurt" suffered by nine track and field athletes, has offered to pay their expenses so they can at least watch the Olympic Games in Munich.

The offer was made by Health Minister John Munro in a statement Wednesday after the Canadian Olympic Association refused to include the nine on the Canadian Olympic track and field team.

Mr. Munro had climaxed some behind-the-scenes talks with a public appeal Tuesday that 10 athletes who thought they were going to the Olympics and then were dropped be sent to Munich.

On Tuesday night George Arold, manager of the track and field team, said one of 10 would be included on the team but not the others.

The federal government would offer the athletes the opportunity to attend the Olympics in the role of observers, paying through Sports Canada the travel and accommodation expenses.

"It is hoped that these young athletes will continue on in sports and will excel in the future," Mr. Munro said.

Kodes Fourth Seed to Fall

TORONTO (CP) — Unseeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina knocked fourth-seeded Jan Kodes out of the $72,600 Canadian open tennis tournament Wednesday.

Vilas, 20, making his first tour on the international circuit, ousted the heavily favored Czech in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4.

Kodes had enough service breaks in the match — a comeback in either set but seemed to lose his concentration and picked the wrong shots to charge the net.

With only four of the eight seeded players remaining, Vilas has to be considered a tournament threat.

Bob Hewitt of South Africa, seeded fifth here, got to the third round with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Ken Rosewall of Toronto.

Rosewall is the only Canadian to make it to the second round. Vilas defeated Hewitt in the French Open.

Top-seeded Ilie Nastase, the only other seed to see action Wednesday, scored a 6-4, 6-1 second-round victory over Jeff Masters of Australia.

Rain halted play late in the day, including a second round match between Ion Tiriac of Romania and sixth-seeded Patrick Proisy of France.

Andrew Martin of Montreal scored a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Junior Thistle of Vancouver in the second round of the women's singles to become the first Canadian woman to reach the quarter-finals of the Open in years. She now tackles former Wimbledon queen Margaret Court of Australia.

In doubles, Mike Belkin of Montreal teamed with Eddie Dibbs of Miami to defeat John Paish of England and Pattison

Kings File Suit to Bar Jumpers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Kings filed suit Wednesday to try to keep three players from jumping to the new World Hockey Association.

The Superior Court suits named centre Jim Johnson and defencemen Doug Barrie and Bob Wortowich, all of whom came to the Kings in trades last season.

Johnson, one of the Kings' best players in the second half of the season, has signed a contract with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA.

Alberta Oil Kings have announced signing Barrie, and Winnipeg Jets say they have Wortowich under contract.

The Kings, of the National Hockey League, asked the court to enjoin the three for playing with anyone but the Kings next season.

They also asked $100,000 damages against lawyer Charles L. Abrahams of Los Angeles, who they claim induced the players to jump leagues, and $1 million punitive damages.

Pros Play Winter Rules

HULL, Que. (CP) — The Canadian Professional Golfers Association 55th annual championship was to get under way near here today with Canada's top golfers battling a rain drenched course.

Will Homemuik of Winnipeg, winner of last year's CPGA championship, will defend his title on the lush Rivermead Golf Club course.

About 190 Canadian pros will be competing in the four day event for a $5,000 first prize and $20,000 in other prize money over the 6,720 yard, par-72 course.

Scattered showers Wednesday and heavy rain throughout the summer have played havoc with the 18-hole course.

During warmups, Stan Kolar of Lucerne, Que., had the low score of the week, a five under par 67 Wednesday in the bonus tournament. Kolar picked up $300 and Bob Panasuik of Tecumseh, Que., got the $250 second prize with a four under par 68 in the match for players not eligible for the 108 amateur event later in the day.

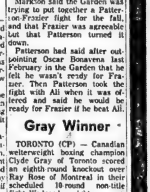
Homemuik led the way in the pro-am tourney although he only managed a 1-2 yard drive off the first tee.

Al Balding of Toronto, four-time winner of the CPGA, sliced his first shotabout 120 yards down he fairway.

Homemuik took a four-under par 68 and had a one-stroke lead over Terry Prather of Calgary, John Henrick of Brampton, Ont., and Gary Pitchford of Toronto, 2nd 69.

Because of poor playing conditions, tournament official expect the preferred-lie rule will be in effect for the first time in a CPGA event. The rule allows golfers to remove their ball from marked poor playing areas and place it two club lengths out of the area while not advancing the ball towards the green. Stroke penalties will not be in effect if the rule is used.

Sam Dempster, Rive r ernest resident pro, said 4 19-under par would likely be needed to win the event.



Gabriel To Start

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Coach Tommy Prothro said Wednesday that Roman Gabriel, who suffered a collapsed lung July 11, will start at quarterback for Los Angeles Rams against Oakland Raiders Saturday night, but he isn't sure how long Gabriel will play.

"We'll see how the game goes," Prothro said. "Roman has been throwing the ball long and he's been throwing it hard."

It was first feared that Gabriel might miss the entire National Football League season, but doctors reinflated his right lung with a small tube and never gave him the go-ahead to play six weeks after the collapse if he felt well.

"I have not been aware of the lung problem the last four or five days," Gabriel said Wednesday. "I feel like I'm getting all the wind capacity I had before the injury. I think everything's going to be all right."

Patterson Meets Ali

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson will fight Muhammad Ali Sept. 20 in Madison Square Garden, but his opponent could have been heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, Harry Markson, president of Garden Boxing, disclosed Wednesday.

Markson said the Garden was trying to put together a Patterson-Frazier fight for the fall, and that Frazier was agreeable but that Patterson turned it down.

Patterson had said after outpointing Oscar Bonavena last February in the Garden that he felt he wasn't ready for Frazier. Then Patterson took the fight with Ali when it was offered and said he would be ready for Frazier if he beat Ali.

Gray Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian welterweight boxing champion Clyde Gray of Toronto scored an eighth round knockout over Ray Rose of Montreal in their scheduled 10-round non-title fight Wednesday night.

The win boosted Gray's record to 34 victories in 37 fights.

For Jamaican-born Rose, it was the first time he has been knocked out in 19 career fights. He has won 16 of his bouts.

Gray, who is ranked sixth for the world championship, stunned Rose with a left hook and then knocked him through the ropes with a straight right.

Low Blow ?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ken Dorrance, manager of Canadian light-heavyweight champion Al Sparks, says the Canadian Professional Boxing Federation has thrown a low blow with a new ruling that Canada's top fighter, except heavyweight, must be defended every six months.

Dusang received publication in a letter along with a warning that Sparks must defend his title by Oct. 31.

Round-County Race

Few Dull Moments for Sailors

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

Except for rolling waves, threats of storms, sickness, being grounded on sandbars, run over by a 300-ton lake freighter, seasickness or windup in Shanghai after a long turn at Sweetman Island - the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's Around - the - County Race is a pretty dull affair.

About 15 crews will brave the hazards of Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte in this year's edition, the sixth time the 105-mile course around Prince Edward County has been tested. Boats from Toronto, Port Hope, Trenton and the Quinte Club will be out to improve on last year's race where only eight of 20 entries finished the circuit.

"The weather was fine and calm when we started in the morning but by night it blew like a stink," recalls former Quinte Commodore Dick Bird, one of whose crews successfully navigated the long distance last year. "A few boats were grounded, a few got lost and some just quit without telling us, which really caused problems."

The problems for the organizers are many but the sailors who are vying for the E. G. Wickerson Trophy have more immediate worries when the race begins at Presqu'ile Saturday morning at 9 a.m.

"It's real tough for an out-of-towner to win this race," observes Bird, who finished fifth last year. "The course favors the locals who should know the waters better. The water is shallow for most of the distance and you don't have much room to get through the channels. It not only tests your sailing skills but your navigation too."

Navigating the narrow paths during the darkness is further complicated by having to enter the commercial shipping lanes for part of the easterly stretch of the race. There is no real hazard but the sight of a 300-ton freighter off your leeward side is not for the faint of heart.

Hearts performed well last year but stomachs were a different story. "Sea sickness was the big thing last year, nobody escaped its effects. Lake Ontario is supposed to be worse than the ocean sometimes for rolling waves, and you could tell last year," noted Bird.

Sea sickness is unavoidable as the weather but all manmade precautions are assuredly followed. A list of 19 rules is listed on the official entry form and range from requiring an accurate compass and fog horn to bailing pails. All practical steps were taken by the race committee to ensure no repeats of last year's events which included the stopping of one of those big lake freighters to ask for directions.

"We have to have each boat completely self-sufficient. They are on their own out there and we won't turn to help unless they could come up," says Bird.

The race begins at Presqu'ile and finishes at the Belleville Yacht Club with the time of arrival anybody's guess.

Last year's champion Dr. Simonds of Toronto, will not be back to defend his title, leaving the door open to Dr. Ken Douglas of Belleville who must rank as the favorite.

Dr. Douglas captured the Wickerson trophy two years ago.

Printers Blacked Out

Neither rain nor mud or sickness of grass prevented The Intelligencer and AOCO from their appointed Industrial Softball League play-off game Wednesday night, but darkness did.

Darkness forced the cancellation of the seventh inning in last night's battle between the division A and C winners with the game reverting back to the sixth inning for the final score, a 10-2 AOCO victory.

AOCO had eaten away a 10-run Intell lead and finally went ahead in the sixth, forcing the Printers to make a comeback of their own in the top of the seventh. The division A winners scored once to tie the game and had another runner on second when the game was called because of darkness.

The long ball moved the Optical to their second consecutive play-off win. Doug Findley had a homer and two singles, Ron McCoy a single and triple and Jerry Vincent a homer for the winners who hoed the long come - from - behind trail in steady fashion.

Bob Iwa in the second, four the fourth and six in the sixth.

Ron McCoy pitched five innings of four-hit relief for the winners, taking over from starter Larry Waite who gave up 10 Intell runs in the first frame.

- Gerry Genereaux took the loss for The Intell with John Edwards and Ron Culloden seeing it relief spearances. Eric Emerson paced the Printers' hitting attack with a double and two singles.

Friends . . . Maybe!

Ed Siairs (foreground) and Dick Bird are compatible now as they do some pre-race measuring of sails but come Saturday morning the two will be battling wave by wave, Dick will be sailing the Trident and Ed will be on Whistler's Daughter as the sixth annual Around - the - County Race gets underway. Approximately 15 ships will be vying for the Wickerson Trophy after hopefully defeating the 105-mile course around Prince Edward County.

Yardmen Gals Win Flag

It was a dog's life in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League Wednesday night as BYBF and Belleville Broadloom dogged it to first base 48 times between them.

The two teams were serving hard and often and only a last inning rally gave the Yardmen girls the advantage, 21-20, and first place in the sudden-death regular season finale.

Lynda Empey led the winners 28-hit onslaught with six safeties. Wendy Conley added five singles while Donna Preston, Sue Morton, and Donna Lucas had a quartet of hit's each. Sue Morton and Lynda Empey took the win.

Sharlene Wenstaffe punched four singles for the Broadloom with Marianne Sills adding three and Norma Fuller a homer and triple. Sills was tagged with the loss.

Midgets Bounce Bobcaygeon

Belleville's midgets wrapped up their first Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association series Wednesday night over Bobcaygeon.

The locals nipped the home team 7-6 last night to sweep the series in two straight. Belleville now awaits the winner of the Orangeville-Arthur series.

Rick Barbeau had four goals, Jim Scott two and Roger Chapman a single for the winners.

In Belleville Minor Lacrosse house league play-off action the RCAF bantams blanked Bob's Sports 3-0 in their first game in a best-of-three final series.

Bob McLean, Rob Reeve and Ross Hand scored for the Flyers with Dexter Dowell earning the shutout.

Meads Unbeaten In OASA

Pakenham haven't packed it in yet, but the Belleville Mead Johnson squirts have the crew ready when they do.

Heads made it five in a row Wednesday night with a 7-1 Ontario Amateur Softball Association win over Pakenham in the first of three third-round series. Mead eliminated Nauvoo and Soule added in straight games in previous rounds.

Tim Soule fired a two-hit- ter for the winners, fanning 12 and not walking a batter. A wild pitch scored the only run to score for Pakenham in the fifth inning.

Andy Rossit had two triples and Darrell Cokman two singles to pace the home team. John Henry, Bob Hodge, and Soule added singles for Mead seven hit total.

Jeff Cherrier took the loss for Pakenham. He struck out seven with no walks. Andy Stewart and Don Vaughan singled in a losing effort.

Second game in the series will be in Pakenham tonight at 7 p.m.

Wemps Inseparable

KINGSTON — It's good for brothers to do things together but the Wemps are stretching it too far.

Ben and Hugh couldn't shake each other in Wednesday night's Frontenac Downs featured ninth race and crossed the wire in a rare dead heat. Ben was behind Allison Scott and Hugh reined Zorro Gratton to identical 2:03.3 times.

Hugh was again at the wire in the preferred sixth race, driving Willbrook May to victory.

Chris Storms also picked up a pair of wins, taking Resto Bow to the victory circle in the tenth and Gaiety's Jule in the fifth.

Other race winners before a crowd of 1,131 were Lee's Gun in the first, Tiny Wil in the second, Lastly Dorothy in the third, Marie Elannis in the fourth, R. B. Dillon in the seventh and Arlas E. Junkin in the eighth.

The pari-mutuel windows were open for $30,082 in wagering at Frontenac's ninth day of racing. Post time for Sunday's card is 2 p.m.

Dodgers Get Dose of Own Medicine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For 26 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers were giving people the willies.

They got some of their own medicine back Wednesday night.

Willie Stargell erased earlier damage done by Los Angeles' Willie Davis with a two-run homer in the ninth inning to give Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory.

Davis, who had won two previous games with homers, put the Dodgers into a 2-0 lead with a two - run double in the second inning. It lasted until the final frame, when the Pirates scored three times to beat Don Sutton.

Stargell's wallop followed a run-scoring single by Al Oliver, and marked the 15th time this season that the Pirates have won games in the ninth inning.

In other National League games Cincinnati Reds ripped Philadelphia Phillies 8-2, Houston Astros trimmed Montreal Expos 5-0, San Francisco Giants smashed Chicago Cubs 14-9, Atlanta Braves topped New York Mets 3-1, and St. Louis Cardinals beat San Diego Padres 6-4.

Sutton was pitching a four-hitter for Los Angeles through eight innings before Pittsburgh rallied in the ninth. Dave Cash led off with a double, took third on a balk by Sutton, and scored on Oliver's single. Stargell then produced.

Tony Perez knocked in four runs, two with a homer, to pace a 13-hit attack that powered Cincinnati past hapless Philadelphia. The loser was Ken Reynolds, who dropped his 18th game without a victory until Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Bob Tolan singled for one run in the seventh. Reynolds received Johnny Bench to lift a short fly for the first out. The lefthander then walked Tony Perez and Denis Menke to force in another run before departing.

The Reds made their lead 3-0 on Dave Concepcion's sequence that scored Cincinnati's first run in the inning. After Philadelphia came back with a pair of runs in the second inning, Cincinnati scored once in the fifth on Menke's sacrifice fly and put the game away when Perez hit a two-run homer in the seventh and a two-run single in the eighth.

Bob Watson and John Edwards each drove in two runs and Don Wilson spun a five-hitter, leading Houston over Montreal. The Astros took the lead with two runs in the fourth on a single by Watson and Edwards' sacrifice fly.

Dusty Baker singled home the tie-breaking run in a two-run ninth inning and Hank Aaron blasted the 664th home run of his career to help Atlanta defeat New York. The homer run put Aaron an even 50 in back of Babe Ruth's career record 714.

Wood Reliever At Heart

"I'm not looking at records," says Chicago's amazing Wilbur Wood. "I'm still a relief pitcher at heart, pitching one batter, rather than one game, at a time."

That approach has made the 30-year-old knuckleballer, a refugee from the bullpen, the winningest hurler in the major leagues this season.

Wednesday's performance was hardly one of his more successful efforts of the year. He was clipped for 13 hits and five runs by Milwaukee Brewers and departed after only 6 1/3 innings.

But he has hung around long enough to record his 21st victory.

The White Sox' 8-5 triumph over the Brewers, coupled with Oakland Athletics 13 victory over Baltimore Wednesday night, enabled the White Sox to remain within a game of the front-running Athletics in the latter American League's tight West Division race.

From 1967 to 1970 Wood toiled in the White Sox' bullpen, compiling a 36-38 record. Then he became a starter—and did it with a flourish.

Raquel Welch

Sex Symbol Takes Knocks To Update Her Image

NEW YORK (AP) — If you think Raquel Welch hates being a glamor symbol and a sex goddess, you've got the wrong girl.

She likes wearing the mantle handed down by such previous renowned screen beauties as Jean Harlow, Clara Bow, Rita Hayworth, Kim Novak and Marilyn Monroe.

"I don't think that the public has a mistaken image of me — only that it is too limited," she said during a luncheon.

"I don't find it unflattering or immoral to be regarded as a sex object. I want to go on playing sexy roles, but I want them also to be more than one-dimensional.

"I'd like to play more many-dimensional roles, as Julie Christie and Jane Fonda do. My image simply needs to be updated rather than changed."

Raquel hopes that her latest film, Kansas City Bomber, will help do this. It allows her fiery temperament full rein, as she portrays the tempestuous star of one of North America's teamster sports spectacles — professional roller-skating racing.

"It's the most important thing I've done so far," she said. "I did a lot to put it together. I found the script, spent six months learning to skate, and even managed to break my right wrist before we started shooting it."

Famous beauties, like ordinary women, often are as aware of their defects as they are of their loveliness.

Raquel feels her biggest handicap is lack of self-confidence.

"It's my worst fault," she said. "I get in a panic that I won't be able to do things as well as I want to. I could do with less panic and less inside hysteria. I have to fight it every time."

What does she feel is her best character asset?

"I forgive easily," she replied. "I'm not very cynical. I'm still vulnerable. But I'd rather be pushed around and taken advantage of than become cynical.

"I am hopeful and optimistic. My philosophy is to enjoy everything that happens, the good times and feelings, but also the bad times and feelings — because of the experience and knowledge they bring you, I believe that you can have happiness in a life-time. I believe we should become immersed in life and not try to fight off our emotions and impulses for fear of where they might lead us."

TV Political Conventions Are A Bore Says Producer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Minute-to-minute TV coverage of political conventions is a bore, says the former Today show producer, and the commit Republican convention may be the most boring of all.

"Conventions are the dullest events in the history of the Western Hemisphere," says Al Morgan. "To cover them from gavel to gavel is insanity."

With the Republican nominees for both president and vice-president already assured, he notes, next week's convention will lack the "good horse race" that adds audience appeal.

Theatre Sign May Go

TRENTON (Staff) — Will council permit an unusual set of overhanging signs to be exceptions to a bylaw calling for all such signs to be removed by the end of the year?

A letter from the sign firm of E. L. Ruddy Ltd. read to council Monday said that the town to consider exempting the Centre Theatre on Dundas West from the new law. It says one vertical sign will be made flush with the building's exterior wall, but asks that the Duffin marquee and overhang sign be allowed to stay.

Council was told in the letter that communities with similar legislation restrictions have not included these if they do not include the name of the cinema.

"If you accept marquees as a form of advertising, it would be in contravention," said clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry, who added, "you may look at them as being a service to the public." Town staff will prepare a report on the matter for council's early consideration.

Bugfest at Mall

Insects have taken over the Quinte Mall this week, as one of North America's largest insect collections goes on display.

It was assembled by Ron Michaels, and its appearance here is sponsored by Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd.

On view are bird-eating spiders from the Amazon, giant walking sticks from Malaysia and delicate tropical butterflies.

The collection is part of the Millbank World of Craftsmanship, a series of collections put together by the tobacco company. They have been tourist shopping centres, parks and recreational areas.

Two mini - museums in vans, loaded with ancient artifacts on loan from the Royal Ontario Museum are now on tour.
